(a) The necessity for personal cleanliness.
(b) The necessity for keeping rooms clean.
(c) The necessity for pure water, fresh air, sunlight and ventilation, the danger of shutting up sleeping-rooms.
(d) The danger of insanitary and dirty habits such as spitting.
(e) The necessity of exercise.
(f) Some information as to how simple complaints, wounds, snake-bites, burns, etc., should be treated; how a drowning person should be handled, etc.

The teaching must proceed not merely by precept but by example. The first essential then is that the teacher himself should be a man of healthy and clean habits; the second that the school should be well ventilated and scrupulously clean; the teacher should also insist that every child who comes to school must be clean and tidy.

E. Marsden	Geography for Senior Classes, Parts I and II.
The World with fuller treatment of India (Longmans' Geographical Series for India, Book II).
F. D. Unstead	... The Practical Geography, Parts I and II.

The following books are recommended for the use of teachers :—

Blanford	The Rudiments of Physical Geography for the use of Indian Schools.
Frew	A Regional Geography of the Indian Empire (Blackie and Son).
Wallis	The Teaching of Geography (Cambridge University Press).
O'Malley	Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, Sikkim (Macmillan & Co).

The following book is recommended for the use of teachers in connection with the teaching of "Sand Modelling" in the lower classes of schools :—

A. E. Frye	The Child and Nature.

Every school that intends to undertake instruction in Geography for the Matriculation Examination is required to possess the apparatus mentioned in the following list:—

I—(The total cost need not exceed Rs. 65)—

1. A measuring tape.
2. A magnetic compass.
3. Squared paper and tracing paper.
4. Clay, dry sand, paper pulp for modelling.
5. A globe not less than 14 inches in diameter, with writing surface, and with line of latitude and longitude, and outlines only of the land masses, marked upon it.
6. A map of the school locality on a scale of 4" or 6"= 1 mile.
7. A map of the district in which the school is situated on the scale 1"= 1 mile.
8. A coloured map of the province.
9. A coloured political map of India.
10. A physical map of India.
11. A relief map of India.
12. A map of the world on Mollweide's equal area projection and a map of Asia.

It is essential that the students should be provided with atlases, or with the necessary hand-maps, and with a drawing instrument box. Maps for school work should not contain too much detail, or be crowded with names.

II. The following additional equipment is recommended when it can be provided, but the lack of it is not to be considered as a bar to the recognition of the school in Geography:—

1. A thermometer.
2. A mercury barometer.
3. A rain gauge.
4. A small collection of typical rocks, in particular those of the province and of India.
5. A small museum of typical products.
6. A good standard atlas.
7. Geographical pictures.
8. Magic lantern and slides.

(1) The attention of teachers is requested to the raised maps of Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam made of paper pulp, prepared by Babu Kailaschandra Datta, Head Pandit, Habiganj Government Girls' School, Sylhet, and sold for Rs. 7 and Rs. 5, respectively.

(2) Globes of all kinds are made by George Philip and Son, London, W., and A. K. Johnston, London, and Messrs. Ruddiman Johnston, London.

Small hand globes of German make can be obtained through the Indian School Supply Depôt for about a rupee each.

(3) The "Comparative" series of large wall maps of the continents published by George Philip and Son is good and up to date; so also are the Orographical wall maps published by Edward Standford. Messrs. Ruddiman Johnston publish a series of smaller wall maps which include maps of India illustrating various distributions.

Messrs. Nelson's wall atlases are good. Mr. S. B. Chatterjee publishes District maps: also ordinary and relief maps of the province.

Babu L. M. Basu, the drawing master of the Dacca Collegiate School, has published good relief maps of Eastern Bengal and Assam and of India.

The Vidal-Lablache French wall maps on strong cardboard, named on one side, and the same map without names on the reverse, published by Armond Colin, Paris, are good and cheap. They measure 46 inches by 39 inches and can be delivered in Calcutta for Rs. 4-14 each.

(4) The hand-maps, coloured to indicate relief, published by the Diagram Company, West Barnes Lane, New Malden, Survey, at one penny each, are the best of their kind.

The uncoloured half-penny maps, showing river systems and a few towns, published by the same Company, are excellent for class use.

The Autograph hand-maps, with hill shading in brown, published by Messrs. Edward Standford, London, at one penny each, are very good, and are larger than the Diagram Company's hand maps. The 15-inch map of the world on Mollweide's equal area projection is especially to be commended.

(5) Wall pictures of considerable artistic merit are published by Messrs. Edward Arnold of Leeds, Messrs. Hachette of Paris and Messrs. Holzel of Vienna, and Messrs. Longmans, Green and Company. They cost, delivered in India, from two to three rupees each.

Map lantern slides and view slides especially prepared for Geography teaching are sold by the Diagram Company for two or three shillings each. Mr. Bartington Smith of Darjeeling also sells good picture slides of the Himalayas at Rs. 15 per dozen.

APPOINTMENT DEPARTMENT.

RESOLUTION—No. 6287A.

THE Governor in Council has had under consideration the action to be taken on the following resolution which was carried at the meeting of the Bengal Legislative Council held on the 5th April 1921 :—

"This Council recommends to the Government that early steps be taken for the total separation of the judicial from the executive functions in the administration of this Presidency."

RESOLUTION ON THE TRIENNIAL REPORT ON THE LUNATIC ASYLUMS IN BENGAL FOR 1918—1920.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENT.

Medical.

RESOLUTION—No. 2322 Medical.

READ—

The triennial report on the lunatic asylums in Bengal for the years 1918—1920.

READ ALSO—

The annual returns of the lunatic asylums in Bengal for 1918 and 1919, with the remarks recorded by the Surgeon-General with the Government of Bengal.

THE Central Lunatic Asylum for Europeans at Ranchi was opened in the latter part of 1918, and all the inmates of the Bhowanipur lunatic asylum were transferred to it, together with the European lunatics of the Berhampore asylum. After the transfer of its inmates to Ranchi the institution at Bhowanipur ceased to exist as a regular lunatic asylum and was converted into a temporary observation ward for patients, pending the construction of a new building which will serve as a permanent observation ward. The latter, which is expected to be complete at the end of the current year, will provide accommodation for both European and Indian patients, viz., 6 Europeans and 24 Indians, and provision will also be made for paying patients.

2. There are now two lunatic asylums at Berhampore and Dacca in addition to the observation ward at Bhowanipur and an insane ward at Gobra, and there is altogether accommodation for 1,099 inmates (901 males and 198 females). The daily average population during the triennium was 1,014, and the average annual number of admissions (including readmissions) was 286. The mean strength of the criminal population. viz., 461, was less than in the previous three years. There was no overcrowding in any asylum during the period under review, except to a small extent in the male section of the Dacca asylum. An additional barrack has been constructed in this asylum, which, it is hoped, will relieve overcrowding in future. A sleeping barrack and 27 separate cubicles were also added to the latter asylum; but other works of improvement were put off pending the establishment of the Indian asylum at Ranchi, which is to be an up to date institution at which Indian lunatics will receive care and treatment on modern and improved lines.

3. The record of health of the asylums was unfavourable. The condition of the lunatics at the time of admission was generally very poor, and epidemics of influenza visited the asylums both at Berhampore and at Dacca in all three years, while there were also outbreaks of dysentery in 1919 and 1920. The admissions to hospitals rose from 397 in 1917 to 511 in 1918, fell slightly to 501 next year, and reached the high figure of 612 in 1920.

4. The Government of Bengal (Ministry of Local Self-Government) desire to place on record their appreciation of the willing and able work of the officers concerned in the management and administration of the lunatic asylums during the period under review.

By order of the Government of Bengal
(Ministry of Local Self-Government),

L. S. S. O'MALLEY,

RESOLUTION ON THE REVISION OF THE PAY OF THE MENIAL SERVANTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

Finance.

RESOLUTION No. 13371F.

READ—

The Report of the Committee appointed to advise on the revision of the pay of ministerial officers and menials in Bengal and the Note of Dissent recorded by Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

The present resolution deals only with the revision of the pay of menials, but before proceeding to record the decisions come to by Government, the Governor in Council desires to express his thanks to Mr. McAlpin and the other members of the Committee for the very thorough manner in which they have investigated this intricate problem and for the valuable report which they have submitted.

2. In order to afford relief to the menials in this Presidency, who have been adversely affected by the conditions arising out of the war, the Government of Bengal have from time to time increased their emoluments. A tentative scheme for the revision of the pay of all menials drawing Rs. 12 or less per mensem was introduced in 1918. This was followed in 1920 by a permanent revision of their pay at a cost of about 10½ lakhs. Menials on higher rates of pay also came within the scope of the orders of this Government conveyed in this Department memorandum No. 6242F., dated the 12th June 1919, sanctioning the grant of war allowances at rates varying from Re. 1 to Rs. 2-8 to all officers of Government drawing a pay of more than Rs. 12 but not exceeding Rs. 50. Though these concessions represented a fair increase in the salaries of menials, Government recognised that the relief given was only partial and that the time had come to put the salaries of menials on a proper footing to suit altered economic conditions. Accordingly in November 1920 Government appointed a committee consisting of the members noted in the margin, to advise as to the revision of the pay of the ministerial and menial establishments in accordance with modern economic conditions. The report submitted by the committee has received the careful consideration of Government. It was decided to deal first with that portion of the report relating to the revision of pay of menials, and Government accordingly formulated certain proposals based on the recommendations of the committee which were submitted to, and unanimously accepted by, the Legislative Council.

Mr. M. C. McAlpin, I.C.S.,	President
Rai M. C. Mitra Bahadur ...	Member
Mr S. N. Roy, I.C.S ...	Member and Secretary.

3. Government are accordingly pleased to issue the following orders :—

(1) The committee recommended the maintenance of the present grouping of districts into three classes, A, B and C. Government are, however, of opinion that, as prices in Midnapore, Birbhum and Bankura, which form the existing C group, are very little lower than in neighbouring districts, it is unnecessary to retain this third class for the sake of only three districts. They have, therefore, decided to abolish the C class and to include the three districts concerned in the B class ;

(2) The following rates of pay are sanctioned, in supersession of those now in force, for different classes of menials :—

	Rs.
A districts	15—½—19
B „	13—½—17

(b) Process-servers—

A districts	18—½—22
B „	16—½—20

(c) Contingency menials.—The pay drawn on 1st January 1919, plus an increase up to Rs. 3 at the discretion of the head of the office, subject to minima of Rs. 13 for Calcutta (excluding Alipore) and of Rs. 12 for the rest of the province ;

(d) Temporary menials.—As at present, temporary establishment menials in a district will draw the minimum of the scale for permanent establishment menials of that class applicable to the district. In the case of temporary contingency menials, the general orders passed above for contingency menials will be followed ;

(e) Boatmen, lascars other than those on steam-launches and dredgers and manjhis—

	Rs.
A districts	15—½—19
B „	14—½—18

(ii) Manjhis—

	First five years.	6th to 15th year.	16th year onwards.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
B „ ...	19	20	21

NOTE.—At present only the manjhis of the Excise Department and those mentioned in Appendix I to this resolution will get the above rates. As regards the so-called manjhis in various establishments in the Province a selection should be made from them of those who actually perform the duties of a master-boatman and they should be paid at the above rates ; the others should be paid at the standard rates for boatmen and lascars. This selection should be made by Heads of Departments for boats in their charge.

Manjhis in the Excise Department will continue to draw the Sunderbans allowance of Rs. 3.

	Rs.
A districts	15—½—19
B „	14—½—18

They will continue to draw the Sunderbans allowance of Rs. 2.

(g) Forest guards.—Rs. 12—½—16—½—20, with an efficiency bar at Rs. 16.

(h) Record suppliers, daftries and jamadars in the offices of the heads of departments and certain other offices in Calcutta, as shown in Appendix II.—Where the maximum of the existing pay of record-suppliers and daftries is more than Rs. 15, a scale of Rs. 20—½—27 is sanctioned. For the rest the scale will be Rs. 15—½—19.

NOTE.—The record-suppliers, daftries and jamadars in the Board of Revenue, Legislative Department, and Secretariat Record-room and the jamadar on the staff of the Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs who is also Judicial Secretary to this Government will get the scales hereafter mentioned for similar officers in the Secretariat.

(i) Other Record-suppliers, daftries and jamadars—

	Rs.
A districts	15—½—19
B ,, ...	13—½—17

NOTE.—The present daftri in the Registration office, Barisal, will draw pay at the rate of Rs. 16—½—19.

(j) Miscellaneous menials in Calcutta hospitals—

	Rs.
Dressers	15—½—20

NOTE.—The present dresser in the Police Hospital is allowed to draw the maximum of Rs. 20.

	Rs.
Clothiers	18

NOTE.—The present incumbents on Rs. 18 and Rs. 17 at the Medical College Hospital are allowed to draw Rs. 22 and Rs. 20, respectively

	Rs.
Cutlers	20—1—25

	Rs.
Electric Mechanic and Native Engineer, Medical College Hospital	30
Injector, Medical College	20—1—35
Mistri, Medical College	25—1—30
Engine Driver, Campbell Medical School ...	36

(k) Miscellaneous menials in various offices.—At present there is no uniformity in the pay of these various classes of menials. Neither has it been possible to arrive at any uniformity in fixing the new rates of pay. which are shown in Appendix III.

(l) Special classes of menials.—In the office of the Director of Surveys, in the Government gardens, Calcutta, Lloyd Botanic Garden, Darjeeling, Cinchona Plantation, Mungpoo, and offices of the Private Secretary to the Governor, Military Secretary to the Governor and Superintendent of Governor's Estates. The rates of pay now sanctioned for these menials are shown in Appendix IV.

(m) Establishments of Government launches and lascars on dredgers.—The present classification of launches into six types, with different manning scales and special provisions in the case of those which work continuously day and night, has been retained. The scales of pay now sanctioned for the different crews of each type are shown in Appendix V. When a different manning scale has been adopted, the rates sanctioned in Appendix V corresponding to the present rates should also be adopted.

These rates will merge all allowances drawn by them hitherto, except in the case of the tindal of the "Rhotas" which has been mentioned in the Appendix.

The lascars on dredgers will draw the same rate of pay as lascars on launches.

(n) Record-suppliers, daftries and jamadars in the Secretariat, Board of Revenue, Legislative Department and Secretariat Record-room and the jamadar on the staff of the Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs who is also Judicial Secretary to this Government—

	Rs.
Record-suppliers	20—½—32
Daftries	20—¼—27
Jamadars	20—½—24

(o) Treasury and Sub-Treasury Poddars.—For some time it has been felt by Government that selected poddars should undergo some course of training in order to improve their work, and with this end in view Circular Nos. 1153—57F., dated 5th February 1918, was issued to provide a special training for selected poddars. Practically no advantage has been taken of the opportunity offered by that circular. It is now proposed to insist that one man should be sent up from each district to undergo this special course of training. If he obtains the certificate of competence under the above circular, he will become the District Treasury Head Poddar. It is also felt that the other poddars would benefit by a shorter course of training, and it is proposed to ask Collectors to nominate those poddars in their districts who would be likely to benefit by such a course. These in turn would undergo the course in Calcutta, and if favourably reported on would be called "passed poddars." Under the above scheme there will be four classes of poddars with different rates of pay as shown below :—

	Rs.
Trained head poddar	35—1—50
Untrained ,, ...	20—½—30
Poddars who pass the shorter course ...	20—½—30
Poddars who do not pass the shorter course ...	15—½—25

Treasury and sub-treasury poddars will be required to furnish a security of Rs. 250.

(p) Khasmahal Poddars.—These will draw Rs. 15—½—25 and give a security of Rs. 100.

4. The above rates of pay, which will have effect from the 1st July 1921, will absorb all war and grain compensation allowances. Special allowances, specifically mentioned, such as the Sunderbans allowances of the menials in the Excise Department, will be continued as at present.

5. The method to be adopted in bringing the present incumbents into the new incremental scales of pay is as follows :—

(i) Subject to the operation of the efficiency bar, where proposed specifically, menials will be permitted to count all continuous past service, whether acting, temporary, substantively pro tempore or permanent, as if it were service on the new scales, whether time-scales or progressive scales, and to draw pay at the point which they would have reached upon this hypothesis ;

(ii) a menial, who originally entered on any of the appointments now put on an incremental scale at a pay higher than the lowest of those appointments, will draw an initial pay not less than that of the menial next below him in the present grade who entered on the lowest pay;

(iii) a menial, whose promotion has been accelerated for good work, will draw on the incremental scale the same initial pay which the menial next below him draws;

(iv) a menial, who has been degraded or punished by having his promotion retarded, will draw the same pay as the menial next above him; and

(v) in calculating the date on which future increments should accrue, the date of entering the new scales will not be taken into consideration.

ORDER.—The resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette and a copy be forwarded to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Bengal; Director of Public Instruction, Bengal; Surgeon-General with the Government of Bengal; Inspector-General of Police, Bengal; Inspector-General of Prisons, Bengal; Superintending Engineers; Commissioners of Divisions; District and Sessions Judges; Conservator of Forests, Bengal; Commissioner of Excise and Salt, Bengal; Director of Agriculture, Bengal; Director of Land Records, Bengal; Advocate-General, Bengal; Director of Public Health, Bengal; Inspector-General of Registration, Bengal; Commissioner of Police, Calcutta; District Officers; Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, Bengal; Chief Judge, Small Cause Court, Calcutta ; Private Secretary to Governor of Bengal; Military Secretary to Governor of Bengal; Administrator-General and Official Trustee, Bengal ; Registrar of Co-operative Societies, Bengal ; Director of Surveys, Bengal ; Chief Presidency Magistrate, Calcutta ; Chief Engineer, Public Health Department, Bengal; Port Officer, Chittagong ; Superintendent, Royal Botanic Garden, Calcutta; Agent for Government Consignments, Bengal ; Director of Fisheries, Bengal ; Deputy Commissioner, Chittagong Hill Tracts ; Veterinary Advisor to the Government of Bengal ; Municipal Magistrate, Calcutta ; Superintendent, Government Printing, Bengal; Director of Industries, Bengal ; Accountant-General, Bengal, and to all departments of this Government, including the Accounts Department, for information.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 7409Cin.—The 22nd August 1921.—The following is published for general information.

W. S. HOPKYNS,

FIFTY-NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE GOVERNMENT CINCHONA PLANTATIONS AND FACTORY IN BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1920-21.

1. General.—The plantations are still suffering from the effects of the war drain, but the results are not quite so bad as superficially they seem to be. In 1918 when things were at their worst it was seen that the uprooting of immature trees for the sake of an immediate harvest could not go beyond a certain limit. At the same time, in view of the probability of the world's supply of cinchona bark—except for the comparatively trivial amount of Indian-grown bark and the small produce of British estates in Java—being controlled by a few Dutch firms—a control that is now in operation—it was most desirable that some means should be found of allowing a reasonable amount of bark to be harvested while yet giving the plantations a chance ultimately to yield an approximately full quantum. For very many years it has been the practice entirely to uproot cinchona trees for harvest. This method has the advantage of collecting the bark of the root as well as that of the stems and branches, and as the amount of root bark, which is slightly richer in alkaloid than the stem and branch bark, forms from a third to nearly a half of the total bark yielded by an uprooted tree, the immediate yield of bark is considerable. The method has the disadvantage of finishing the tree, but provided it has been possible to allow the tree to reach a commercially exploitable maturity, the disadvantage is more apparent than real.

In the early seventies of last century "coppicing" was tried on Mungpoo plantation. In "coppicing" only the stems and branches are cut, the root being left undisturbed. If the process is successful, new stems spring up from the stumps, and after some years the new growth can be cut, and the roots again left undisturbed or also cut out. The harvest is collected in two or possibly more than two instalments, at intervals of some years (five or more), the roots ultimately also forming part of the harvest. The results obtained on Mungpoo more than 40 years ago were considered rather discouraging, but as these experiments were on quite a small scale and were concerned with C. succirubra, whereas the species now cultivated is the very different C. Ledgeriana, it was resolved to try coppicing on a fairly large scale on Munsong Plantation. So towards the end of 1918, 115 acres were "semi-coppiced," being 79·5 acres of C. Ledgeriana, and the rest Hybrid and C. officinalis. By "semi-coppicing" is meant that only half the number of stems from a root—when there is more than one stem—are cut off. In the spring of 1919 the coppicing was completed. The result has been excellent, for the new stems from the roots have developed in two years to such an extent as to give an appearance equal to three-year plants grown from seed. The harvest from Munsong for 1920-21, amounting to 324,804 lbs., was got by coppicing 334 acres. There is good reason to expect that the same acreage five years hence will yield the same amount of bark from new growth, and in addition root bark equal in amount to at least a third of the total ultimate yield. The ultimate yield may not come up to the original estimate based on the assumption that it would be possible to allow trees to reach an exploitable maturity and then to uproot them entirely, but in the circumstances this cannot be helped.

On Munsong considerable damage was caused by such various agencies as hail, wind storms, deer and rats, but most of the casualties have been replaced. On Mungpoo a new enemy to cinchona has appeared in the shape of a boring beetle, identified by the Imperial Entomologist as Xyloborus fornicatus, the " shot hole " borer of tea, which attacks the stems. The only treatment is to cut down and burn the affected trees. So far no great damage has been done.

2. Extensions, Acreages and Crops.—(a) Mungpoo.—Rainfall was 103·74 inches against an average for 43 years of 123. From the 20th September 1920 to the 22nd January 1921 only 1·15 inches were recorded. Last year's extensions suffered accordingly, but all vacancies have since been filled. The year's extensions were 126·5 acres, of which 89·5 were C. Ledgeriana (24·5 on Mungpoo division and 65 on Sittong), 15 C. succirubra on Sittong and 22 C. Ledgeriana × succirubra on Mungpoo. The C. Ledgeriana included 4·5 acres planted with 8,000 seedlings from the special high quality seed purchased in Java in 1919. They have been planted in an isolated position in the re-afforested area, so as to be kept as free as possible from the influence of the pollen of low percentage trees in other parts of the plantation. The year's harvest was 176,214 lbs. yielded by cutting out 44·7 acres of an average age of 6·5 years. This is equivalent to an annual bark increment per acre of 606 lbs. over the period of 6·5 years, and an actual total yield per acre of 3,942 lbs. for the period. As the estimated average annual bark increment per acre calculated over a ten years period has been taken as 330 lbs. for Mungpoo, the actual yield over an average period of 6·5 years exceeds the estimated total for 10 years, as it did last year. This is a very satisfactory result. The average quinine percentage of the ledger bark was 5·17, of the hybrid 3·67, and of the mixed barks, calculated on their different amounts, 4·72. There were 810·5 acres with a full complement of cinchona at the end of March 1921. Re-afforestation on an extensive scale has now ceased, and this work is now confined to conserving the 3,075 acres that have been re-afforested since 1907, and to re-afforesting blocks under cinchona as they become vacant. About 2,800 tons of firewood were supplied to the factory.

(b) Munsong.—Rainfall was 85·83 inches, against an average for 20 years of 96 inches. Extensions were 210 acres, comprising 174 of C. Ledgeriana, including a small plot planted with special Java seedlings, 22 of C. Ledgeriana × officinalis and 14 of C. Ledgeriana × succirubra. The harvest of 324,804 lbs. was got by coppicing 334 acres, estimated at present as equivalent to cutting out 136 acres of an average age of 6·6 years, with an average annual bark increment per acre over that period of 357 lbs. and an average total yield per acre for the period of 2,388 lbs. Of the harvest 232,772 lbs. were C. Ledgeriana, the remainder being Hybrid and C. officinalis. The average quinine percentages were, of C. Ledgeriana 4·62, of C. officinalis 3·80, of Hybrid 3·35, of the mixed barks calculated on their different amounts 4·4. At the end of March 1921, there were 2,425 acres under cinchona. It was not found possible to do any re-afforestation work during the year.

(c) Plantations as a whole.—The total acreage under Cinchona is 3,236 acres, of which 2,340 are under six years of age. The approximate total number of tree is 5,400,000. The total harvest was 501,018 lbs. of dry bark.

3. Factory Work.—617,018 lbs. of mixed plantation barks were used up, being 216,106 lbs. of Mungpoo and 400,912 lbs. of Munsong bark, with average quinine percentages, respectively, of 4·72 and 4·4. About 92 per cent. of the quinine in the bark was extracted, the products being 23,984¾ lbs. of quinine sulphate, 386 lbs. of quinine hydrochloride, equivalent to 431 lbs. of quinine sulphate, and 10,626½ lbs. of cinchona febrifuge containing 1,269¾ lbs. of quinine sulphate. The total output of all sorts from plantation bark was 34,997¼ lbs. In addition, from 10,600 lbs. of Java bark of analysed quinine contents of 6·58 per cent., 655 lbs. of quinine sulphate and 196 lbs. of cinchona febrifuge were manufactured for the Government of India. 4,000 lbs. of cinchona febrifuge were also purchased from the Government of Madras.

4. Cost and value of Plantation Bark.—The Mungpoo harvest of 176,214 lbs. cost at 3·6 annas per lb., Rs. 39,647. Its average quinine percentage being 4·72, with a unit rate of 2 annas, its value per lb. was 9·4 annas, or its total value Rs. 1,03,515. The Munsong harvest of 324,804 lbs. at 2·7 annas per lb., cost Rs. 54,810. With an average quinine percentage of 4·4 its market value was at least 8·8 annas per lb., or a total of Rs. 1,78,642. Total cost of the total harvest was Rs. 94,457 as against a market value of Rs. 2,82,167.

5. Cost and Value of Quinine Produced.—(a) Cost in the Bark.—The 617,018 lbs. of mixed plantation barks used in the factory at 3·6 annas for Mungpoo and 2·7 annas for Munsong bark, cost Rs. 1,16,278. The quinine sulphate extracted as such was 23,984¾ lbs. In addition, 386 lbs. of quinine hydrochloride were extracted, making a total of 24,370¾ lbs. of quinine salts. The cost of quinine per lb. in the bark is therefore $\frac{\text{Rs. } 1,16,178}{\text{Rs. } 24,370\frac{3}{4}}$, or Rs. 4·76.

(b) Cost of Extraction, Packing and Delivery to Railway.—The gross factory expenditure plus depreciation for machinery and buildings plus share of general charges plus cost of chemicals, etc., used in excess of quantities purchased during the year, and minus the cost of cinchona febrifuge purchased and minus the cost of manufacturing products other than quinine sulphate, and minus cost of chemicals, etc., purchased during the year but not used, comes to Rs. 89,100-5-4. This sum covers the extraction of the plantation bark quinine sulphate and hydrochloride and also the 655 lbs. manufactured for the Government of India, or a total of 25,025¾ lbs. of quinine salts. Cost of extraction was therefore Rs. 3·56 per lb.

(c) Total Cost per lb.—This is the cost in the bark Rs. 4·76 plus the cost of extraction Rs. 3·56 per lb., or Rs. 8·32 per lb.

(d) Value.—At Rs. 48 per lb., the present wholesale rate for Quinine sulphate, the value of the 23,984¾ lbs. of quinine sulphate produced for the Government of Bengal is Rs. 11,51,268 as against a cost of Rs. 1,99,553. In the stock account however the value rate has been taken at Rs. 30 per lb.

6. Sales and Selling Rates.—The total issue of products was 49,857 lbs. 9 ozs., consisting of 34,509 lbs. 9 ozs. of quinine sulphate, 14,935 lbs. 8 ozs. of cinchona febrifuge, and the rest of other products. Over 4,600 lbs. of Cinchona succirubra bark were also sold. Of the quinine sulphate 14,375 lbs. were sold in the form of "treatments" as compared with 10,830 lbs. sold during 1919-20. Quinine sulphate in powder form was sold at Rs. 33 to Rs. 35 per lb. according to quantities purchased at one time, cinchona febrifuge Rs. 7 to Rs. 8 per lb. Quinine sulphate in tablet form in "treatments" was sold at the rate of Rs. 43·12 per lb.

7. Expenditure and Receipts.—The total expenditure on both plantations and factory was Rs. 3,22,311-5-1. The gross receipts for sale of all products through the agency of the Juvenile Jail plus miscellaneous receipts obtained by the department direct were Rs. 13,63,594-9, of which Rs. 4,36,630-7 were credit and Rs. 9,26,964-2 cash. Of the latter Rs. 2,79,105-7-8, representing half the revenue derived from the sale of 14,375 lbs. of quinine sulphate in the form of "treatments", have been allocated to the Prisons Department, to meet charges in connexion with the conversion of purified quinine into tablets to be sold in "treatment" form. On the assumption that the sum of Rs. 2,79,105-7-8 little more than covers—as it is intended to do—the cost of conversion, the cost of converting 14,375 lbs. of purified quinine into "treatments" would seem to be Rs. 19·4 per lb. or more than twice as much the total cost of manufacture of the purified quinine. Deducting this charge for conversion of the 14,375 lbs. into "treatments" the net revenue is Rs. 10,84,489-1-4 and the net surplus Rs. 7,62,177-12-3.

8. Quinine Reserve and Stock Account.—The provincial quinine reserve on the 31st March 1921 was 39,832 lbs. The reserve is gradually lessening. Stock of all sorts at the end of the year, valued on a conservative basis, was worth Rs. 13,11,392-2, of which quinine sulphate worth at least Rs. 11,94,956 formed the chief item.

9. Block Account.—Cinchona trees are valued at Rs. 18,46,095, timber and fuel trees at Rs. 2,77,203, buildings at Rs. 1,24,811 and machinery at Rs. 70,680, a total of Rs. 23,18,790.

10. Profit and loss valuation.—As shown in Appendix E, the valuation at the end of 1920-21 shows an increase of Rs. 7,08,914-11-11.

11. Land rent.—From Mungpoo Rs. 4,964-6-6 were paid into the Darjeeling Treasury on account of land rent of settlers, and from Munsong Rs. 919-8 were paid into the Kalimpong Sub-Treasury to the credit of the Forest Department for grazing fees. No account of these sums is taken in the receipts of the Cinchona Department.

12. Staff.—Mr. C. C. Calder, B.SC., B.SC. (Agr.), F.L.S., officiated as Superintendent from the 1st April 1920 to the 16th January 1921. Thereafter Lieutenant-Colonel A. T. Gage, I.M.S, resumed charge. Mr. G. E. Shaw, B.SC., F.I.C., F.C.S., was Government Quinologist throughout the year. Mr. S. C. Sen, B.SC., B.A., was appointed Assistant Quinologist on the 2nd November 1920. On Mungpoo plantation Mr. H. Thomas was Manager up to the 7th February 1921, when he went on leave, Mr. P. V. Osborne officiating thereafter. Mr. P. W. Cresswell officiated as Assistant Manager and Hurkaman as Overseer throughout the year. On Munsong plantation Mr. H. F. Green, Mr. G. Holl and Mr. J. Hulbert were respectively Manager and Officiating Assistant Managers throughout the year. At the head office Babu Devendranath Basu was head clerk throughout the year.

ADDENDUM.

Ipecacuanha.—The stock of plants was increased by 6,400 and now stands at 82,400 plants. Experiments have been made to find out the best method of preserving seed and hastening germination. The period of the latter is erratic, varying from one month to twelve months, and about 30 per cent. of the seed is sterile.

Digitalis.—Two acres have been added to the area under this crop, and a good crop of leaf is expected. About 560 lbs. of dried leaf was distributed to medical depôts and dealers during the year.

Belladonna.—About a third of an acre was planted after filling in vacancies in last year's planting.

MONTHLY WEATHER AND CROP REPORT OF BENGAL FOR JULY 1921.

I. Character of the Season.—During the month rainfall was generally above the average in North and East Bengal, elsewhere the fall was below the normal. The usual rainfall statement is appended.

II. Progress of Agricultural Operations.—The transplantation of winter paddy proceeded briskly in Northern and Eastern districts, but in Western districts the progress was somewhat retarded by want of sufficient rainfall. Transplantation so far is behindhand in the Western districts. Harvesting of autumn paddy and cutting, steeping and washing of jute were making satisfactory progress in North and East Bengal.

III. State of Standing Crops.—The condition of sugarcane, autumn paddy, jute and other standing crops was reported to be fair on the whole. More rain was urgently needed in the Western districts for transplanting winter paddy and improving the condition of standing crops.

IV. Prospects and Probable Outturn.—The prospects of autumn paddy were reported to be favourable in Eastern and Northern districts, and a satisfactory outturn is anticipated. The present outlook of deep-water paddy is generally reported to be hopeful so far.

V. Damage to Standing Crops.—Some damage to ripe aus paddy and jute was caused in the riparian tracts of certain districts of East and North Bengal by the rise of river level.

VI. Condition of Agricultural Stock.—The condition of livestock was fair. Sporadic cases of cattle-disease were, however, reported from 17 districts.

VII. Failure of Pasturage and Fodder.—No scarcity of water and fodder was felt anywhere in the province except in parts of Murshidabad and Birbhum.

VIII. Prices of Food-grains.—During the second half of the month the price of common rice of the cheapest quality fell in 13 districts, rose in 6, and remained stationary in the rest. The price varied from 7½ seers per rupee at Dacca to 5¼ seers at Darjeeling.

IX. Condition of Agricultural People.—The condition of the agricultural population continued fair.

G. EVANS,
Director of Agriculture, Bengal.

DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS.

For the week ending on the 17th August 1921.

Summary.—During the week moderate to heavy rain fell in the Presidency, Burdwan and Chittagong Divisions, elsewhere the fall was generally light. Transplanting operation of winter paddy which so long progressed slowly in West Bengal has now been much accelerated by the recent rainfall. Harvesting of autumn crops is making a good progress in East and North Bengal. The prospects of standing crops are, on the whole, fairly satisfactory. The average price of common rice for the province has risen by about 0·3 per cent. as compared with that of the previous week.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA.

CALCUTTA TRADE FLUCTUATIONS.

THE following tables are intended to show the trade by all routes, i.e., by rail, river, canal, road, and sea, of the Calcutta block* in certain selected articles during the three months, April to June, 1921, as compared with the corresponding period of 1920 and 1919. The statistics have been compiled from returns furnished by the Collector of Customs, Calcutta, Railway Audit Offices, Steamer Companies, the Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta, the Collectors of the 24-Parganas and Howrah, and the Assistant Engineer, Calcutta Canals.

General Summary.

Imports.—The imports of rice, including paddy†, into Calcutta* by rail, river, canal, road, and sea (coastwise) during the three months, April to June, 1921, amounted to 4,239,000 maunds, as against 2,713,000 maunds in the corresponding period of the preceding year,—an increase of 1,526,000 maunds or 56 per cent, being chiefly due to larger imports of rice from Burma. There was a slight decrease in the imports of coal and coke (29,952,000 maunds as against 30,814,000 maunds last year). The value of the imports by rail, river, road, and sea (coastwise) of Indian cotton piecegoods showed a decrease of 19 per cent, the total value amounting to Rs. 1,95 lakhs as against Rs. 2,42 lakhs in 1920. The quantity of indigo imported during the three months, April to June, 1921, decreased from 3,007 maunds last year to 118 maunds. The imports of raw jute amounted to 521,000 bales as against 1,044,000 bales,—a decrease of 523,000 bales or 50 per cent. The importations of gunny bags also showed a decrease to 67 million bags from 133 millions in the preceding year. The total imports of oilseeds (linseed and rape and mustard seed) decreased by 814,000 maunds or 31 per cent, from 2,566,000 maunds to 1,752,000 maunds and those of sugar decreased by 69,000 maunds or 27 per cent from 254,000 maunds to 185,000 maunds. The imports of tea, however, increased from 251,000 maunds to 325,000 maunds or by 74,000 maunds or 30 per cent.

Exports.—The value of the exports of cotton piecegoods, foreign, from Calcutta* by all routes during the three months, April to June, 1921, decreased by 20 per cent from Rs. 6,56 lakhs to Rs. 523 lakhs. The exports of gunny bags (including the exports by sea to foreign countries) decreased from 343 million bags to 244 millions but the shipments of gunny bags to other Indian ports increased from 13 to 17 millions in number in the period under review. The quantity of kerosene oil despatched from Calcutta and Budge-Budge by internal routes and by sea (coastwise) increased from 1,367,000 maunds to 1,449,000 maunds or by 82,000 maunds or 6 per cent.

8. No person other than the actual driver shall be employed on a motor-cab as an attendant or otherwise.

9. (1) No motor car shall be used as a motor-cab unless it is fitted with an approved taxi-meter or other mechanical device for automatically and visibly registering on each occasion the fare to be charged according to the rates for distance or time or a combination of distance and time. The taxi-meter must be fitted to and operated from a "non-driving wheel". Every taxi-meter when in use shall be locked and sealed, so that it may not be tampered with.

(2) Every taxi-meter shall be fitted with an indicator or handle in the form of a flag on which shall be printed the words "for hire". The taxi-meter shall be so constructed that when the indicator is vertical the taxi-meter shall be out of action. Such indicator shall be so placed as to be clearly visible to any person outside of and in front of the vehicle, and to the hirer when inside.

(3) The vertical position of the indicator shall indicate that the vehicle is available for hire, and no driver shall without reasonable excuse refuse to accept a fare when the indicator is in the vertical position.

(4) Any owner, driver, attendant or other person who shall break or tamper in any way with the seal placed on the taxi-meter, or who shall, with intent to deceive, tamper with the taxi-meter or the driving mechanism thereof, shall be deemed to have committed a breach of this rule.

10. (1) No taxi-meter which has not been approved by the Commissioner shall be affixed to a motor-cab.

(2) Taxi-meters are only to be fitted in such positions and in such manner as may be approved by the Commissioner, the positions and manner to be determined by the construction of the motor-cab.

(3) A taxi-meter shall under no circumstances be used upon a motor-cab in connection with a wheel the circumference of which is different from that for which the meter has been designed, geared and tested.

(4) No taxi-meter which is in any way defective shall be used upon a motor-cab.

(5) No flexible or driving gears except such as are approved by the Commissioner may be used, and they must be so affixed that no part of the cable, etc., can be readily reached by an unauthorized person. All connections must be so made as to be capable of being sealed in an approved manner to prevent improper removal.

(6) The owner of a motor-cab of which the registration has expired or been cancelled shall forthwith either detach the taxi-meter, notifying the Commissioner in writing to that effect, or produce the motor-cab for renewal of the registration.

11. Every taxi-meter referred to in rule 9 shall after it is affixed to a motor-cab, whether for the first time or after repair or other readjustment, be submitted to the Commissioner or to such officer as he may empower in this behalf for the purpose of examination as to correctness of fittings, and of subjection to a practical road-test over a measured distance of one mile and a time-test of not less than half an hour. If found to be correct, the taxi-meter and its fittings shall then be sealed to the motor-cab in such a manner that it cannot be removed or tampered with without the seals being broken or removed.

12. Every taxi-meter shall, at the end of each period of six months (the first of such periods commencing from the date of the test referred to in rule 11), be submitted to a test similar to that prescribed by rule 11 :

Provided that every taxi-meter shall, at any time, if so required by the Commissioner, be submitted to him or to such officer as he may empower in this behalf, for the purpose of undergoing such test or any portion thereof.

13. The owner of every motor-cab shall cause to be kept in the cab, for the inspection of the public, a register in which the testing officer referred to in rule 11 shall, after each of the tests prescribed in rules 11 and 12, enter the date and result of such test.

14. Every motor-cab shall be provided with a light so placed as to illuminate the taxi-meter at night.

15. In every motor-cab there shall be available for the inspection of hirer a list of rates, and the fare charged for the hire of the motor-cab shall not exceed the maximum fare calculated according to the scale of such of the said rates as may be applicable.

16. The driver of every motor-cab shall, as soon as he is hired and not before, set the taxi-meter in motion, and upon the termination of the hiring shall immediately stop the same. If he neglects or fails to do so, he shall be deemed to have committed a breach of this rule:

Provided that in the event of a motor-cab whilst hired being unable to proceed from any accident, mechanical derangement or tyre failure, either temporarily or otherwise, the driver shall at once stop the mechanism of the taxi-meter as against the hirer, and shall not re-start the same until such time as he is able to proceed. The hirer shall be liable to pay the fare up to the time of the stoppage.

17. A driver of a motor-cab shall, in the absence of reasonable cause to the contrary, proceed to the destination named by the hirer and by the shortest and quickest route.

18. The brakes of a motor-cab shall be so affixed as to be capable of easy application. At least one brake shall be so made as to be applied by the foot of the driver, and at least one shall act directly upon the road wheels.

19. All brake and steering connections secured with bolts shall have such bolts secured with nuts, the same to be locked or pinned.

20. Every motor-cab shall be capable of being readily steered, and able to turn on each lock and to proceed in a contrary direction within a roadway not more than 30 feet wide from kerb to kerb.

21. The wheel-tracks of the front and the rear wheels shall, so far as possible, coincide (i.e., the wheel-track of the rear wheels must be the same as the wheel-track of the front wheels); and in no case shall the width of the front wheel-track be less than that of the rear wheel-track or the wheel-tracks vary by more than 2½ per cent. of the width.

22. All the underparts of a motor-cab inside the pivots of the front axle and steering arms (which must be placed as near as possible to the road wheels), as far back at least as the rear axle, must clear the ground at least 10 inches, sufficient allowance in addition being made to provide for the wear of the tyres, set of springs and other causes of lessened height, so that the minimum clearance of 10 inches is at all times maintained.

23. It shall be the duty of the owner to see that all parts of the mechanism of the car are periodically inspected and kept in proper working order, and a register shall be kept of such inspections in a convenient form giving such particulars as the Commissioner may prescribe. This register shall be open at any reasonable time to the inspection of the Commissioner or any person duly authorized by him in that behalf. Any failure to maintain this register or to produce it when called for by lawful authority shall be deemed to be a breach of this rule.

24. In every motor-cab the machinery shall be so constructed that no undue noise or vibration is caused, and shall be maintained in such condition at all times.

25. Carburetters must not, in any motor-cab, be placed in close proximity to magnetos or to connection of wires carrying an electric current, unless such magnetos and wire-connections are respectively screened off or encased in a suitable manner.

26. A second tap shall be provided between the tank and the carburetter, and shall be so fixed that it can be shut off or turned from the exterior of the car. Every motor-cab shall also carry some particular form of efficient fire-extinguisher.

27. No oil shall be allowed to drop upon the roadway, and where a tray or undershield is fixed below the mechanism of the car for the purpose of preventing this or for any other purpose, such tray or under-shield shall be so placed or constructed that no petrol from the tank, supply pipe or carburetter can collect therein.

28. Tanks for petrol must be so placed that any overflow shall not fall on or soak into cushions, upholstery or floor mats in or about the body and the filling nozzle shall be brought to and permanently fixed to some point outside the body. No petrol shall be poured into the tank whilst the engine is running or whilst any lamp other than an electric lamp is burning in or on any portion of the car.

29. Effective means shall be provided in every motor-cab for preventing the heat of the motor or of the exhaust pipe connections from injuriously affecting other parts of the motor-cab or interfering with the comfort of passengers. All wires carrying electric current must be properly insulated and protected from injury, and so placed that they cannot be a source of danger.

30. The outlet from the silencer shall not, in any motor-cab, be so placed as to project the exhaust directly on to the road, or be so placed or directed as to alarm horses that may be immediately behind the cab.

31. Every motor-cab shall have at least one driving wheel fitted with an approved means of preventing or limiting side slip, and shall carry at least one spare inflated tyre and rim or other approved device which can, if necessary, be quickly fitted to any wheel.

32. Every motor-cab shall be provided with adequte means for the conveyance of a reasonable quantity of luggage, and with a sufficient number of chains, straps or other means of securing such luggage. No luggage shall be carried on the roof of the cab, unless there has been affixed thereto a guard rail of a type approved by the Commissioner or by such officer as he may empower in this behalf.

33. Where acetylene or other gas is used to light the carriage, the cylinders or vessels which contain the gas or in which it is generated must be fixed outside in such a position as to minimize the danger of accidental ignition.

34. No celluloid or xylonite fittings shall be placed inside or outside any motor-cab :

Provided that this rule shall not apply to the inside of the accumulators contained in such cab.

35. No printed, written or other such matter except particulars required by these rules shall appear on the outside or inside of a motor cab or be carried by way of advertisement. The number of every motor-cab shall be shown clearly on the inside of the cab in an approved manner.

36. The cushions of the seats in every motor-cab shall be stuffed and covered with suitable material and provided with clean covers in good condition.

37. All the appointments and furniture of a motor-cab shall be maintained in good order and repair, the paint and varnish in good condition and the inside perfectly clean. The floor shall be covered with a suitable mat.

38. The Commissioner or such officer as he may empower in this behalf may prohibit the use of a motor-cab which in his opinion is unfit to ply for hire by breaking the seals of the meter and notifying the owner.

39. The carrying capacity of all motor-cabs shall be fixed by the licensing officer. No motor-cab shall be licensed to carry in the body of the cab more than three passengers, unless it is fitted with front seats facing the back seat, sufficient to accommodate the additional passengers permitted. The space on the near side of the driver may be used for a passenger or luggage at the option of the hirer.

40. The driver of a motor-cab immediately after any hiring shall carefully search for any property accidentally left in it, and shall take the same within 24 hours, if not sooner claimed by the owner, to the nearest police-station.

41. The drivers at motor-cab stands shall observe the following rules, namely :—

(1) The drivers of the first two motor-cabs on the stand must stay beside their cabs and must be ready to be hired at once by any person ; all motor-cabs on the stand must move up as vacancies occur :

(2) Every motor-cab on the stand shall be kept as near as possible to the kerb or near side of the stand. No motor-cab shall be kept at the stand at a greater distance than one foot from the motor-cab next in front or remain with its front wheels off the straight or at an angle to the sides of the stand.

(3) No motor-cab engaged for some future time shall remain on the stand unless the driver is willing to accept any intermediate hiring that may be offered.

(4) No disabled motor-cab shall remain on the stand.

42. No driver of a motor-cab shall—

(a) be drunk during his employment,

(b) make use of insulting or abusive language or gesture,

43. No person shall wilfully deface or injure any motor-cab.

44. (1) A single tariff shall be charged at the rate of 2 annas for every sixth of a mile. The minimum charge shall be 8 annas. The tariff shall be in force throughout the day and night within the following limits :—

Such additional charge shall be at the rate of six annas a mile,

(3) If the motor-cab is licensed for more than three passengers, and at any time during the hiring more than three passengers are carried together, the driver shall be entitled to an extra payment of six annas for every passenger above three so carried, provided that in the case of children under the age of ten years, the extra payment for each child shall be two annas only.

(4) The driver shall be entitled to a waiting charge at the rate of Re. 1-14 per hour or two annas for each four minutes, at all times during the day or night.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Minister in charge : The Hon'ble Sir S. N. Banarji, Kt.

No. 3909L.S.-G.—The 22nd August 1921.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 15 of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884 (Bengal Act III of 1884), the Government of Bengal (Ministry of Local Self-Government) are pleased to lay down the following rules in supersession of rules 19 to 25 and form C of the rules and forms for the conduct of elections of Commissioners of municipalities published under notification No. 4345M., dated the 21st November 1896. The subsequent rules shall be renumbered accordingly.

Rules.

19. The Commissioners at a meeting shall appoint a polling officer who is not himself a candidate for election to preside at the election for each ward, or, in the case of a municipality not divided into wards, at each polling centre. If the polling officer for any reason fail to attend, the Chairman shall appoint another fit and proper person, who is not himself a candidate for election, to take his place. The polling officer shall be assisted by a committee, hereinafter referred to as the election committee, consisting of not less than three and not more than five ratepayers of the ward, nominated by the Commissioners at a meeting and not themselves candidates for election. If any member of such committee fail to attend, his place may be taken by another ratepayer, not being himself a candidate for election, selected by the polling officer.

20. On the morning of the election day the polling officer shall be supplied with a sealed ballot box provided with an aperture for receipt of voting papers, a copy of Register A, and a bound book or books of voting papers serially numbered in foil and counterfoil, one voting paper for each voter entered in Register A.

21. (1) The voting paper shall be printed in Bengali or English or both, in form C annexed to these rules, and shall contain the names of all the candidates in alphabetical order.

(2) The name of any candidate, who may have withdrawn his candidature shall be removed by the polling officer on receipt of intimation of withdrawal in writing.

22. (1) On the day of the election the polling officer shall admit to the polling booth or room the candidates and such agents as may be selected by the candidates to assist in the identification of voters, provided that there shall be present at one time, in addition to the candidates, not more than one agent of each candidate.

(2) Besides candidates and their agents, only voters and such persons (if any) as may be admissible under special directions given by the polling officer shall be admitted to the polling booth or room.

23. The candidates and their agents shall not speak to or address any intending voter in the polling booth or room, but may submit to the polling officer objections to a voter on the following three grounds :—

First—That his name is not on the list of voters of the ward in respect of which the election is being held.

Second—That his claim to be a certain voter shown on the list of voters is false.

Third—That he has already voted.

24. The procedure for recording each voter's vote shall be as follows:—

(i) There shall be no voting by proxy.

(ii) As each intending voter enters the polling booth or room, his name and his number in the election roll shall be called out so that everybody present can hear them.

(iii) No objection to a voter shall be entertained except on the grounds mentioned in rule 23.

(iv) Such objection shall be summarily decided by the polling officer, who may for this purpose obtain such evidence as may be available on the spot.

(v) If after taking such evidence the polling officer is satisfied that the voter is entitled to vote, he shall hand him the foil of a voting paper and allow him to proceed to vote.

(vi) The number of the voter in the election roll shall be marked on the counterfoil of the voting paper.

(vii) The voter on receiving the voting paper shall forthwith proceed to the place set apart for the purpose, and there mark a cross for each vote that he gives against the name of the candidate or candidates for whom he intends to vote. He shall then fold the voting paper so as to conceal his vote and shall put the voting paper, so folded up, into the ballot box. He shall vote without undue delay, and shall quit the polling station as soon as he has put the voting paper into the ballot box.

(viii) If the voter is unable to read the voting paper, or to make a cross thereon, the polling officer shall mark the vote on the voting paper according to the direction of the voter. The voter shall then put the voting paper folded up into the ballot box.

25. It shall be the duty of the polling officer and the election committee to see that votes are recorded with the utmost secrecy, that only such persons as may be admitted to the polling booth or room under these rules are admitted thereto, and that persons, who have recorded their votes, or against whom objections have been heard and disposed of, leave immediately. It shall also be their duty to see that these rules and any special directions given by the polling officer thereunder are strictly observed.

26. On the conclusion of the poll the ballot box shall be opened and the votes counted in the presence of the candidates or their agents by the polling officer with the assistance of the election committee, and the polling officer shall then and there declare the result of the election and report accordingly to the Chairman, if he is not himself the Chairman.

He shall also seal up the book of counterfoils and unused foils of voting papers and, if he is not himself the Chairman, make it over to the Chairman, who shall keep it sealed in his own custody till it is destroyed under rule 31.

27. Any voting paper which is not duly marked, or on which more than one cross is placed against any candidate's name, or on which votes are given to more candidates than there are vacancies, or on which a cross (or mark) is placed in such manner as to make it doubtful to which candidate it has been given or on which any mark is made by which the voter may afterwards be identified, shall be invalid.

28. If there be an equality of votes for the same vacancy, and if the number of vacancies does not admit of all the candidates who have obtained an equality of votes being elected, the selection of one of the candidates shall be made by lot to be drawn by the polling officer in such manner as he may determine.

29. In the event of any candidate being elected for more than one ward, he shall, within five days from the date of the election, declare which ward he will represent; and if he fail to make such declaration, the Chairman shall forthwith declare the ward which such candidate shall represent, and in either case such candidate shall be held to be elected in the ward in respect of which either of such declaration has been made, and in every other ward in which the said candidate has been returned, the result of the election shall be determined as if no votes had been recorded for him:

Provided that, if there is no other candidate for whom votes have been recorded to fill the vacancy thus caused, a fresh election shall be held.

30. When the voting papers have been scrutinized and counted, they shall forthwith be replaced in the ballot box from which they were taken, and the box, after being locked and sealed with the municipal seal, shall be kept by the Chairman in safe custody.

31. On the expiry of fifteen days from the date of the declaration of the result of the election, the voting papers in the ballot box and the sealed book containing unused voting papers and counterfoils in the Chairman's custody shall be destroyed in the presence of such Municipal Commissioner or officer as the Commissioners at a meeting may appoint for this purpose.

THE SECOND SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF ASSAM, REVENUE DEPARTMENT.
THE REVENUE SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF THE CENTRAL PROVINCES, FOREST DEPARTMENT.

SIR,

With reference to the circular letter from this Department, No. 1170, dated the 17th September 1920, communicating the decision of the Secretary of State that probationers for the Imperial Forest Service should be trained at the Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun, as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made, I am directed to forward a copy of a subsequent despatch from the Secretary of State, No. 113-Revenue, dated 30th September 1920, in which, for reasons given, it is directed that the whole matter should be reconsidered.

A, September 1920, Nos. 38 38.

I am now therefore to invite a reference to chapters III and IV of annexure VIII of the Public Services Commission's Report, 1916, concerning the Forest Department, and to forward copies of relevant extracts from the papers on the subject as noted in the accompanying schedule.

2. It will be seen that the Government of India, when consulting local Governments regarding the proposals of the Public Services Commission, were inclined to favour the project of training both Indian and European recruits in India as soon as the necessary arrangements could be made at Dehra Dun, but, being subsequently convinced by the arguments adduced in the almost unanimous opposition of the local Governments to this project, they recommended to the Secretary of State that both classes of recruits should be trained at one selected University in Great Britain. The Secretary of State, however, decided that probationers both British and Indian should ordinarily be trained at Dehra Dun in future. On receipt of this decision the Government of India, after considering a note recorded on the 18th May 1920, by their Inspector-General of Forests, Sir George Hart, an extract from which is included among the papers enclosed, asked the Secretary of State to leave open the whole question temporarily. The Secretary of State declined at first to do so, but in view of a resolution unanimously adopted by the Empire Forestry Conference advocating the establishment of a central training institution, he has now asked for a full reconsideration of the whole matter and lays special emphasis on the desirability of ascertaining Indian opinion thereon. The Government of India have since received a copy of the Report of the Inter-departmental Committee on Imperial Forestry Education, which was appointed to prepare a scheme for giving effect to the resolution of the Empire Forestry Conference. It will be observed that that report does not deal specially with the subject of training for the Indian Forest Service, but, as will be shown later, its recommendations, which, in brief, contemplate a course of higher training in forestry for students who have already received preliminary education in that subject, are capable of adoption whether the preliminary education be given in England or in India.

3. The various proposals regarding the training of probationers for the Imperial Forest Service may be summarised as follows :—

(i) Training in England and on the Continent for both classes of recruit, i.e., British and Indian, as at present.

(ii) Training at Dehra Dun for both classes of recruit with subsequent visits to Continental forests. This is the scheme adopted by the Secretary of State before he recently decided to have the whole matter considered afresh.

(iii) Selection in England and India of recruits who have already undergone a preliminary education in forestry in England and India respectively, and higher training in England and Europe of all recruits together for one year at a central institution. This represents the method by which the recommendations of the Inter-departmental Committee would be applied to recruitment for India.

4. The present system.—Selection in England (60 per cent.) and in India (40 per cent.). Candidates in England required to possess an honours degree in science; those in India a first class degree of any Indian University in any subject. Candidates in India are required to pass a qualifying examination in English, Mathematics and two Science subjects, the standard of the examination in the latter being that of the honours science degree of the Madras University. Training in England for two years at either Oxford, Cambridge or Edinburgh University, the choice of University being left to the probationer. During the practical course of instruction the students are all together. Probationers are not finally appointed as members of the Forest Service until they join their appointments in India. The cost of this method is about £450 per candidate (a stipend of £200 per annum is given to each), but in addition those selected in England are given a free passage to India and those selected in India are given free passages to England and back.

5. The Dehra Dun scheme.—Adopted by the Secretary of State in his Despatch No. 14-Revenue, dated the 12th February 1920. Selection and qualifications as at present. Training for both classes of probationers at Dehra Dun. Practical instruction in European forestry to be arranged for by requiring that after three to six years' service officers should spend a short period in European forests. Probationers appointed in England to become members of the Forest Service at once and, when confirmed, to count service for pay, promotion and pension, from date of arrival in India to commence training. Owing to paying the students during their course of instruction and to the necessity of providing at Dehra Dun a properly equipped educational institution and a full staff of competent teachers for auxiliary sciences as well as for forestry proper, the cost per recruit under this method is likely to be very high and is estimated, for a two years' course only, at £2,000, exclusive of the cost of travelling in India, which is bound to be expensive, and also of the cost of visits to European forests after training and a period of service in India. This method might be modified by selection at school-leaving age by examination tempered by nomination. This would necessitate a three-year course at Dehra Dun instead of a two-year course, and the expense would be almost proportionately higher.

5. The objections to training in India are fully dealt with in the papers forwarded. The proposal was met by almost unanimous and strong opposition from local Governments when it was first put forward, and local Governments' opinions are entitled to the highest consideration, since it is they who will pay and employ the staff recruited. The principal objections may be summarized here. They are :—

(i) Indian forests do not and cannot, for many years to come, possess the educational value which has been claimed for them by the Secretary of State ; with the exception of small areas of artificial plantations India does not possess any forests such as exist in France, and other continental countries besides Germany, which exhibit the results of continuous scientific management over long periods of time.

(ii) Indian officers trained in England, in addition to the general advantages which must result from sojourn at an English University, acquire a status which they could not secure if trained in India.

(iii) The social assimilation of Indian and British recruits will be more easily secured in England than in India, however short the period of joint training may be

(iv) The general atmosphere of India is not the best place for British adolescence ; while, moreover, the general education, as opposed to the purely training side of the question, obtainable at a British University is incontestably more likely to fit a British, and for that matter, an Indian recruit, for his duties of administration later, than training at a specialized institution in India.

(v) The cost of training in India must greatly exceed that of training in England.

Against the disadvantages which may be urged it must not, however, be forgotten that may Indians would prefer their sons to be trained where some degree of parental supervision could be exercised, and that there may be advantage to the Government of India in having the training of probationers under their direct control. It must also be remembered that the deficiency in India of large forest areas which exhibit the results of continuous management over long periods of time is an argument that may be pushed too far, inasmuch as it must mean that, if such areas are a necessary complement of an institute for higher training in forestry, India can never be equipped with such an institute within a reasonably short period of time. Further the defect might be cured by sending young officers to the Continent for a short period, in the same way as it may be necessary or desirable to send them to America for training as forest engineers. Finally I am to invite attention to the following passage in paragraph 9 of the Secretary of State's Despatch No. 14-Rev., dated the 12th February 1920, in which he sets forth his reasons for preferring this scheme :—

"I am entirely in accord with the opinion that the joint training of European and Indian recruits at one centre is essential ; but the practical difficulties in securing this in England are so great that I see no alternative to the immediate selection of Dehra Dun as the training centre. For many reasons it would probably be impossible to train the Indian Forest Service probationers at one institution in England ; and, if training there were decided upon, the students would necessarily be distributed, according to their choice, among three or more Universities. The conditions which Your Excellency's Government and I regard as essential could not, therefore, be fulfilled. I have considered the question of establishing a Forest College for India, analogous to Cooper's Hill ; but such a scheme would be very costly, and it would, I consider, be unjustifiable unless the proposal to train at Dehra Dun were definitely abandoned. Training at Dehra Dun offers, however, certain advantages which as you recognise are so important that the definite abandonment of that proposal would clearly be inadvisable. The position as regards training in England has also changed materially as a result of the war ; it will be impracticable for many years to come to utilise the German forests as a training ground, and I am advised that this will withdraw one of the most valuable of the educative elements in the system of training hitherto in force here. There are no forests in the United Kingdom suitable for the more advanced practical instruction of the probationers, and the forests of France and Switzerland are probably less useful as a training field than the Indian forests. Officers trained at Dehra Dun could be taught their practical work in the provincial forests, where their theoretical instruction would afterwards be applied in practice. While these considerations point to Dehra Dun as the most suitable centre from the point of view of the existence of an adequate training ground, the facilities for theoretical instruction, and particularly for instruction in the practical management of forests, are also superior to those now obtainable in England The decision to maintain the existing age limits substantially unaltered will remove the objection that Dehra Dun might prove an undesirable centre for English youths of 18 to 20; and Indian parents will, I anticipate, welcome an arrangement which will admit of the continuance of parental supervision and control over their sons during the period of training.

"For these reasons I have decided that probationers for the Indian Forest Service will ordinarily be trained at Dehra Dun in future, and I desire that Your Excellency's Government will now take steps to give effect to this decision at the earliest possible date. In a few exceptional cases, where probationers of unusual scientific ability or attainments are recruited, it may be desirable to arrange for their training in Europe with the object of qualifying them for research work, or for appointments which demand a high degree of scientific knowledge and skill. Future recruits to the Indian Forest Service will have no practical experience of European systems of forest administration; and as that experience has proved valuable in the past, it will be desirable to supplement the course of training at Dehra Dun by a short period spent in the Continental forest. I suggest that this should be arranged when the officer has from three to six years' practical experience in India, and leave it to Your Excellency's Government to settle the details of the scheme. Study leave might be granted for the purpose; but whatever system be adopted, I hope that every directly recruited officer of the Indian Forest Service will ordinarily be required to spend at least six months in studying Continental systems of forestry before he has completed six years' service in India."

6 The scheme of the Inter-departmental Committee.—The receipt of the Report of Lord Clinton's Inter-departmental Committee may lead to a revision of previous opinions on this important subject. At the British Empire Forestry Conference held in England in 1920, it was brought to notice that whereas the Empire contains 1,200,000,000 acres of forest land; the possibilities of the development of which are very great indeed, there exists within the Empire no institution for the higher training of forest officers. The conference therefore considered that a central institution of this kind was essential, and, as a result, the Inter-departmental Committee was appointed and has made its recommendations. After visiting the Universities in Great Britain the Committee, in view of the amount of education in forestry, up to the standard of the present Imperial Forest Service training, already being provided for, has not felt justified in disregarding it altogether or in recommending that all forestry education be confined to a central institution, but has recommended that the functions of the central institution should be confined to giving an advanced course of training to men who have already received the education in forestry which the Universities provide. The preliminary education, the Committee considers, should be up to the standard required at present, the Universities co-operating in a joint scheme to ensure as nearly as possible a common standard, while a central institution should be formed at Oxford for the higher training of those who have undergone the education in forestry obtainable at the Universites. The consensus of evidence before the Committee appears to have justified the belief that forestry education in England has reached a stage which will provide an ample field for the selection of candidates for the various forest services of the Empire, and it was urged to the Committee that the selection of candidates from among those who had completed a prior education in forestry would possess the following advantages:—

(i) Candidates appointed as probationers would ordinarily commence their service two, and in some cases three, years earlier than they are able to do at present.

(ii) The Governments concerned would not have to bear the cost of the preliminary education, which the students themselves will have acquired by taking the forestry course at the Universities. At present the only qualification for a probationership in the Indian Forest Service is the possession of an honours degree in science, and the Government of India have at present to bear the cost of providing a training in forestry.

(iii) The Services will obtain better officers. The evidence received by the Committee justified the conclusion that young men who have taken up and persisted in the study of forestry from an earlier age, and at their own expense, will have done so because it appealed to them and that they are more likely to be interested in their profession than men who have primarily devoted themselves to the study of science, especially since the best science graduates are attracted by openings other than those to be found in forestry. In short, the argument is that the man who has taken up the study of forestry with a view to making it his profession is likely to do better than one who has adopted it later in life as an after-thought and after acquiring a bias for a particular science.

7. The course of higher training at the Central Institution would last for one year, and the proposal thus involves the selection of probationers from among men who have already received, at their own expense, an approved vocational education in forestry and their subsequent higher training, at the expense of Government, for one year at the Central Institution. The cost of this training would be approximately £450 per probationer exclusive of passages.

8. It is evident that if this scheme is adopted, provision must be made in India for a course of education in forestry so as to enable Indian students to obtain, before selection for training at the Central Institution, a qualification equivalent to the forestry diploma or degree obtainable at the British Universities. It would be necessary to replace the existing Provincial Forest Service course at Dehra Dun by one which would extend to three years, so far as possible up to the standard of the diploma of forestry at Oxford. Since the Forest Research Institute at Dehra Dun is a Government institution of a limited capacity it would be necessary to limit, both on account of the difficulty of training more than a certain number of students and because it would not be sound to train more students than the number likely to obtain employment, the number of students admitted, and entry to the course might be by selection and nomination by local Governments at school-leaving age after a qualifying examination in English, Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry up to the standard of the Oxford matriculation. The aim would be to secure a vocational training at school-leaving age in place of a post-graduate training. On the completion of a three years' course the number of probationers for the Imperial Service required for that year might be selected by the Government of India; the candidates obtaining the diploma but not selected for the Imperial Forest Service would obtain appointments in the Provincial Service, service in which would render them eligible for promotion to the Imperial Forest Service in the listed appointments. The Indian probationers would be sent to England and would, together with those selected in England, undergo three year's higher training at the Central Institution. It is estimated that under this arrangement the cost of an Indian recruit would amount to about £1,500 exclusive of travelling expenses and that of a British recruit to £450. The extra cost of the Indian recruit would be on account of the cost of establishing and maintaining the vocational course of forestry up to the required standard at Dehra Dun, for though it will be expected of students to maintain themselves while at Dehra Dun, it is not proposed to charge them fees for tuition.

9. This scheme, though expensive as compared with the present system of obtaining and training Indian recruits, will be less expensive than that of concentrating all forest training of recruits, both British and Indian, at Dehra Dun. In the case of British recruits the expenditure involved will certainly be far smaller, while for Indian recruits the scheme provides that the greater part of their education in forestry shall be given in India, and gives them the benefits which a year's subsequent training in Europe cannot fail to confer.

10. The cost of £2,000 and £1,500 for probationers, as roughly estimated in paragraphs 5 and 8, respectively, of this letter may appear to be a deterrent factor in considering the schemes there discussed, but it must be remembered that the provinces will probably in any event be asked to face large expenditure if they desire to continue the practice of having their candidates for the Provincial Service trained at Dehra Dun. The scheme for the enlargement of the Research Institute includes the project of removing the Forest College to a new site, and new buildings, lecture rooms, hostels, laboratories and so forth will have to be built. The cost of erecting these must be a basis for calculating the charges to be made to local Governments for training their candidates for the Provincial Service, and in addition there will be the cost of the teaching staff and other expenditure. There will be no great difference in the cost of erecting and maintaining the necessary institution, whether it be for Provincial Service candidates only or for Imperial Service candidates as well, and since probably less than one-fourth of the men trained at Dehra Dun will be afterwards members of the Imperial Service, the bulk of the cost of maintaining the training institution (including interest on capital expenditure) will have to be recovered as charges for training Provincial Service men, and the extra cost of training an Imperial Service, as opposed to a Provincial Service, officer will not be great.

11. As has been said above, the Secretary of State is particularly desirous of ascertaining how the whole question is regarded by Indians. I am therefore to request that steps may be taken to obtain expressions of Indian opinion, both official and non-official, and that these may be forwarded to the Government of India together with the views of the local Government with as little delay as possible.

16. If, as the Government of India consider most desirable, Indian and European recruits are to be trained together, the choice lies between (a) sending the Indian recruits to England to be there trained with the European recruits, and (b) bringing the European recruits out to India to be trained with the Indian recruits at Dehra Dun as soon as arrangements can be made to institute the advanced course advocated by the Commission. In the former case, or if separate training for European recruits maintained in England, and these recruits are selected at the school-leaving age, the Government of India are inclined to agree with Sir Frank Sly that the training should be carried out at one centre and should not be distributed over two or more institutions as at present.

17. The Governor-General in Council fully recognizes the fact that apart from climatic and other considerations there are obvious advantages in training in England where much greater opportunities are available for thorough instruction in the auxiliary subjects while the students would be able to spend a part of the course in forests on the continent of Europe which have been under systematic management for centuries. If arrangements could be made to send all recruits for the Imperial Service, both Indians and Europeans, to one training centre in the United Kingdom where the special subjects necessary for Indian forest officers were certain to be properly provided for, the Government of India might be willing to accept the suggestion that Indian recruits should be sent to England for training. On the other hand, there are considerations which make it advisable that young Indians should be trained in their own country if possible, while it is obviously desirable that the Indian Empire, with greater forest resources than any other portion of the British Empire, excepting possibly Canada, should be in a position to provide training in scientific forestry up to the highest standard: moreover, such an institution would perhaps be more likely to attract men for training from other parts of the Empire, such as South Africa, Australia and Ceylon, than would a forest college in England.

There can, the Government of India think, be little doubt that the pure forestry subjects can be taught at least as well in India as in England, provided that sufficient acquaintance with examples of highly organized forest management, such as are met with only on the continent of Europe, is given before the completion of the course. Again, forest engineering and surveying, the former of which has always, and the latter has recently, been taught only to a very limited and admittedly insufficient extent, can certainly be dealt with better in India than in England under present conditions: while there is no reason why botany, zoology, organic chemistry and geology should not be provided for in India to the extent that is necessary: sufficient acquaintance with physiography, inorganic chemistry and physics would be insured by the competitive examination proposed.

18. On a consideration of all the factors in the case, the Government of India are inclined to favour the project of training both Indian and European recruits in India as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made at Dehra Dun. The scheme which, as at present advised, they are disposed to recommend is that the course in India should commence about November and end in March, two years and three or four months later: and that, from April to November following the completion of the course, the students should visit England, and the continent of Europe, partly on leave and partly on a tour to selected continental forest centres. They recognize that this scheme has certain unavoidable disadvantages, particularly in the case of European recruits, as regards climate and the age at which they would be brought out to India in the first instance. His Excellency the Governor General in Council thinks, however, that the former of those disadvantages could be to some extent mitigated by a suitable arrangement of the touring and lecture terms, while he regards the proposed return to Europe within some 2½ years of the time of recruitment as likely to reduce these disadvantages and to attract a good class of recruits. It is recognised that the training of all recruits in India is likely to be no more economical than either of the other alternatives mentioned, as it will necessitate the payment by Government of additional passages to and from England, and will involve extra expenditure on travelling and on stipends to the students sufficient to cover the cost of living throughout the whole course of training. It is thought, however, that in view of the great desirability of training both classes of recruits together and of the other considerations mentioned above, it may be found worth while to face this expenditure. I am to add that as conditions of service in the Forest Department make it difficult to adhere strictly to caste restrictions, and, as the visit to Europe, during which adherence to these restrictions would be impossible, is an essential portion of the training, it has been suggested that throughout the course Indian and English students should be required to live and mess together. As such daily association would tend to the attainment to a proper spirit of camaraderie and to the encouragement of esprit de corps, it is perhaps justifiable to hope that Indian public opinion would acquiesce in this arrangement, but the Government of India would be glad of the opinion of local Governments on the question.

6. Paragraphs 12, 16, 17 and 18. Training of recruits.—The Government concur in the views of the Government of India that it is essential that both Indian and European recruits for the Imperial Service should be trained in the same institution or centre.

They have carefully considered the question whether such training should be in India or in England and have come to the conclusion that the training should be in England, preferably at Oxford University. This conclusion is in accord with the views of the committee of forest officers referred to in paragraph 1 above. In the opinion of this Government the advantages of training in England far outweigh the objections to it. As regards the attainment of a proper spirit of camaraderie and the encouragement of esprit de corps referred to by the Government of India in paragraph 18 of Mr. McKenna's letter under reply, the Government doubt whether students of different races would, in India, mix out of class hours to the extent necessary to foster this spirit and consider that the assimilation of Indian and European recruits aimed at by the Government of India can be obtained only if the training is carried out in England.

Regarding the training of candidates for the Provincial Service, the Government of India's conclusion that Provincial officers should be trained separately from the Imperial Service probationers, is in accord with the views of this Government; otherwise in a joint institution one class might look down on the other and resentment would follow. To avoid this and the possibility of heart-burning and discontent among Provincial Service officers, this Government consider that in no circumstance should the two classes of officers be trained in the same institution or centre.

(1) Extract from the report of the Forest Departmental Committee on the Government of India's Circular No. 663-Forest, dated the 29th October 1918.

Paragraphs 16, 17 and 18 dealing with the question of the combined training of the Imperial Service recruits.—The Public Services Commission

proposes separate training for Indian and English recruits and the question discussed in the above paragraphs by the Government of India were for the most part not considered. The Government of India consider that pure forestry subjects can be taught at least as well in India as in England, provided that acquaintance with examples of highly organized forest management, only available on the continent of Europe, be given before the completion of the course. For these and for some less important reasons, while recognising certain inevitable disadvantages, they recommend that all recruits should be trained in India and should complete their training by a visit to certain forests in Europe.

Mr. Venkataramana Ayyar states that the opinion of the Provincial Forest Service is probably in favour of training in India, but that this view should be considerably modified if it be decided that Imperial recruits, whether recruited in India or in England, shall be paid on the same scale. His own opinion and that of the rest of the Committee is strongly in favour of training in England and there is no doubt that this is the unanimous view of the Imperial Branch.

The Committee does not think that pure forestry can be taught as well in India as in England. In the first place, all the best text-books and forest literature are based on European practice and can only be assimilated thoroughly by a study of European example. The illustrations available in India are incomplete and so scattered as to render examination of them difficult without considerable expense and loss of time, nor in India has there yet been sufficient progress for the result of Indian system of forest management to be followed to the end.

In Europe, on the other hand, such matters can be studied with facility and principles can be demonstrated by the results of the adoption of any practice. The great variety of Indian forest species and the little that is at present known of them, compared with the mass of information regarding the strictly limited number of European species, renders it difficult to teach the principles of forestry so well in India as in England. This applies particularly to question of soil valuation, assessment values and all the higher points of forestry.

In brief, the Committee considers that the developments of the forests in India is as yet insufficient to make it so valuable a country for training as Europe, while the forest problems in India are so complicated compared to those in Europe, as to make their study during training more confusing than educating.

Reasons applied to the assimilation of teaching apply to the teaching itself and teaching in India is bound to be handicapped by the local conditions.

It is stated that the subject of Forest Engineering and Survey can certainly be dealt with better in India than in England. This Committee is unable to agree that this is the case so far as theoretical knowledge is concerned, while any deficiency in practical training can be easily supplied by a short course in India. With regard to such allied subjects as Botany, Zoology, Organic Chemistry and Geology, facilities of teaching at Dehra Dun cannot be compared to those available at an English University.

Apart from the teaching side of the question, there are other and even stronger reasons for the preference of Europe as a training ground. It has been agreed that a proper assimilation of Indian and European recruits can only be obtained if they are trained at a single institution. Clearly this assimilation would be more complete if the training is conducted at an English centre and the Committee would go so far as to affirm that the attainment of a proper spirit of camaraderie and esprit de corps can only be obtained if the training is carried out in England. In India it is to be feared that the students of different races would not mix out of class hours to an extent necessary to foster this spirit.

Another argument which the Committee would like to emphasize is that Indians who have been educated in England will always command a higher prestige than those who have not, and that this is a very important matter in regard to their position vis-a-vis the Provincial Service in respect of discipline and similar matters.

The disadvantage of the training in England from the Indian point of view is the introduction of students to a new country at an age when they may not be able to stand alone; but it is to be remembered that they will be going to a regular institution where their interests can be safeguarded and that they will not be left to their own resources while in search of a career.

From the English point of view there would seem to be almost insuperable difficulties about a training in India. The field of choice will be greatly reduced for it is unlikely that many parents will consent to send their sons to be trained in India at so early an age as 19 with no certainty that they will ultimately obtain employment; and even if sufficient recruits could be found it seems almost certain that they would not be of the standard required.

For these and other reasons the Committee considers that the training of those recruited in England as well as those recruited in India should be at one institution in England; and further it is considered advisable that that institution should be the University of Oxford where there is already a School of Forestry which can be suitably extended, where a tradition of education for the Indian Services already exists.

(II) Extract paragraph 11 from the proceedings of the Board of Revenue (Land Revenue), Forest Mis. No 648, dated the 27th December 1918.

11. Paragraphs 16, 17, and 18 (see also paragraph 12 above)—Combined training of the Imperial Service Recruits.—This is perhaps the most important, also the most controversial, of the questions raised in the Government of India's reference. The case in favour of training all the Imperial Service recruits together seems conclusive, and the arguments in favour of having such training in Europe at a single institution, preferably the University of Oxford, have been very emphatically put by the Committee. The attention of the Government is also drawn to the minute by Mr. F G. Sly, printed at pages 154 and 155 of the Public Services Commission's report, where the same recommendation is made on much the same ground.

It seems clear from the arguments advanced by the Committee that for a considerable period (given as a generation by Mr. F. G. Sly) the training at Dehra Dun or any other Indian institution is unlikely to be as efficient as the training procurable in Europe, and the Government of India have stated that it will be no less expensive. If, therefore, the efficiency of the training is to be the paramount consideration, the Board considers that the Committee's view should be accepted.

It is, however, possible that the question ought not to be decided on this ground alone and that the training in India, if less efficient, can be made good enough.

The Board does not think the difficulties about joint training at Dehra Dun are necessarily insuperable. The Committee's criticisms are dealt with below:—

(1) The superior efficiency attainable at an European Institution.—This has already been dealt with above.

(2) The superior suitability of European forests as a training ground.—This is doubtless undeniable, but it may be remarked that this applies, the Board believes, to continental forests and not to English forests accessible from Oxford or any other English institution, and that the Government of India's proposals include a period of training in continental forests.

(3) The undesirability of bringing European candidates out to India at so early an age as 19.—The objection is hardly conclusive, since the members of the Police Service have been recruited at about that age for many years past. Also the climate in which these candidates would pass most of their training would not be that of the plains of India.

The Board, however, agrees that a practical certainty of their sons' obtaining an appointment at the end of their probation is essential in order to induce parents to send their sons to India at school-leaving age. Probably in any event the risk of any of them failing to qualify at the end of their training would be slight, but it would be necessary on the system proposed to guarantee an appointment, short of actual misconduct.

(4) The Committee emphasizes very strongly the desirability of encouraging a spirit of camaraderie and esprit de corps and considers that the communal life which should foster the spirit can only be led in England. As regards joint messing and the like, the Board agree that conditions which are possible in Europe could not be observed in such an institution as Dehra Dun. Apart from obvious difficulties, the readiness to adopt, at least temporarily, English social habits, which results almost compulsorily from a prolonged visit to Europe, could not be induced by the mere passage of an Indian student from his home to such an institution as Dehra Dun.

The Board, however, does not attach the same importance as the Committee to this fusion of social habit, and considers that it would be a mistake to attempt it in Dehra Dun. It ought to be possible for the students of both races to work together in good fellowship without forcing them into hourly contact so close as that which the Government of India's proposals imply. The Board doubts whether in any institution such intimacy of daily habit would be agreeable to either class, and thinks that, if not agreeable, it would probably produce the effect opposite to that desired.

Extract paragraphs 6-7 from Bombay Government's letter No. 1953, dated the 25th February 1919.

6. Paragraph 16 of the letter.—The Governor in Council considers that the training should be confined to one centre and should not be distributed over two or more institutions. The dispersion of the students among a number of different training centres will militate seriously against the formation of that mutual understanding and companionship between the candidates of the two races which it is essential to promote.

7. Paragraphs 17 and 18 of the letter.—According to the suggestion advanced by the Government of India, the European selected candidates, who will be of school-leaving age, will be brought out to India for training for a period of two years, will then be sent back to Europe for a short period of further training and will finally be brought out for service in India. Such a scheme appears to the Governor in Council to be open to grave objections, for which the supposed advantage of adapting the course of training to the convenience of the Indian candidates offers an altogether inadequate compensation. It appears to disregard the fact that, whereas the Indian youth will, generally speaking, benefit physically, intellectually and morally by a course of training in European surroundings under proper supervision and with adequate safeguards, a stay of some two years in India at an important stage of his physical and mental development is calculated to be highly detrimental to the average English youth and would be the worst possible preparation for a service in which a high standard of physical fitness and activity is required. The adoption of a preponderatingly Indian course of training would inevitably have the effect of seriously limiting the field of recruitment and of lowering the standard of recruits. The English candidates are likely to be seriously unsettled by their short stay at home after their two years' stay in India, and may acquire a distaste for their prospective career in India. On the other hand the Indian candidates will not have time to adapt themselves to the new conditions and profit by the benefits which the influence of European surroundings is calculated to confer. The difficulty of amalgamating the two classes of students will moreover be considerably enhanced if the first contact between them takes place in India. Apart from these considerations, there is the important question of the relative facilities for training obtainable in Europe and India, respectively. To the Governor in Council it appears unquestionable that for many years to come the latter must necessarily be greatly inferior. The Governor in Council considers that during their period of training candidates should be in receipt of a stipend sufficient to meet a reasonable proportion of their personal expenditure. In the case of the Indian candidates the rate of this stipend might appropriately be fixed at a somewhat higher figure than in the case of the European candidates, and free passages to and from Europe should also be provided.

II.—METHOD OF RECRUITMENT FOR THE IMPERIAL SERVICE.

8. Paragraph 11 of your letter has already been dealt with. The points dealt with in paragraphs 12—18 largely hang together. The Commission have recommended that candidates for the Imperial Service, when recruited in Europe, should continue to be recruited in the same way as at present, namely, from candidates who have obtained a degree with honours in some branch of Natural Science or have passed the Final B.Sc. examination in pure Science, preference being given to candidates who have already had some training in forestry. They also recommend that as the Forest Schools of Great Britain develop the practice should be introduced of recruiting ready trained foresters who can be sent out without undergoing a term of probationary training in Great Britain. As regards recruitment in India, the Commission, subject to a modification in paragraph 5 of the annexure, recommend that the selection should be made from candidates possessing the degree of B.Sc. who have been trained at the Dehra Dun College in an advanced course, which it is proposed should be instituted up to the highest European standard, provided that in the opinion of an expert committee, duly qualified candidates are available for appointment and on condition that it will be open to the Government of India to send them for a course of practical training in European forests at any time during their career. I am to explain at the outset that His Excellency adheres to these proposals.

9. The Government of India have, on the other hand, suggested a scheme according to which recruitment both in England and in India should be made at the school-leaving age by a competitive examination; both sets of recruits should be trained together at the College at Dehra Dun for about two and a half years with a subsequent tour in England and on the continent. This scheme is, however, so experimental, so entirely different from that proposed by the Public Services Commission and discards so much of what is good in the present system that His Excellency the Governor in Council regrets that he cannot accept it as a practical solution of the problem. It is based on the hypothetical advantage of the association of Indians and Europeans at one college. To attain this, the joint training must be either in India or England. That it is impracticable to send Indian recruits to England is clear, if only for the reason that past experience does not justify the expectation that, given opportunities for instruction in England, they will proceed there in sufficient numbers. There remains therefore only the other alternative of a joint training at a higher grade college at Dehra Dun. But His Excellency in Council considers that there are several cogent reasons why Europeans should not be trained in India for the Forest Service:

(1) The college at Dehra Dun for the training of the Imperial Forest Service has not yet been established. It is true that in paragraph 17 of your letter reasons have been given for believing that arrangements for such a college are possible. This Government are, however, disposed to agree with Sir Murray Hammick and Sir Valentine Chirol that it is unlikely that the higher grade college at Dehra Dun can be developed up to the highest European standard sufficiently quickly.

The reasons which both they and His Excellency advanced in their notes of dissent against the too rapid recruitment of Indians for the Imperial Service, until the proposed higher grade Forest College at Dehra Dun had proved its efficacy, apply with much greater force in the case of the training of Europeans. The Governor in Council, therefore, considers that no experiment with the training of Europeans ought to be made there until its efficacy, as a higher grade training college, has been definitely established.

(2) The scheme jettisons a method of selection which is securing a good type of officer and the best training available in the forest schools of Great Britain.

(3) The advantages to be gained by the joint training of Europeans and Indians at one college in India are in the opinion of this Government hypothetical. Conditions are obviously different from those of an English University or school.

(4) In view of the strides taken in afforestation in Europe and in particular owing to the deforestation caused by the war, the demand for foresters in Europe will become greater, and in consequence the Forest Schools in Britain so more efficient, that there should be no difficulty in obtaining the ready-trained forester contemplated by the Public Services Commission.

10. On the other hand, the Government of Bengal are strongly in favour of the proposal to create a higher grade college at Dehra Dun for the training of Indian recruits for the Imperial Service and they are of opinion that no considerations of expense should stand in the way of its establishment. The Governor in Council agrees with the Government of India that the training of candidates for the Imperial and Provincial Services should, if possible, be kept distinct, otherwise, however, this Government are in favour of the proposals of the Public Services Commission regarding the methods of recruitment of Indian recruits. Such proposals are a necessary corollary to the proposals regarding European recruits. Moreover, under present conditions selection is necessary in order to reconcile conflicting interests. Further, if selection is the proper method of recruitment for the Provincial Branch, as contemplated in paragraph 20 of your letter, a fortiori it would appear to be the proper method for the recruitment of Indians for the Imperial Branch.

11. In reply to the request of the Government of India in paragraph 18 of your letter for the opinion of this Government on the question whether Indian public opinion would acquiesce in the suggestion that throughout a joint course Indian and English students should be required to live and mess together, I am directed to say that, provided Indian recruits who would not object to this arrangement are forthcoming, no opposition need be expected to such an arrangement.

8. With regard to the system of training of Indian and European recruits after their admission to the service, His Honour sees very serious disadvantages in the scheme sketched out in paragraph 18 of your letter. It will be some years before arrangements can be completed for high grade instruction to be imparted at Dehra Dun. The climate of Dehra Dun during the greater part of the year is far from suitable for young Europeans. The European recruits will arrive there at an immature age before they are able to face the climatic difficulties. The proposed scheme, if carried out, is likely to result in increased mortality in the younger ranks, which apart from other considerations will be financially wasteful. Moreover, the social amenities of Dehra Dun are not of a type to be desired for British youths of under twenty. So far as Europeans are concerned, it is certain that the training at Dehra Dun will not, for a long time to come, produce the requisite stamp of men and that the men trained there will be much inferior to the University men now in the service. This will be seriously detrimental to the interests of the department and of the State, especially at a time when it is necessary that the diminishing number of Europeans in the service should possess the highest possible attainments. It may be mentioned that at paragraph 316 of the Report on Indian Constitutional Reforms it has been laid down that for the different services it will be necessary to make arrangements to send for training in England candidates selected in India. Sir Harcourt Butler is of the opinion that for some years to come European and Indian recruits should be trained together in England and that the training should be carried out at one centre. He would suggest that the Government of India should co-operate with His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom to establish a British school of forestry which will train forest officers for the whole of the Empire. With regard to the last sentence of paragraph 18 of your letter asking for the opinion of the local Government on the suggestion that Indian and English students should throughout their course of training be required to live and mess together, I am to say that Sir Harcourt Butler does not consider it necessary that any rigid rules should be laid down. He is convinced that the object which the Government of India rightly aim at will be attained without any such rules by leaving the matter to the discretion of the Indian candidates themselves.

11. Sir Michael O'Dwyer agrees with the conclusion of the Government of India stated in paragraph 16 of your letter that any training given in England should be given at one centre. If equal educational facilities existed in both countries he would be inclined to agree with the preference of the Government of India for training in India, despite the obvious drawbacks of bringing out English boys of 18 and 19 years of age. He is, however, advised that it will be impossible for some years to come to give in India the education in the principles of Forestry that is available in Europe, and that even were the instructional staff at Dehra Dun completely re-organized the absence of normal forests would for at least a generation prevent the possibility of a satisfactory course of training. I am directed to enclose copy of a note recorded by Mr. McIntosh, Conservator of Forests, which bears on this point.

2. The educational staff in India will, if recruited from the Forest Service, always be amateurs not only in education but also in their respective subjects. They will not, and cannot be expected to, have the knowledge of their respective subjects which specialists in England have. Even in a subject like pure forestry training in India will be handicapped by the recurring absence of the teacher on furlough or other leave of absence.

3. The main defect, however, in training in India lies in the absence in India of normal forests the growing of which should be the objective of the training of all forest officers. In India forest officers can be shown what they ought not to aim at but not what they should aim at. To defer the visits to normal forests until after the entire theoretical course of training has been given would be fatal, and on this ground alone the proposal to train recruits for the Imperial Service in India should be negatived.

7. The question whether recruits for the Imperial Service should be trained in England or in India is discussed in paragraphs 16 to 18 of the Government of India's letter, and they are inclined, despite the obvious advantages of training in England, to favour the project of training both Indian and European recruits in India as soon as necessary arrangements can be made at Dehra Dun. Sir Reginald Craddock ventures to record his respectful dissent from this conclusion, with particular reference to Burma. He regards training in Europe as indispensable to the maintenance of the British character of the administration, especially in the Forest Department which is brought into closer contact with the more primitive peoples of the country than any other department. In Burma as in India it is in its relations with such peoples than the British administration has attained its most conspicuous success, and it is precisely in regard to these peoples that the pre-British administration was least successful. Under the Burmese regime the Karens and Talaings were down-trodden races, despised and oppressed by their Burmese conquerors. The Shan States were never free from inter-State warfare, fostered by their Burmese overlords on the principle divide et impera. The Kachins and Chins by their constant raids depopulated the plains in the vicinity of their mountain fastnesses. The Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that so far as the technical part of the training of the Imperial Service recruits in regard to the management of Indian forests is concerned, it would be possible in time to provide at Dehra Dun a course in some respects superior to any course in Europe, but he regards this as of less importance than the general effect of a three years' residence and training in England on the mind and ideas and sympathies of the Statutory Native of Burma recruit at a very impressionable age. His Honour has not overlooked the fact that the Government of India propose, in paragraph 18 of their letter, that the students trained at Dehra Dun should visit England and the continent of Europe from April to November in the third year of their training. But a few months' visit is not sufficiently long to create the lasting impression that is essential if the British character of the administration is to continue. The Government of India suggest that throughout the course of training Indian and European students should be required to live and mess together with a view to the attainment of a proper spirit of camaraderie and the encouragement of esprit de corps. His Honour thinks that it will be much easier to obtain this close association by training in England than in India. European students are much more likely to fraternise with Indian students if the training is in England than if the training is in India. In India the Europeans will tend to keep apart from the Indians, while the latter will find it more difficult to change their customs than they would in an English environment. Moreover, the result, in Burma at any rate, of training the youthful European recruits for the Imperial Police in an eastern environment has not been so successful as to warrant the introduction of the same procedure in the case of the Imperial Forest Service. And, lastly, so far as Statutory Natives of Burma are concerned, a training at Dehra Dun involves absence from their own country just as much as a training in England.

8. To sum up—the Lieutenant-Governor is in favour of applying to Burma the proposals of Sir Frank Sly in paragraphs 3 and 4 of his minute of dissent and recommends that both European and Burman recruits for the Imperial Forest Service should be trained together at a selected University in England where arrangements should be made for a full course of scientific forestry adapted to Indian requirements. He advocates this course whatever the decision of the Government of India may be in regard to the training of students for the Imperial Forest Service in India. The adoption of a similar plan for India would facilitate the creation in England of a suitable course of instruction on the lines suggested by Sir Frank Sly, but it is probable that the rate of recruitment for the Imperial Forest Service in Burma will be sufficiently large by the time a suitable course of forest training is available at Dehra Dun to render it possible to maintain a suitable course of training at an English University for Burman students alone. In the distant day when it will be possible to recruit in Burma the full requirements of the Imperial Forest Service, the training in Europe will remain as the chief distinction between the members of the Imperial and Provincial Services.

(vi) In the matter of the training of the recruits (other than those promoted from the Provincial Service) the Hon'ble Sir Ali Imam considers that there is much to be gained by bringing together European and Indian youths in India, and he would support the provisional conclusion of the Government of India. His Honour and the other Members of the Council, however, attach much importance to the experience of the Army in this respect, which, it is understood, has shown that it is unsafe to bring British lads to India before the age of 20 at the earliest; and they believe that it would be preferable to provide for joint training at a Western university of both Indian and British recruits of the Imperial Service.

II.—METHOD OF RECRUITMENT FOR THE CLASS I BRANCH.

9. Sir Benjamin Robertson considers that in future the technical training of candidates for class I should be carried out at an expanded Dehra Dun Institute. The improvement of the facilities for higher scientific education in India is one of the main recommendations of the Industrial Commission and one which has the Chief Commissioner's fullest sympathy and he considers that the Indian public would very strongly and rightly object to any system of recruitment which neglected the opportunity of establishing a Forest Institute of the highest class in India. He realises that there is much to be said in favour of training both European and Indian recruits of class I in England and on the continent, but he thinks that these considerations must give way to the necessity of having a really first class Forest Institute in India. While it is advantageous that Forest officers should start work as young as possible, it is more important still that they should have a high scientific education before they enter Dehra Dun, and youths fresh from school would be less able to profit by the instruction given there than men who had already received such an education. Further, it must be admitted that a student of a specialised institute, who is already a probationer for an appointment, has not the same incentive to hard and thorough work as one who is studying for a degree at a University on the obtaining of which his future career must depend. Sir Benjamin Robertson, therefore, considers that European candidates should be chosen by a competitive examination, with a qualification standard, between the ages of 20 to 22. These limits of age would permit of candidates having taken such a degree as is prescribed in the Government of India's Circular letter No. 84-C., dated 2nd January 1917, but the possession of a degree need not be an essential, as the examination would exclude candidates who were not up to the mark. With the creation of direct appointments to class I in India, a point which the Chief Commissioner accepts, and with the training institutions located in India, it would seem reasonable to debar Indians from appearing for the examination in England.

* * * * *

11 The candidates thus selected in England and in India should then be put through the course of training described in paragraph 18 of the Government of India's letter, including, after two terms at Dehra Dun, a visit to England and the continent of Europe During this time they should receive a suitable maintenance allowance Sir Benjamin Robertson believed that a scheme such as this is not open to the objection, which the Imperial Service officers raise, that European parents would object to training in India.

Enclosure No. 3.

Extract from Part II (ii) of Government of India despatch No. 368, dated the 11th September 1919.

(ii) Joint or separate training, place of training, and age of recruitment for European and Indian recruits.—These questions were dealt with in paragraph 12, paragraphs 16, 17 and 18 and paragraph 13 of our circular to local Governments, but can more conveniently be treated together in this despatch.

The majority of the Commission proposed that European recruits should be trained in England and on the continent of Europe as at present, that for Indian recruits a course of training should be instituted at Dehra Dun up to the highest European standard, and that no change should be made in the age of recruitment. For the reasons given in the paragraphs of our circular quoted above, and by local Governments in their replies thereto, we are unable to support these recommendations. We regard joint training at one institution as essential in order to ensure harmonious working between the two classes of recruits and to give Indians the same opportunities as Europeans. When we issued our letter to local Governments we inclined to the view that on the whole it would probably be best to locate this joint training at Dehra Dun under the conditions detailed in paragraph 18 of our circular. But in view of the strongly adverse opinions expressed by the majority of the local Governments to the project for training European recruits in India, and their preference for sending Indian recruits to be trained in England, we have reconsidered this question and we now endorse the recommendation made by Sir Frank Sly, that both classes of recruits should be trained at one selected University in Great Britain. We still think that the scheme for joint training at Dehra Dun should be kept in view as a possible future development; but in the present circumstances we are satisfied that training in England, while obviously best for the English recruit, will not only broaden the mind of the Indian recruit, but will also afford the best chance of producing a feeling of fraternity between the two classes.

As regards the age of recruitment, there is great diversity of opinion regarding the comparative advantages and disadvantages of recruiting at the school-leaving age or deferring recruitment to a later period. Five local Governments or Administrations support our proposal for early recruitment, while four oppose it. The width of the cleavage of opinion is exemplified by a comparison between the remarks of the Governments of Madras and Bombay. The former Government considers that young Europeans should not be exposed to the unhealthy climate and conditions liable to be encountered in the Forest Department; the latter observes that men must be young in starting forest life. The arguments against early recruitment are set forth with particular force by the Government of the United Provinces in paragraph 6 of its letter, but we nevertheless adhere to our view that the balance of advantage lies on this side. We are impelled to this conclusion by the necessity, strongly emphasized by Sir Frank Sly in his minute of dissent, for a more adequate and intensive training with a view to Indian requirements than is given at present. As the development of our forests expands this necessity will correspondingly increase. We admit that there would be no need to reduce the present age limits if we could not obtain ready made foresters, trained as we require for India from British forest schools. This, however, is not possible at present and may not be possible for a long time to come. Apart from special subjects, such as the botany of Indian trees, it is desirable that our recruits should know more of forest engineering, surveying and utilization generally, and should see more of continental forests during the period of their training, than is likely to be considered necessary for the practice of forestry in Great Britain. Again, although we recognise that the present method of recruitment has given us a thoroughly satisfactory type of officer, we know that many of these men are very far from being contented with their prospects, and they are disheartened by the late age which they must attain before they can hope to reach the administrative grades. There are few side-lines of work in the forest service in India to break the monotony of long and continuous service in a division. On the whole therefore we recommend that the age limit for Europeans be fixed at 18—20. For Indians recruited in this country we would allow an extra year, thus putting the limits at 18—21, because the Indian boy of 18—20, having to master a foreign language before he can commence his higher education, is admittedly behind the English youth of the same age, particularly in science subjects. If however, Indians seek entry to the service in England, a course which we would leave open to them, they should be subjected to the age limits imposed on British recruits.

As regards the place of training in England, it appears to us that unless the training is concentrated at one institution it will be impossible to provide properly for the particular requirements of our forest service which we have mentioned above, while the maintenance of the same standard of training with a small number of recruits distributed over several centres offers obvious difficulties. Moreover, the concentration of the Indian recruits at a residential institution is necessary to ensure supervision over their work and conduct, a matter on which the Indian parent is likely to require definite assurance, while constant association with the contemporary British recruits throughout the course will enable the Indian recruit to become imbued with the traditions of the service and to cultivate a friendly and intimate relationship with the men with whom he will serve on an equality in India. If these suggestions commend themselves to you we would concentrate on the University of Oxford, at which the majority and the best of our recruits of recent years have been trained. We understand that the authorities of this University have recently instituted a degree in Forestry, in addition to the diploma, and we consider that it would be suitable if the probationers of our Forest Service were required to take both the diploma and the degree as a condition of appointment, with the addition of courses in the special subjects mentioned above. We believe that this could be done in three years and that visits to continental forests could be arranged for during the University vacations.

9. Your Excellency's Government attach special importance to the joint training of European and Indian recruits at one institution as essential to ensure harmonious working, and to give Indians the same opportunities as Europeans. With this object in view, you were inclined to think that the balance of advantage lay in training both classes of recruits at Dehra Dun, and though as a result of your decision to recommend recruitment at the school-leaving age, you no longer desire to urge that proposal, you still consider that the scheme for joint training there should be kept in view as a possible future development. I am entirely in accord with the opinion that the joint training of European and Indian recruits at one centre is essential; but the practical difficulties in securing this in England are so great that I see no alternative to the immediate selection of Dehra Dun as the training centre. For many reasons it would probably be impossible to train the Indian Forest Service probationers at one institution in England; and, if training there were decided upon, the students would necessarily be distributed, according to their choice, among three or more Universities. The conditions which Your Excellency's Government and I regard as essential could not, therefore, be fulfilled. I have considered the question of establishing a Forest College for India, and analogous to Cooper's Hill; but such a scheme would be very costly, and it would, I consider, be unjustifiable unless the proposal to train at Dehra Dun were definitely abandoned. Training at Dehra Dun offers, however, certain advantages which, as you recognise, are so important that the definite abandonment of that proposal would clearly be inadvisable. The position as regards training in England has also changed materially as a result of the war: it will be impracticable for many years to come to utilise the German forests as a training ground, and I am advised that this will withdraw one of the most valuable of the educative elements in the system of training hitherto in force here. There are no forests in the United Kingdom suitable for the more advanced practical instruction of the probationers, and the forests of France and Switzerland are probably less useful as a training field than the Indian forests. Officers trained at Dehra Dun could be taught their practical work in the Provincial forests where their theoretical instruction would afterwards be applied in practice. While these considerations point to Dehra Dun as the most suitable centre from the point of view of the existence of an adequate training ground, the facilities for theoretical instruction, and particularly for instruction in the practical management of forests, are also superior to those now obtainable in England. The decision to maintain the existing age-limits substantially unaltered will remove the objection that Dehra Dun might prove an undesirable centre for English youths of 18 to 20; and Indian parents will, I anticipate, welcome an arrangement which will admit of the continuance of parental supervision and control over their sons during the period of training.

For these reasons I have decided that probationers for the Indian Forest Service will ordinarily be trained at Dehra Dun in future, and I desire that Your Excellency's Government will now take steps to give effect to this decision at the earliest possible date. In a few exceptional cases, where probationers of unusual scientific ability or attainments are recruited, it may be desirable to arrange for their training in Europe with the object of qualifying them for research work, or for appointments which demand a high degree of scientific knowledge and skill. Future recruits to the Indian Forest Service will have no practical experience of European systems of forest administration; and as that experience has proved valuable in the past, it will be desirable to supplement the course of training at Dehra Dun by a short period spent in the continental forests. I suggest that this should be arranged when the officer has from three to six years' practical experience in India, and leave it to Your Excellency's Government to settle the details of the scheme. Study leave might be granted for the purpose; but whatever system be adopted, I hope that every directly recruited officer of the Indian Forest Service will ordinarily be required to spend at least six months in studying continental systems of forestry before he has completed six years' service in India.

6. Training.—In 11 (ii) of our despatch we stated that we regarded joint training of European and Indian recruits at one institution as essential and we recommended that both classes of recruits should be trained at one selected University in Great Britain. We admitted that the scheme for joint training at Dehra Dun should be kept in mind as a possible future development; but we expressed ourselves as satisfied that in the present circumstances training in England, while obviously best for the English recruit, would not only broaden the mind of the Indian recruit, but would also afford the best chance of producing a feeling of fraternity between the the two classes. As regards the place of training we urged that unless the training was concentrated at one institution it would be impossible to provide properly for the particular requirements of the Indian Forest Service and that the maintenance of the same standard of training with a small number of recruits distributed over several centres offered obvious difficulties. For these reasons we then suggested concentration on the University of Oxford.

7. In paragraph 9 of his despatch the Secretary of State agreed that joint training at one centre was essential, but said that the practical difficulties in securing this in England were so great that they saw no alternative to the immediate selection of Dehra Dun as the training centre. He added that for many reasons it would probably be impossible to train the probationers at one institution in England and that therefore the students would have to be distributed, according to their choice, among three or more Universities, thus making it impossible to fulfil the condition which we regarded as essential. He said, too, that he had considered the question of establishing a Forest College for India, analogous to Cooper's Hill, but that apart from the question of expense such a scheme would be unjustifiable unless the proposal to train at Dehra Dun was definitely abandoned. He went on to enumerate what he considered the advantages of training at Dehra Dun and, after referring to the change in the position as regards training in England caused by the war, and giving his opinion that Indian parents were likely to welcome an arrangement which would admit of the continuance of parental supervision and control during the period of training, he stated his decision that probationers should ordinarily be trained at Dehra Dun in future and desired that the Government of India should take steps to give effect to this decision at the earliest possible date.

8. I venture to urge that before proceeding to draw up the detailed scheme asked for by the Secretary of State in paragraph 10 of his despatch we should make a final effort to obtain reconsideration of the orders passed.

9. As regards the arguments used by the Secretary of State in paragraph 9 of his despatch the necessity for training both classes of recruits at one centre and, if possible, at one institution, may be upheld, while it may be admitted also that the establishment of a Forest College for India, analogous to Cooper's Hill, would certainly involve heavy expense owing to the comparatively small number of recruits required annually: but it may be urged that these considerations would not necessarily bar the establishment of such a college for the Empire as a whole, to be located, either at the British University, preferably Oxford, in which case it would enjoy the attributes of an affiliated college and would develop both for Indians and Englishmen alike precisely that kind of joint espirit de corps which is desired, or to be established separately without connection with any University. It may be said that with the development of Forestry in the United Kingdom and a similar movement known to be in progress in the Colonies and the Dominions, there is some reason to hope that a central institute for the Empire is a desideratum to which all its larger components would subscribe.

10. The past utility of the German forests as a training ground and the fact that there are no forests in the United Kingdom suitable for the more advanced practical instruction of the probationers, may be admitted also. It should be stated, however, that for many years previous to 1885, when the forest probationers were first sent to Cooper's Hill, recruits for the service were trained entirely in France, that many of the officers so trained have had most distinguished careers in the service in India, while since 1885, visits to French forests have always occupied a fair proportion of the time spent on practical instruction. We may add that it is true that the practice of scientific forestry in India has made great progress since the service was started some 60 years ago: but that for many years the energies of the small staff employed were engaged in preliminary work such as exploration, demarcation, settlement, etc., and as a matter of fact that, with the exception of comparatively small areas of artificial plantations, such as Nilambur in Madras and Changa Manga in the Punjab, India does not yet contain forests which exhibit the results of continuous scientific management for long periods of time such as are available in France and other continental countries besides Germany. The general principles of Forestry cannot be properly appreciated without reference to examples of this description and therefore the opinion expressed that the forests of France and Switzerland are probably less useful as a training field than the Indian forests, cannot be accepted, either by the Government of India or by the officers now in the service, who are best qualified to form an opinion on this subject. Again for the reasons given above this objection will hardly be met by the proposals that training in India should be supplemented by a short period spent in continental forests when an officer has completed from three to six years' service, while any such scheme would entail obvious practical difficulties, unless the officers concerned were placed on deputation at fixed times and staff for their instruction provided regularly which would entail very considerable cost.

11. In favour of training at Dehra Dun we may admit—

(a) that a certain class of Indian would prefer his son to be trained in India rather than in England;

(b) that from the point of view of the Government of India there would be some advantage in having the immediate, and almost unfettered, control over their own training establishment.

12. In addition to what has been said above against training in India the following reasons may be mentioned:—

(a) First, and most important of all, that the Indian trained in Europe will unquestionably acquire a status which will not be secured if he is trained in India:

(b) The almost unanimous and strongly expressed opinions of local Governments which are summarized on page 63, notes A Proceedings Nos. 5—21 of November 1919, and which caused the Government of India to alter the opinion expressed previously in paragraphs 16 to 18 of their circular letter to local Governments No. 663 of the 29th October 1918. It may perhaps be noted that local Governments are the parties chiefly concerned in this matter and that as they pay for the staff employed their views should receive the fullest consideration.

(c) That there will be far more chance of the two classes shaking down together if they are trained at one institution in England than if trained in Dehra Dun, or elsewhere in India.

(d) That the training of Imperial Service recruits at Dehra Dun will necessitate complete alteration of the present scheme for the training of candidates for the Provincial Service, as for disciplinary reasons it is impossible, or at any rate highly undesirable, that Indian recruits for the Imperial and Provincial Services should be trained at the same centre, under conditions which would make it impossible to keep them apart We have already experienced this difficulty with the Provincial and Ranger students. There is little social difference between the two classes and it has happened with some frequency that an unusually good Ranger student finds that, though doomed to a greatly inferior service, he is a better man than some of the Provincial students. The results are unpleasant and anything of this kind must be avoided if Imperial Service recruits are to be trained in India.

13. There are two ways of meeting this last objection. One to transfer the training of Provincial Service candidates to another centre, either under the Government of India or a local Government, which would necessitate new buildings, separate staff, etc., and would be an expensive business. And the other to abolish direct recruitment for the Provincial Service and revert entirely to the system of promotion from the Ranger staff, on the understanding that such promotion should be mainly by the selection of men who distinguished themselves during their college career and the first few years of their subsequent service. This might necessitate some stiffening of the Ranger's course of training and slightly higher starting pay for officers of this class. Probably, also, it will be thought too retrograde to deserve serious consideration, but I believe I am correct in saying that if local Governments were consulted there would be a considerable body of opinion in favour of the change. We have secured some excellent officers by direct recruitment, but I am afraid that on the whole the Provincial Service officer recruited in this manner has not been a remarkable success. He is too prone to consider that once in the Provincial Service he has little to do beyond supervising the work of others instead of settling down to master the details of the work for himself. The Ranger staff is the backbone of the service, and among forest officers at any rate, it is very generally held that it is desirable to improve the Rangers' prospects and that the promoted Ranger, if selected fairly early in service, generally makes a better Provincial Service officer than the direct recruit.

14. As the details of the scheme for training in India have not yet been worked out it is not possible to make any accurate comparison between the cost of training in England and in India. But there can be no question that the latter would considerably exceed that of training at an English University as at present. Precise estimates are difficult to frame; but allowing of the necessary residential and other buildings at Dehra Dun; for a staff of 6 Instructors on the pay and allowances of Imperial Forest officers; for part of the cost of the President, Research Institute; for the leave allowances and pensionary contributions of the staff; for the probationers joining at Dehra Dun on the initial pay of the time scale, as decided by the Secretary of State; for passage from England of the European recruits; for lighting, water and other incidental charges, the cost of training a probationer in India will not fall far short of £2,000, assuming a two years' course and the training of 15 men a year. The State bears no part of the cost of tuition or lodging of those trained in England, with the exception of fees to forest officers on the continent for which £500 per annum seems a liberal allowance. Adding to this the salary of the Director of Indian Forest Studies, the allowances to probationers at the rate of £200 per annum each, the cost of passages from and back to India for Indian recruits, and to India for European recruits, the cost of training a probationer under existing conditions may be taken as about £550 to £600. In neither case is provision made for travelling allowances, but Indian conditions make it obvious that this item would amount to far more in India than in Europe.

It is impossible to forecast with any degree of precision what the cost to the State of training a probationer would be should a scheme for an Imperial Forest College in England materialize; but it seems safe to assume that it could hardly be more expensive than training in India.

15 In summarising the aspects of this case, therefore, I venture to think we may say that after full and careful reconsideration the Government of India are still convinced that the balance of advantage lies, in every way, with the training of English and Indian recruits in England and on the continent as heretofore; more specially if, as they hope will be the case the question of the establishment of an Imperial Forestry College in England is raised at the forthcoming Forestry Conference to be held in London this year. I would like the Government of India to add that so fully convinced of this are they that they are willing to bear their share of the cost of the institution and maintenance of such a College and, in the event of its establishment, to abandon definitely the proposal to train recruits for the Imperial Forest Service at Dehra Dun; also that in the event of the establishment of such a College proving to be impossible they would be glad if they could be furnished with an estimate of the cost of establishing in England, either in connection with one of the Universities, or elsewhere, a Forestry College for India analogous to Cooper's Hill: they would prefer such a College to be affiliated to one of the Universities preferably the University of Oxford, at which they believe the School of Forestry to be better organized and generally more suitable for the training of Indian probationers than those at either Cambridge or Edinburgh ; and finally that as, once the provincial cadres have been brought up to their sanctioned strength, the number of recruits required annually is not likely to exceed 15, or to rise beyond 20, for many years to come, they think that it might, perhaps, be possible to induce one of the Oxford Colleges to make arrangements to receive this number of students annually on their benalf ; if, therefore, the Secretary of State is prepared to consider the orders passed in his despatch and if, at the same time, the project for the establishment of an Imperial Forest College proves impracticable, they trust he will be good enough to make the necessary enquiries regarding this suggestion.

16. In paragraph 11 of annexure VIII to their report the Public Services Commission approved the general principles laid down by the Government of India for the regulation of the training in India of junior officers appointed to the Imperial Service, subject to the provision that officers should be kept in their own province during the first year after their arrival in India. In section V (i) of our despatch to the Secretary of State we accepted this recommendation, to which the despatch from the secretary of State makes no reference owing to the decision in favour of training in India. We might, I think, refer to this subject and say that if joint training in England is now finally decided on, we think it would be a good thing for the recruits to spend the first six months after their arrival in India in charge of one or two selected instructors. We may suggest that during this period they should visit selected forest areas in various provinces, in which the system of management, conversion, extraction and regeneration are more advanced than usual. We may say that in this way the recruits would obtain acquaintance with the latest developments of forestry in India which would, in our opinion, considerably enhance their value to their local Governments in the early part of their service.

17. This matter of the future training of Imperial Service recruits is the most momentous question in connection with the Forest Service which has ever come up for decision.

The latest estimate of the gross forest revenue of India and Burma in 1919-20 is close on 5½ crores. In 1909-10 it was 2·6 crores. The possibilities of forest development in India are enormous and there can be no question that with staff of the desired quality and quantity, the revenue will continue to rise steadily until it reaches several, or perhaps many, times the present figures: for compared with European standards the average outturn of our commercial forests per acre per annum, both of produce and money, is still very small indeed. Indians of the class who have entered the Imperial branches of other services have so far fought shy of the Forest Service. Up to date we have had six Indian officers only and it is a fact that with one exception, an officer with only one year's service, these have not done well. I believe that training at Dehra Dun will tend to decrease the quality and efficiency of the European recruits and will not give the Indian recruits the chance they would have if trained in England and on the continent of Europe and, therefore, I venture to urge that the Government of India should make a final and determined effort to adhere to the system of training which has proved satisfactory in the past.

Telegram, dated Simla, the 24th June 1920.

From—The Viceroy (Department of Revenue and Agriculture),
To—The Secretary of State for India, London.

Paragraph 9 of your despatch 14 Revenue, 12th February, conveying your decision that Forest probationers will ordinarily be trained at Dehra Dun. We feel that for following reasons there are strong grounds for asking you to leave this question open temporarily. Firstly, we understand that Imperial Forestry Conference to be held in London in July next will discuss project of establishing Imperial Forestry College in England for training students from all parts of Empire. Adoption of the scheme would probably be conditional on participation of India and we feel that India could participate with advantage and thus secure exactly conditions of training which we desire. Secondly, we are now endeavouring for the first time to obtain Indian recruits to the Service and our experience may be useful guide in ascertaining number and class of Indians willing to go to England for training. Information on these two points should be available to us by end of August. Thirdly, cost of training in India would far exceed cost in England. Cost per student is always greater at a monotechnic than at a ploytechnic institution or university and we roughly estimate that cost per student would be £2,000 at Dehra Dun against £500 in England. Former figure includes pay of probationers as members of the service as soon as they arrive in India, vide paragraph 10 of your despatch, also cost of passage. Latter figure includes present payments to probationers and cost of return passages for Indian recruits. Neither figure includes cost of travelling, but this would certainly be greater in India than England.

To—The Viceroy (Department of Revenue and Agriculture).

Enclosure No. 8.

Resolution 9 of British Empire Forestry Conference.

9.—EDUCATION.

It should be a primary duty of Forest authorities throughout the Empire to establish systematic schemes of forestry education. It has been found for climatic and other reasons that it would not be possible for each part of the Empire to establish a complete scheme of forestry education of its own, and therefore it is essential that those parts of the Empire which are willing and able to establish complete systems should, as far as possible, frame such schemes with a view to combining for meeting the needs of those parts which can only themselves make a partial provision for their requirements.

Part of this subject has been dealt with by a Committee whose report, which refers mainly to the higher training of forest officers, is approved by the Conference (Annexure C).

The main principles embodied in this report are as follows :—

1. That one institution for training forest officers be established in the United Kingdom.
2. That students be selected from graduates having taken honours in pure or natural science at any recognised university.
3. That it be an integral part of the work of the institution to arrange supplementary courses at suitable centres for students requiring special qualifications and also special courses for forest officers from any part of the Empire, whether at the institution itself or at centres of training in other parts of the world. The Governments should recognise these courses as part of the ordinary duties of the forest officer at any time during their service, and the Governments concerned should give special facilities to forest officers in their service to attend such courses.
4. That a Department of Research into the formation, tending and protection of forests be associated with the training institution.
5. Encouragement should be given to the existing provision made by universities and colleges for forestry instruction for those who do not desire to take the full course suggested for the forestry service. It appears that this is especially applicable to the United Kingdom.

It is also desirable to make adequate provision for woodmen's schools for he training of foresters as distinct from those which are intended for forest officers.

ANNEXURE C

EDUCATION.

Report of the Committee appointed "to prepare a draft scheme of organization of an Institution which would provide for the following :—

(i) The training of forest officers for the United Kingdom.

(ii) The training of forest officers from parts of the Empire having no place of higher training of their own.

(iii) Refresher courses for forest officers from all parts of the Empire.

(iv) Special courses, some of which would be held at the institution and some at other schools of forestry of the Empire, with regard to which there would be interchange of students.

The Committee beg to report as follows :—

The need for a scientific in addition to a practical training in forestry has been recognised for many years.

It is to the credit of the Government of India that after training probationers in various Continential schools the first real steps were taken in this country by instituting at the Cooper's Hill College in 1885 special courses of instruction for Indian forest probationers. A definite start was made, followed twenty years later, on the closure of the college, by the establishment of the Oxford University Forest School. Meanwhile other universities had set on foot somewhat similar institutions, and eventually, about 1909, as a result of representations made by these Universities, the Indian forest probationers were divided among the universities of Oxford, Cambridge, and Edinburgh, and this is the method in force at the present time.

While these systems have succeeded in training a number of very valuable forest officers and have helped to arouse an interest in forestry, it is generally acknowledged throughout the forest services of the Empire that in the interests of Imperial forestry a central training institute and a great improvement in the standard of education is urgently required.

Our consideration of the whole matter must be influenced by the position taken up by the Government of India. The requirements of that service amount to about 40 per cent. of the whole of the officers likely to be trained in the near future, and in their view that training must take place in one single institution, to which must be admitted Europeans and Indians on equal terms.

It is of interest to note the many attempts which have been made by the Government of India to solve the difficult problem of forestry education. It is evident that they find little satisfaction in the present system, and are even now contemplating a transference of their whole training to a central institution in India. We are therefore impressed with the necessity of exercising the utmost care in dealing with this question in order to avoid the risk of another false start, which would certainly retard the success of education for a long period.

We accordingly, in the first instance, have to apply our minds to the consideration of the type of institution which would be best fitted for the needs of the whole Empire.

In the course of the discussion on education throughout the proceedings of the Conference, it has become clearly evident that the delegates are unanimously in favour of two main principles :—

1. That the training be carried out at one central institution.
2. That a necessary preliminary of this training be a complete university education.

But some differences of opinion have been found to exist in the minds of some of the delegates as to the relative advantages of this training taking place at a university and under its control, or at some place apart from and having no connection with a university.

Without in any way prejudging the case, we proceed to consider these alternatives.

In considering the needs of forestry education, it is important to have regard to the stage at which recruits for the forest services are selected. The opinion of the Conference is unanimously in favour of selection from the science schools of the universities at the post-graduate stage. This denotes a definite stage in education at which point the work of selection by the Governments concerned of the students most suitable for the service can be best achieved. Our proposals therefore are to superimpose forestry training upon a general scientific education.

Firstly, taking into consideration the feasibility of establishing the main centre of training at one of the universities there are the following advantages. The capital cost of the buildings would be much less than if a separate institution were created, while the possibility of utilising the staff and equipment of the university would also lead to economy in another direction. In order to obtain the support of India, it might be possible to ask one of the colleges to earmark the necessary accommodation for Indian probationers, or the Government of India might even erect special buildings or rent a suitable house. As regards the first, it would probably be difficult to secure at any college accommodation for men who have already finished their university education, while the 3rd may have an element of economy in its favour; but these considerations refer entirely to our endeavours to fit in the requirements of the Government of India with those of the rest of the Empire.

It has been suggested that an argument in favour of this alternative may be based upon the opportunity which a student may have of shortening his course by carrying on his technical studies at the same time as he is reading for his science degree Many of the educational authorities we have consulted do not regard this idea with favour, because this combination may interfere with the attainment of the highest honours in pure science of which the student is capable. Moreover, it would imply selection prior to the definite stage in his general education upon which we lay so much stress.

There are, however, distinct disadvantages. It must be recognised that the forestry training is a preliminary to a technical occupation, and it is reasonable to expect that a probationer should devote as much of his time to the acquisition of his technical knowledge in forestry as if he entered any other profession or line of employment. The period of residence at some of the universities amounts to little more than half the year, while the distractions of university life act as a serious bar to the employment of a technical student's time to best advantage. It has transpired in evidence that at some of the universities there are difficulties and obstacles in the way of the development of technical and vocational work such as is required to prepare the forest probationer for his profession on the best practical lines, and forestry is of no value if it is not based on ample practical work in the laboratory, the workshop and the field.

There is another serious objection to this scheme in the antipathy with which many men will regard their transfer from their own to another university. In establishing the centre at one university, the circle of selection of candidates is therefore narrowed. In the interests of the recruitment of the best personnel, without placing any one university in a more advantageous position than its competitor, it would therefore appear that the selection of any one university has very grave drawbacks. It is felt that all Universities should have equal chances in providing the material to be trained and that the association of the training centre with any one of them would defeat this end.

Another drawback is the impossibility of control by any outside body over any university. We regard it as essential for the proper conduct of our highly technical training that the controlling body should be one which is appointed for the purpose of forestry training alone, and which will be free to carry it on untrammelled by conflicting demands from competing branches of education. This body should be selected from qualified representatives of all the states or governments concerned, with the addition of such educational experts as may be found necessary.

It is largely in relation to the provision of special courses, which have been admitted to be essential, that the separation from true forest control would fail as it is only a body actively engaged and thoroughly posted up in the practice of forestry that could make this admittedly essential feature of the central institution really fulfil its purpose.

It is also considered that the expense to the student would be appreciably more at a residential university that at an independent institution.

Next we consider the alternative of a training institute apart from and unconnected with any university.

This course of training should be open to selected students who have taken an honours degree in pure or natural science at any recognised university.

This would give, it is felt, the widest possible field of selection, an equal chance would be given to the graduates of all universities, and it would combine the advantages of a full university course with the opportunity of intensive training which can more easily be obtained at an institute unbound by the traditions of the older universities. The importance of this consideration cannot be over-estimated.

It has been suggested on behalf of some of the Dominions that at the outset the qualification of a degree should not be applied too rigidly and and that in certain exceptional cases it should not be exacted. We see no objection to this course for a term not exceeding five years, provided that full discretion is given to the governing body of the institution to refuse admission to such students if good reasons can be shown for doing so.

Any forecast of the number of students likely to attend the institution must be subject to revision, but on the estimates before us of present requirements, the probable number of students will be about 50, and if a two-year course is adopted, there would be not less than 100 in residence at one time, of whom 40 would be earmarked for the Indian Forest Service. This number should fully justify the establishment at the very commencement of a fully equipped institution, but it can scarcely be contemplated that even with the addition of students attending special or refresher courses there will be any justification for the maintenance of the highest class of forestry training at more than one centre.

The United Kingdom, it may be stated generally, offers the best opportunities for a central institution—its propinquity to those forests in Europe which alone have been managed on scientific sylvicultural lines for several generations is of great importance now that in so many parts of the Empire the wild is beginning to give place to the cultivated forest and greater knowledge of proved intensive systems is required.

This central institute cannot, however, be expected to supply the training for the special needs of every part of the Empire. But it is anticipated that officers from some of the self-governing Dominions, while taking such instructions as they may require in the intensive systems referred to, will prefer to train for other special purposes within the borders of their own States.

The possibility of locating such an institute in or near forests which are under the control of the State, would facilitate instruction and research, and would be of very definite importance during the periods allotted to practical work.

The course of training would extend over a period of at least two years, and scholarships tenable for that time should be offered to all selected candidates by their respective Governments. The training would include theoretical work, at least six months' practical working in the forests, and one or more visits to study the systems of management in continental forests.

In addition to those students who take a full course of training or those who take up a subject for special study, it is recognized that it would be of real advantage that the institute should always be open to officers of the forestry services, whatever their standing may be, who desire to take a course in general or selected subjects on their own account.

It is believed that the Conference will readily agree as to the import ance of such refresher courses, but we draw very special attention to them, as we believe them to be among the most useful features of the work of the institute, and that the different forest services of the Empire will gain very greatly if their Governments in regular course attach their officers on full pay to the institute, or to centres of training in other parts of the Empire for the purpose of these courses.

It is recommended that the staff of such an institute would consist of the Principal, who would be a forest officer selected for his experience in administrative work, and one professor of forestry who would be assisted by an adequate staff of lecturers and specialists in the various subjects.

There appears to be some considerable advantage in associating with the training at the institute the duty of research into the production, formation, tending and protection of forests, and if this proposal is adopted, the specialists included in our staff might, without interfering with their primary duties, devote a portion of their time to educational work in their own subjects.

The cost of a building in which to house and train 100 students will be a very serious one.. Contributions, except as noted below, towards the capital cost and of the annual maintenance, may be anticipated from all the Governments interested; the interest of India is so large and the interest of the United Kingdom and the Colonies individually so small, that in our opinion the scheme cannot be carried out without material assistance from the Indian Government.

The self-governing Dominions, and Provinces and States who generally possess training institutions of their own, cannot be expected to contribute to the capital cost, though they will no doubt be desirous of paying so much of the annual cost as may be fairly applicable to the full or special courses to which their own students may be sent.

This institution which now has been outlined does not cover the whole ground; in the United Kingdom the Forestry Commission have a very distinct responsibility for training not only the officers for their own service, but a responsibility for giving opportunities for training to owners and managers of those private woodlands which will perhaps always form the bulk of the woodland area in the United Kingdom. This may clearly be a shorter and less specialized course of training than that proposed for the forest services, and it is hoped to enlist the sympathy of the universities in the establishment of special courses in forestry or as a section of their agricultural and estate department. It is believed that there would be a great demand for such courses and that the Commission should offer assistance in carrying them on.

A third course has been suggested to us by the Professor at Edinburgh University which we think it is our duty also to examine. Professor Stebbing considers that selection for the different forest services should be made from men who have a degree in forestry of selected universities; that they should be further trained at a separate institution in advanced courses, and also along those lines which are considered necessary or advisable for the special purposes of the country concerned. It therefore would combine in a way the two methods which we have already discussed. It has, in our opinion, several patent disadvantages. In the first place, it does not admit of selection at a definite stage of education, so that the general standard of education, prior to training, would ordinarily be much below that which we consider essential. Secondly, it is a tacit admission that existing courses are capable of extension with advantage; but, lastly, we are of opinion that if special courses dealing with local conditions are necessary at all, such courses, in so far as familiarisation with local problems are concerned, should be held in the country to which they apply. We do not, of course, refer to specialized study of specific subjects which would ordinarily be confined to a few selected students or to forest officers who want to refresh or expand their general or special knowledge, but we feel that it would be quite impossible to provide such instruction unless those special courses were taken at a fully equipped central institution organized on the lines which we have already recommended. There is also the consideration that a student who has obtained a degree which marked the completion of his technical education in forestry, would perhaps be less willing to accept further instruction in subjects which he would not unnaturally consider himself fully qualified in. This would also involve considerable expenditure at each centre of instruction, together with a further cost, and actually not less than is anticipated for the single self-containing institution which we have discussed.

Having now set out three schemes which satisfy the conditions we have laid down of one central institution for forestry training, combined with the advantages of a complete university education and having discussed them formally and informally with most of the delegates and many of the associate delegates, the Committee have arrived at the conclusion that a separate institute unconnected with any universities is the ideal system of training in forestry.

But we are bound to recognise and to impress upon the Conference that owing to its cost it can only be carried out as we have designed it with the fullest support of India and the Colonies.

While we feel that the decision at which we have arrived unanimously is the one we desire to press very strongly upon the Conference, we admit that differences of opinion upon the important point of the actual relationship between the universities and the training institute are certain to exist, and we believe that the matter is of so great importance that it should form a proper subject of discussion by a Committee to be appointed without undue delay.

We have endeavoured to arrive at an ideal scheme which will satisfy the clearly expressed desire of the Conference to place at the disposal of all the forestry services the best possible method of education.

Keeping in view the vast interests at stake, it is hoped that the Conference will judge these schemes on their merits alone, and in arriving at a decision will not give undue weight to financial considerations.

Enclosure No. 9.

INDIA OFFICE, LONDON,

30th September 1920.

Revenue.

No. 113.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

MY LORD,

Future training of Indian Forest Service probationers.

In my telegram R. and S.-5162 of the 21st July, I informed Your Excellency's Government that I adhered to the decision, communicated in my Revenue Despatch No. 14 of the 12th February 1920, that all probationers of the Indian Forest Service should be trained at Dehra Dun when the necessary arrangements could be made. Your delegates to the recent Imperial Forestry Conference were informed accordingly, and were instructed, in the event of the subject being discussed, to act on the assumption that my decision was final. These instructions did not, however, reach the delegates until after the close of the Conference, and I was informed by Sir Claude Hill that he and his colleagues had received your permission to express their own opinions on the question, provided that it was made clear that they did not commit their Government. As you are aware, a resolution was unanimously adopted by the Conference advocating the establishment of a central training institution in the United Kingdom, and your representatives, in exercise of the permission given, supported the proposal.

2. As the adoption of this resolution by a Conference representative of forest interests throughout the Empire creates a new situation, I am willing that the whole matter should be reconsidered, and I request Your Excellency's Government to favour me with your considered views after consulting Local Governments and ascertaining Indian opinion. The enclosed memorandum, which was prepared at my request by Mr. Clutterbuck, may assist you in forming your conclusions.

3. It is necessary, in the first place, to examine, how apart from all other considerations, a course of training at Dehra Dun supplemented by instruction in provincial forests would compare, in point of efficiency, with training at a central institution in this country supplemented by instruction in continental forests. In this connection, I should be glad to learn your views on the contention that the science of forestry can only be properly studied in selected continental forests which have been scientifically managed for very long periods.

4. As regards cost, sufficient materials are not, unfortunately, available to enable a comparison to be made, but the report of the Committee about to be appointed to formulate definite proposals regarding the location of the proposed institute and to frame estimates of cost, may be received within the next few months. If so, it should be possible not only to compare the cost, initial and recurring, of the two schemes, but also to judge whether the share of the initial cost of a central institution in this country debitable to Indian revenues would be so heavy as to preclude the possibility of future withdrawal should a change be desired.

5. No less important is the probable effect of the place of training on recruitment. It has been suggested that the obligation to spend the probationary period of training in India might deter the best men from the British Universities from applying for appointment; but, on the other hand, the effect on the recruitment of Indians must also be considered. An argument of more apparent force is that conditions at a central institution in England would be more likely to create a strong esprit de corps in the service than if joint training took place in India.

6. I am especially anxious that, before communicating your views, you should ascertain how the whole question is regarded by Indians themselves. It has been assumed, perhaps without sufficient justification, that Indian opinion would strongly favour training in India; but this view has been challenged. I suggest that, in addition to obtaining non-official opinions through Local Governments, you should endeavour to arrange that the matter might be discussed in the Imperial Legislative Council after publication, if this be considered necessary, of a selection of the papers.

I have the honour to be,

my Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient humble Servant,

E. D. S. MONTAGUE.

ENCLOSURE.

NOTE ON THE TRAINING OF OFFICERS FOR THE INDIAN FOREST SERVICE.

Now that the possibilities of industrial progress and development of resources in India are to be so much greater under the Reform Scheme, it is more essential than ever to attract the very best recruits for the Indian Forest Service, and to train them to the highest possible standard. Also, as Indians are to be recruited for a large proportion of the vacancies, it is only fair to them and to India that they should be given the highest possible training.

The officers of the Indian Forest Service are, as far as I know, unanimous that a much better training can be arranged for in Britain than in India. This is also the view of all the major Local Governments in India and of the Government of India too.

The decision of the Secretary of State that the training should be at Dehra Dun in future (as soon as suitable arrangements can be made) was based on the following considerations :—

(1) That while it is agreed that it is essential for all Indian Forest Service recruits to be trained at one centre, it is considered that this is not possible in Britain owing to the necessity for distributing candidates among different universities.

(2) That the cost of a separate institution for training Indian Forest Service candidates alone would be too heavy, and that, even if an Empire forest college were formed, India would have to bear a large share of the cost.

(3) That it must be recognised that probationers for the Indian Forest Service must ultimately be trained in India, and therefore alternative arrangements must be temporary. Consequently it is undesirable to embark on any scheme for training in Britain involving considerable expenditure.

(4) That for practical instruction Germany is now unavailable, that France and Switzerland are probably less useful as a training ground that India, and that there are no facilities in Britain.

(5) That the course of training in India can be supplemented by a period of six months or so. for the study of continental systems, by each directly recruited officer before he has completed six years' service.

With reference to these points it may be noted :—

(1) That as the Secretary of State has accepted the principle of all Indian Forest Service recruits being trained at one centre, and as he has decided to maintain the age for recruitment within the existing limits, the special training will be a post-graduate course which could be carried out at an institution separate from all universities, without giving ground for complaint to any one of the universities. This would give scope for wide selection of candidates from different universities, and it would get over the objection of men from one university having to go for training to another university.

(2) The question of cost is an important one, but if an Empire forest college is founded, the cost would not fall on India alone. No estimate can, however, be given until the special Committee proposed by the British Empire Foresty Conference reports, but it is understood that a suitable site and building may be available at a fairly low rate.

(3) It must, of course, be recognised that India will ultimately become a suitable training ground for the Indian Forest Service, but considering that scientific forestry has been practised in India for only half a century, it is unlikely that India will be a really suitable training ground for another 50 years. Even then an Empire forest college in Britain would be a very valuable asset to India to provide a wider education than would be available in India alone, by means of facilities for special and refresher courses. The Empire forest college which it is proposed will be in touch with research institute and an Empire forestry bureau will become an attraction to officers of the Indian Forest Service to do their special courses there. The change of climate would also be an advantage in this connection compared with Dehra Dun.

(4) As regards Germany, there seems to be no reason to suppose that it will be impossible to continue pre-war arrangements as conditions become more settled. As regards France and Switzerland, there are forests which have been scientifically managed for centuries and they present many admirable examples of the continued results of scientific forestry. As a training ground India cannot compare with them. The forests in Britain are admittedly insufficient for teaching systems of management, but they are suitable for practical instruction in elementary sylviculture in connection with the European species of trees, and the Crown forests are rapidly becoming more efficient for the purpose.

(5) The proposal to depute directly-recruited Indian Forest Service officers, trained in India, to the Continent for practical instruction is opposed to sound principles of forest education. One of the great advantages of Britain as a training centre is its accessibility to the Continent, enabling practical instruction to be given on the Continent along with the theory given at the college. Unless a thorough grounding is given in the sylviculture of European species (such as would be given at a training centre in Britain) prior to the practical course on the Continent, the value of the latter will be largely discounted. It may here be emphasised that the science of forestry has been primarily evolved in connection with European species, and that the greater proportion of forestry literature concerns these species. Also that, as a forest officer has to think in centuries (i.e., it takes 100 years more or less to grow a tree fit for timber, it is absolutely necessary for him during his training to see forests which have been scientifically managed for centuries in order that he may learn what the results of various operations will be a century hence. Further, the continental forests are the only ones in the world which approach a normal (ideal) forest with proper proportions of the various age gradations necessary for producing an equal sustained annual yield of timber.

The British Empire Forestry Conference has recently taken place. A proof copy of the resolutions which were passed by the delegates is attached herewith. It will be seen that the delegates were unanimous in recommending the formation of a central institution in Britain for the training of forest officers, and advised that a Committee be appointed without delay to make definite proposals as to where such a central institution could best be established, and what it would cost.

It would be most regrettable from the point of view of forest development in India if India, which has so far taken a lead in forestry matters, should refuse, without further consultation, to participate in these proposals.

The delegates from India, after the conclusion of the Conference, submitted a report to the Government of India. This report gives their reasons for supporting the resolutions on education. A copy of it is attached herewith, so the reasons need not be re-stated.

Some remarks must be added, however, as to other disadvantages of training Indian Forest Service recruits at Dehra Dun :—

(a) It is believed that the best men from British Universities will be unlikely to go to Dehra Dun as probationers. They will be more attracted by the Empire forest college for service in Britain and the Colonies. The fact of having to be on probation for two years in India will act as a deterrent.

(b) Now that 40 per cent. of the recruits are to be Indians, it is essential that fraternisation between the British and Indian recruits should be encouraged to the utmost during the period of training, so that a strong espirit de corps may be built up and bind them together. At Dehra Dun there would be very small chances for fraternisation, and in fact a gulf would exist throughout between the British and Indian candidates. It would probably not be possible there even to insist on the probationers messing together. On the other hand, an Empire forest college in Britain would afford the best chances of complete fraternisation.

(c) Indian B. Sc. graduates of Indian Universites are already entering the Provincial Forest Service trained at Dehra Dun. The training of Indian Forest Service recruits at the same place from the same class of candidates will upset the Provincial Forest Service altogether, and will eventually necessitate the abolition of the Provincial Forest Service. This would be a serious drawback, because the Dehra Dun trained Provincial Forest Service men form a useful class of officers intermediary between the Indian Forest Service and the subordinate grades. If the training of the Indian Forest Service is continued in Britain there will be no undermining of the Provincial Forest Service. It is especially necessary to keep the two services separate, considering that Indian candidates who fail to get direct nominations into the Indian Forest Service will often enter the Provincial Forest Service. The place of training should form a fair ground for discrimination as far as direct recruitment goes.

To sum up. The main consideration is what is best for India and her progressive development. A period is about to commence when the duty of every British official will be to do all he can towards training and developing Indian officials to take his place. It is of paramount importance that the British officials should, in view of this and of the fact that their class will be a gradually diminishing one, be trained in the highest degree possible. Also it is only fair to the Indian officers who are to be taught to take the places of British officers, that they should be similarly trained in order that they may have every chance of fair comparison as regards their work.

The present method of training has produced excellent results, certainly in so far as the Oxford trained men are concerned. The average quality is exceedingly high, and any decrease in quality at this important juncture, due to less efficient training, would be a serious set-back, not only to the development of the resources of the Indian Empire, but also to the Indian aspirations of an increasingly Indianised forest service.

REPORT OF THE INTER-DEPARTMENTAL COMMITTEE ON IMPERIAL FORESTRY EDUCATION.

The Committee have held seven meetings and have visited the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Bangor and Edinburgh. At the last-mentioned University representatives of Aberdeen and Glasgow Universities and of the West of Scotland Agricultural College were present and gave valuable evidence. Evidence was also given by representatives of the above Universities and of the Surveyors' Institution, the Land Agents' Society and the Royal Scottish Arboricultural Society; written evidence was submitted by the Royal English Arboricultural Society.

Other witnesses, representing the Forest Services and the Commission, were examined, including Sir William Schlich, Mr. Robinson (representing the Forestry Commission), Mr. Battiscombe (representing the British East Africa Forest Service), Mr. Sargent (representing the Forest Service of Ceylon), Mr. Fraser Story, Mr. Pritchard, also Professor Henry of the Royal College of Science, Dublin, and Major Caccia, Director of Indian Forest Studies.

The main object to be aimed at in framing Forest Officers is to turn out men fully equipped with theoretical and practical knowledge, with minds broadened by education, and with capacity strengthened by practical experience in forest work, to direct men and operations. Such men should be capable of dealing with the problems of administration, management and finance which are generally the most important of all their duties.

In addition there is a class of Forest Officer required for research—for this class additional training should be provided.

1. Existing System of Training.

The system of training in the Universities and Colleges which the Forestry Conference found in existence in July 1920, is set out in the statement prepared by the Forest Commission for the British Empire Forestry Conference. Pages 26-28.

We are impressed by the evidence given by many Forest Officers to the effect that the standard of this training must be improved in order to turn out first-class men.

Many Universities have already recognized this and have prepared, and in some cases have already adopted, and enlarged and improved curriculum which varies very slightly as between the University.

The Committee consider that it would be a retrograde course to interfere with this work and the scheme which we have in view will seek rather to co-ordinate all these courses, to bring them up to a common level and utilize them as a preliminary to the higher course of training we propose to adopt.

Almost all the evidence is in favour of a course of training extending over four years. The degree course at the Universities under their proposed improved system extends to three years, and some provide an additional 1 to 1½ years, leading to a diploma or honours degree in advanced forestry. In some cases it is proposed to specialize in certain subjects, for instance, the University of Edinburgh intends to develop the special subject of forest engineering to a large extent.

2. Central Training Institution.

We have kept fully before us the decision of the Conference as expressed in the Terms of Reference that the future higher forestry should take place at a single Central Institution. We have not discussed the principle of this with witnesses, but it should be stated that while the opinion of most of the Universities is opposed to this view, the opinion of the other witnesses, with the exception of Mr. Fraser Story and Major Caccia, is strongly in favour of it.

3. Selection of Students.

A further resolution of the Conference is to the effect that the students proceeding to the Central Institution should be selected by the different departments from graduates having taken honours in pure or natural science at a recognized University, but so strong an opinion was expressed by many experts against this proposal that we have thought it right to take evidence upon this matter, which we consider to be one of the first importance.

The whole of our witnesses, with the exception of Professor Bower, of Glasgow University; Mr. Battiscombe, of the British East Africa Service; and Mr. Sargent, of the Ceylon Service, expressed grave doubts as to the necessity of a lengthy course in pure science as a preliminary to a forestry education. Some, like Sir William Schlich, went so far as to say that the training up to an honours standard in science was a positive disadvantage, tending to produce specialists in their own particular subjects, leaving forestry almost as a secondary consideration.

Professor Stebbing considered from another point of view that selection from honours graduates in science would be unsatisfactory since most of the men who have obtained high honours would tend to be attracted by the increasing opportunities of immediate and lucrative employment in the higher branches of applied science, rather than become candidates for the Forest Services with the additional training demanded and the more restricted scope offered by such a career.

The whole of the witnesses, with the exceptions above noted, agreed that, while a good grounding in pure science is absolutely necessary, one year's exclusive application is probably adequate in the case of men who have received a sound general education, including a knowledge of chemistry and physics, for the requirements of the ordinary Forest Officer. At the same time it is admitted that a more extended course would be required for specialists, and those who will take part in definite research work.

In consequence of the importance which many members of the Conference attached to the Resolution as to an honours degree in science for all candidates to be selected for the Forest Services, it seems advisable to set out in detail its apparent advantages and disadvantages.

I. Advantages.—

(a) It ensures the attainment of a certain high standard of scientific knowledge and training at least in one subject.

(b) It is easy from the point of view of administration.

II. Disadvantages.—

(a) The length of course required, three to four years (except at Cambridge), during which a man is working at subjects other than forestry. Moreover, the training from a forestry point of view is not the best, inasmuch as excessive weight is given to the science taken as chief honours subject.

(b) The lack of uniform significance that attaches to the honours degree at different Universities.

(c) The risk of the high honours men being attracted to other and better paid careers.

(d) The late period after leaving school (five to six or more years) when a man will become qualified as a Forest Officer and the consequent additional cost of training. Further, that men taking honours in physics or chemistry will be at a disadvantage as compared with those who have graduated in biological subjects, and hence the field of selection may be still further narrowed especially as this fact is not necessarily brought to the attention of possible candidates at an early period in their career.

The Committee were made aware that among the grounds which influenced the Conference in deciding on an initial advanced training in pure science, were, in addition to the general view that such a course would be advisable:—

1. That it would ensure a University education even if the future forestry training were undertaken at an Institution outside any University, and

2 the necessity of a post-graduate course to give full opportunities for students from every University to participate in the training at the Institution.

After considering all the evidence before us we are of opinion that the demand for the honours degree in science as the sole qualification for selection cannot be generally accepted, but that the desire of the Conference to ensure University education must be obtained in some other way.

We consider that the views of the Conference can be fairly met by accepting an approved Forestry Degree course at any University, as a preliminary to the higher forestry training and carrying on this latter training at a Central Institution, located either within or without a University.

Not the least of the advantages of this proposal is that it utilizes the whole of the existing educational facilities and at the same time preserves a free competition between the Universities and throws open the Central Institution for the higher training to all selected students who have taken a forestry degree wherever they may have been educated.

4. Self-Governing Dominions.

It is anticipated that the Self-Governing Dominions may desire to take advantage of the Institution for the post-graduate training of some of the probationers selected for their own services, and it is presumed that these men would be accepted even though the preliminary course of training may differ in some degree from that adopted in this country; but it seems very desirable that the several standards of forestry education as far as the fundamentals of the subject are concerned should be the same throughout the Empire.

5. Course of Study at Universities.

It is evident that a sound general scientific education must lie at the root of the training of a properly equipped Forest Officer; mathematics up to and including plane trigonometry, chemistry, physics, mechanics, botany, zoology and geology are all required in varying degrees.

The following is a general outline of the course which may be suggested for the full training of Forest Officers, first at the University School and finally at the Central Institution.

First of all the student is presumed to have attained at school a good grounding in chemistry, physics and mathematics. On arriving at a University the procedure would be as follows:—

Chemistry, physics and biology, including laboratory work.

A period of practical work in British forests during the long vacation.

(A standard of chemistry and physics at least equivalent to that represented by the London University Intermediate Examination for B. Sc., should be required and provision should be made for a laboratory course in plant physiology as an essential part of the work in botany.)

2nd year.—

Forest botany and forest mycology, geology, surveying, elementary and advanced sylviculture, forest mensuration, valuation and working plans.

Practical work in mensuration during the course.

In attention ten weeks' practical work during vacations part of which at least should be taken abroad.

Forest administration and forest protection, forest utilization and engineering, forest entomology and the chemical and physical properties of soils.

Practical work would include three weeks' Easter Vacation, which might be taken either in this country or abroad, and the final course of eight or ten weeks in continental forests.

In addition to the work during vacations provided for above, opportunities should be given for practical work out of doors during term time.

It is advisable that the practical work up to this stage should be taken under the supervision of the same instructors who have had charge of the theoretical work.

This, however, presents some difficulties and there are, in addition, obvious disadvantages in several forest tours taking place simultaneously and independently, in Continental forests.

It probably would be well that the Authority which we propose to set up for the Government of the Central Training Institution should, through one of its Committees, arrange for the distribution of these tours at suitable times and places on the Continent.

The final examination at the end of the third year would finish the course for a degree in forestry, and it is at this point that a man will be selected as probationer for one of other of the Forest Services, and would be admitted after his final practical course to the Central Institution for higher training of one year in the case of the ordinary Forest Officer and possibly of a further period for a man proposing to undertake research.

In the interests of recruitment it is very important that the Department should notify Universities of the number of probationers likely to be required at least three years in advance.

It is desirable that the future Research Officers, more particularly those who show an inclination towards research in sylviculture and forest management, should undergo a period of service in the forest before they are definitely accepted for research work.

In order to widen the field for recruitment and to obtain men with a high scientific training, it is desirable that the services should select as probationers a certain number of men with honours degrees in science. These men then, after a forestry course covering the second and third years at a University School, spend a final year at the Central Institution. In order to attract such men it may be necessary to pay them a maintenance grant for the training subsequent to their honours degree. As an additional attraction two years of this training should be allowed to count as service towards pay and pension.

When it is proposed to train a man directly as a specialist an honours graduate in science would be selected, given such a course in general forestry as may be considered necessary, and then sent for two years to the Central Institution.

6. Course of Study at Central Institution.

The probationer would ordinarily specialize in two or more of the following subjects :—

(1) Forest botany and ecology in relation to British or Continental conditions.

(2) Advanced sylviculture in relation to British and Continental conditions.

(3) Principles of tropical and extra-tropical sylviculture.

(4) Forest management (advanced).

(5) Technology and uses of wood and other forest products.

(6) Forest engineering (including exploitation and mechanical conversion).

(7) Principles of commerce and accounts with special reference to forestry.

(8) British law and land tenure as affecting forestry.

(9) Indian forest law and land tenure.

(10) Regional forest botany.

(11) Mycology and pathology of trees (advanced).

(12) Forest entomology (advanced).

Other subjects might be included if necessary.

Under the head of No. 5, suitable courses for this subject could be arranged by the Institution in a Research Institute or other place where this porticular science is being developed.

Some portion of the year should be spent abroad to study definite aspects of practical forestry, e.g. No. 6 above, would require special facilities, probably outside Europe.

It may be expected that the Forest Service for which the Probationer has been selected will decide the course or courses which might be taken.

7. Special Courses.

So far the training is provided for probationers only, i.e., men selected from those who have obtained a forestry degree at any University where an approved course of forestry education is carried on.

But opportunities should not be withheld from any student who for his own purposes and at his own expense desires to take a further course of forestry study after completing the general University course.

We have now to deal with those who are already Forest Officers and who desire to obtain further knowledge in the work of their profession.

The evidence of Mr. Battiscombe. Mr. Sargent and Mr. Robinson showed very clearly the importance of this idea as also the desire of many Forest Officers to take advantage of the Institution for the purpose of acquiring special knowledge in new subjects as well as of a general refreshment of their minds in any of those matters which had formed part of their general training.

There is reason to suppose that the Self-Governing Dominions would desire to take advantage of these courses to enable their Forest Officers or Probationers to acquire a knowledge of the more intensive systems of sylviculture which can alone be studied in countries where a forest policy has been in force for many generations.

We thoroughly endorse the Resolution of the Forestry Conference to the effect that it would be of great advantage to the whole of the Services of the Empire that there should be a system of reciprocity between the Schools or Training Institutions at home and abroad which would enable the men whether Probationers or Forest Officers of any one country to proceed to an Institution in any other country for the purpose of studying those particular branches of forest knowledge which are highly developed there. For instance India could offer valuable opportunities either at a tropical Institution or under her Conservators for those who are to enter on service in the tropics, and Canada with her vast forest area could give instruction and demonstration in forest engineering and exploitation on a much larger scale than could be found in any other part of the Empire.

It is for the different Governments to consider what opportunities should be given to their officers for attending the special and refresher courses, but we attach so great an importance to them that we have no hesitation in recommending that it should be a recognized part of the duties of the Forest Officer to attend at least one special course at the Institution during the earlier part of his service.

8. Co-ordination of the University Courses.

Inasmuch as we propose to recommend that the University course and examination leading to graduation in forestry shall be accepted as qualifications for entrance to the Central Institution, it appears desirable that those Universities which are, or may be concerned in forestry education should be expected to co-operate in a joint scheme which would ensure as nearly as possible a common standard for the degree in forestry.

Any difficulty in the way of securing efficiency and equality of standard in the degree course at the different Universities both in pure science and in the more technical side of forestry education, could be met by the formation of Delegacies or Joint Committees. (See No. 11—Control.) Undue interference with the actual arrangements of classes, and with the teachers themselves, should be avoided : strict uniformity could only be obtained at the sacrifice of individual efficiency. Equivalent standards could be ensured by an approved curriculum and by the results of examination. The approval of the curriculum could probably best be secured by the common Delegacy composed of representatives (who in practice would presumably include the heads of the Forestry Schools of the Universities concerned) acting along with other persons appointed by the Authority we propose to set up. The equivalence of the degree examination could best be ensured by the appointment of external examiners either by the Authority or better by the common Delegacy just referred to. If this arrangement were approved in principle the details might be settled after conference with those concerned, but the principle is of vital importance.

Even if the number of Universities desiring to prepare students for the forestry degree were to increase, it is probable, that few, if any, difficulties need arise. The initial outlay would deter all who were not likely to do the work efficiently, whilst those who decided to undertake it would find a scheme already in operation to which they might be expected to submit.

9. Research.

The relations between the Central Training Institution and research ought, in our view, to be as close as possible. In practice it would be better that they should be associated or so far as research into forest production is concerned, be combined in one common Institute rather than that they should be separated, each with its own independent organization. Teaching benefits by being associated with research, and vice versa, and it is commonly admitted that unless instruction be imparted in the "research" spirit it loses much of its value. It would seem a retrograde step to attempt to divorce the two branches, both of which are required in order to turn out first-rate officers This does not mean that every Forest Officer must necessarily be an investigator in the technical sense, but that he ought, as far as possible, to apprehend the general meaning and value of the research outlook. This was recognized by the British Empire Forestry Conference (Resolution, p. 9, Section 5).

Many of the proposed subjects of research will in a special degree require the services of trained scientific investigators: entomology, mycology, soil science, are among those which may be cited as examples of what is meant. Researches of this nature will find their requirements best met in a thoroughly well equipped Central Training Institution, especially if it is further able to draw on the resources available at a first-rate University in which scientific research on many lines is being actively prosecuted. Furthermore, in this way we think that such research into what might perhaps be described as the more scientific branches forestry would then be most economically, and what is of still greater importance, most efficiently met. The Central Institution itself and the students working in it would both derive benefit from contact with persons actually engaged in research and with the researches themselves. It is difficult to over-estimate the importance of this point.

Experience has shewn that those Institutions in which the prosecution of research forms an important part of their functions are just those which turn out men best able to cope with the problems with which they will inevitably be faced when they enter on an industrial or official career. In these careers problems of a scientific nature are continually arising, and the utilization of scientific results forms an essential condition of successful administration.

It does not fall within our terms of reference to attempt to deal with the organization of research as contemplated in the Report of the Conference (especially in Annexure B) but we desire to record our view that, on grounds both of efficiency and of economy, the essential and intimate connection between scientific training and scientific research should not be lost sight of. We believe that a proper maintenance of such relations will be just as important for the welfare of higher forestry education, and for the further development of forestry itself, as it has already proved to be in other great technical industries which are likewise founded on science and its application.

We therefore, whilst refraining from entering into details which appear to lie outside our terms of reference, would welcome the closest possible alliance between forestry research and the Central Training Institutions with which we ourselves are immediately concerned.

10. Location.

The question of the location of the Central Institution was left over by the Conference for further consideration and the alternatives before us appear to be—

(1) The setting up of the Institution as one of the Schools of a University, or

(2) Apart from a University either—

(a) Located in a University town, or

(b) Located in the country at or near a forest.

These several proposals have advantages and disadvantages which we proceed to discuss.

(1) The connection with a University and with all the phases of University life would be of undoubted advantage to the student, and the status of higher forestry training as a recognized School or Department of a University cannot fail to add dignity to the Institution itself and to the service for which it prepares.

The staff will occupy a higher position. They will be part of the University itself and will not only breathe in the atmosphere of science and education but will be in close touch with all developments in this direction. This appears to be of very real importance, particularly if research is to be combined with the teaching Institution.

The use of the laboratories, museum and lecture rooms, so far as accommodation may be available, or can be supplied, and perhaps also the assistance of some of the existing professional staff would not only be of the utmost value in themselves but would save a very large annual expenditure and also an outlay of capital which should be avoided if in any way possible.

We are bound, however, to recognize that the direct association of the Central Institution with one of the Universities may tend to increase the prestige of the Forestry Schools at that University at the expense of the other Schools, a consequence which is not desirable. This objection would apply to an almost equal extent to the scheme under rule 2 (a).

(2) (a) This proposal would have some of the advantages claimed for (1). The students and the staff while they could not be part of University life might remain in close touch with it. In addition it has some advantages of its own.

The authority in charge of forestry education would retain a complete control over the course of education and of the staff and could shape the future of forestry training in any way which seemed good to it and would perhaps be able to secure more intensive work than is customary at some Universities.

But the cost of complete buildings and equipment would be more serious than if advantage could be taken of some existing buildings at a University.

(2) (b) The advantage of close contact with the actual problems of practical forestry is of the utmost importance at this stage of training, but it may be purchased at too high a cost and can be procured in other ways.

None of the advantages of the previous methods can be recognized in this course saving only that of complete control.

If the atmosphere of the forest and the atmosphere of science and education are considered as alteratives we feel bound to pronounce in favour of the latter.

In the model curriculum laid down we lay stress upon the importance of practical training being carried on during term time and vacations both in the earlier stages of education and also during the higher course at the Central Institution. We believe that this important side of the work can be dealt with a sufficient degree even though the centre were not selected mainly for its position in relation to a forest.

For these reasons we decide without hesitation that the proposal now under discussion is the least desirable of those we have considered.

Having now set out the relative advantages and disadvantages of the above proposals, and having excluded (2) (b) we have now to consider more closely the rival merits of schemes 1 and 2 (a).

The close connection with a university, the use of its staff and of some portion of its buildings are all in favour of the former, while the latter may claim the very real advantage of the full control which the authority would be able to exercise over the whole administration.

If, however, a university is prepared to accept a sufficient measure of control from an outside body, the balance would fall so strongly on the side of scheme 1 that we should be prepared to recommend it.

We now approach the more delicate part of our task, viz. :—the decision as to which university should be recommended for the location of the Institution.

The Universities of Oxford, Cambridge and Edinburgh have each great claims for consideration, but our decision is rendered less difficult by the attitude which each separately adopts towards the principle of a Central Institution.

The University of Edinburgh considered that many universities would not desire the Central Institution within their jurisdiction both on account of outside control and because of possible friction with other universities. They considered, however, that this latter objection might be overcome by a strict impartiality in the selection of probationers from all the Forestry Schools.

In their opinion if it is decided to set up the school in connection with a university, a residential university should be selected.

The University of Cambridge objected on principle to the idea of a Central Institution and held that all forestry education is better left to individual universities. For this reason they do not desire that the Institution should be located with them.

The University of Oxford not only cordially supports the scheme but its past record in connection with forestry education gives it a peculiar claim for consideration.

In the year 1905 it was selected by the India Office as the centre for training probationers, and for two years had sole charge of their training. Since 1907, when the training has been thrown open to the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge and Edinburgh, Oxford can still claim that she has trained 88 per cent. of the number accepted for the Indian Forest Service.

This university is now contemplating a very large extension of buildings for her Botany and Forestry Schools, and accommodation might be provided in these buildings for the Central Institution. Prior to their completion some temporary arrangement could be made.

In addition, the services of the professorial staff and the university laboratories would be at the disposal of the student at the Institution.

The university, we have ascertained, is prepared to accept a measure of control, and we note later a scheme which might be accepted as sufficient.

For these reasons we consider that the Institution should be incorporated with the University of Oxford.

11. Control.

The control of the Central Institution should be in the hands of a Board of Governors (whom we have hitherto indicated as an authority for the government of the Central Institution) appointed as to one-half by the Departments concerned (Colonial Office, India Office, Forestry Commission), and as to the other half by the university. The director of the Institution shall be an ex-officio member of the Board ; the Chairman of the Board should be appointed by the Department.

The Board will deal with all questions of administration and finance and will deal with monies arising out of capital ; the capital itself, however, may with advantage be vested in the universities as trustees.

The staff, so far as they are members of the university, should be appointed by the university with the approval of the Board.

The Board may appoint Committees and have power to appoint on them members outside their own body. In addition they shall appoint Committees or Delegacies for the purpose of co-ordinating forestry education and for the appointment of external examiners and for this purpose shall add to such Committees representatives of the universities concerned.

The general conduct of the teaching and details of administration should be entrusted to the Director of the Institution who should occupy the Chair of Forestry at the university.

With regard to the appointment of the staff, it is advisable so far as may be possible to appoint as lecturers those who have had actual experience in the woods as Forest Officers ; this is also of importance when the more specialised subjects such as advanced entomology and mycology have to be dealt with. We are, however, aware that difficulties may arise for some time to come in securing suitable men who have had the necessary training and experience.

There is also a danger that the whole scheme of teaching may become sterile and lifeless if a lecturer is to go on year after year dealing with the same subjects without any refreshment in the actual practical side of the work which he is teaching. For this reason it seems to be highly desirable to arrange that the lecturer after five years or so of work in the institution should be given leave for a period to enable him to travel and get into close touch with problems in the forest.

The whole-time staff will at the commencement consist of the Director of the Institution with one or more lecturers in sylviculture and forest management, also one lecturer in mycology and one in forest entomology. The remaining lecturers can be obtained from the university.

12. Finance.

The capital cost of the Institution will depend upon the assistance which can be given by the university in the way of buildings and it is not possible at present to give any estimate of this, but we are given to understand that pending the completion of the buildings at present in contemplation at Oxford, temporary accommodation can be found for the Institution and the cost of this should not be large.

In order to give stability to the Institution, the Governments directly concerned, i.e., the United Kingdom, India and the Colonies and Protectorates should jointly guarantee a sum sufficient for normal requirements. This should include the capital expenditure on the interest and sinking fund on that expenditure, the rent, if any, and the estimated cost of administration and staff.

It may be anticipated that the annual cost may be lessened by the Governments of the Self-Governing Dominions who, while not requiring the Institution for the normal training of their probationers, may yet desire to take advantage of it for special courses or for research, and who may be willing to pay at a higher rate for such of their probationers who take these courses than the Governments who accept the whole financial responsibility of the Institution.

All payments should be made to the Governing Body at a rate to be fixed for each student and for each special or refresher course, and any debit balance should be divided between the Governments directly concerned in proportion to the number of the probationers sent by each to the Central Institution.

The following figures are suggested as an illustration :—

Total estimated cost per annum	10,000
Sum guaranteed by Governments	10,000

Payments to Governing Body.

Government A.
20 Probationers at £150	3,000
3 Special Courses at £75	225
Government B.
15 Probationers at £150	2,250
3 Special Courses at £75	225
Government C.
5 Probationers at £150	750
3 Special Courses at £75	225
Self-Governing Dominions.
3 Probationers at £225	675
3 Special Courses at £125	750
	8,100
Debit Balance ...	1,900
	10,000

Debit Balance of £1,900 divided between Governments, A, B, C, in proportion to 20 : 5 : 5.

All the Forest Services, whether directly interested or not, will require to pay the university fees and some subsistence allowance for the probationers undergoing training. These, together, should not exceed £300 per student.

13. Landowners' and Land Agents' Training.

The training in forestry for men who do not propose to enter the Forest Services, but who either own or manage woodlands, or who intend to embark on a commercial career in connection with rubber or other plantations, is outside our terms of reference, but we have been given a good deal of information on this important branch of the subject which it seems well to record.

The future of the timber supply of the United Kingdom will always depend to a considerable extent on the interest and knowledge of landowners and their agents.

Even when the full programme of State afforestation is completed, a large proportion of the woodlands will remain in private hands, and it is of the greatest importance from the national point of view that these woodlands should be properly managed.

In addition to the pure forestry education carried on at some universities there are many instances of combined agricultural and forestry courses which are well adapted for the training of these men, and the Forestry Departments of all the universities and colleges we have interviewed desire to continue them, but some financial assistance is required; in the interests of National Forestry we consider this should be given.

In the evidence we have received from the Royal English and Scottish Arboricultural Societies, the Surveyors' Institution and the Land Agents' Society, the importance of this matter is fully recognised, the main objection raised being to the length of the existing courses.

The Surveyors' Institution holds an Intermediate and Final Examination in forestry up to somewhat the same standard as the Forestry Commission's Woodmen's School, and they also hold at a later stage an optional Special Diploma Examination considerably in advance of the standard of the Final.

The Land Agents' Society propose to institute a qualifying examination in which a Forestry paper somewhat similar to the Final of the Surveyors' Institution will be included.

Neither the Society nor the Institution is a teaching body, and both agree as to the importance of a thorough training in forestry for landowners and land agents.

While owners of woodlands and some land agents will, we hope, continue to take the full agriculture and forestry course at the Universities and Colleges it would be difficult for many land agents to give up the time for the full, or even a shortened, course in forestry of six months, either during the qualifying period for their own profession, or after they had started their life work; and a shorter course of the following nature has been suggested to us :—Four courses of three weeks or one month each taken at a period during a year or in different years possibly at one or other of the Commission's Woodmen's Schools.

The first two periods should represent the training necessary and might be made compulsory for the Intermediate and Final Examinations at the Surveyors' Institution and the last two periods for the Special Diploma Examination.

There are obvious objections to these very short courses which one of our witnesses describes as "not only useless but positively dangerous," but it appears to the Committee that they are worthy of consideration by the Forestry Commission, provided that the student is in every case well grounded in practical forestry before he is accepted for such a course.

We desire to express our appreciation of the ability and zeal of Mr. Guillebaud, who has admirably performed the duties as Secretary to the Committee.

RESERVATION APPENDED TO HIS SIGNATURE OF THE REPORT BY MAJOR R. D. FURSE.

I entirely agree with the recommendations in this report, but it will of course be understood that the Governments of the Colonies and Protectorates affected by its proposals are in no way committed thereby.

SUMMARY OF CONCLUSIONS.

(1) The Central Institution should be located at Oxford and incorporated with the university (10).

(2) It should be governed by a Board appointed as to one-half by the Departments or Governments concerned and as to the other half by the university.

The Board should have general charge of the higher course of training, of finance, and of administration and may set up Committees, and in case of any Committees, whose duties bring them in contact with other universities, representatives of these universities shall be included (11).

(3) The Director of the Institution and the staff should be appointed by the university with the approval of the Board.

The Director, who should be the Professor of Forestry, will have charge of the details of education and of the discipline of the Institution under the university. The Director should at the commencement be assisted by a permanent staff of 3 lecturers and should make all the arrangements which may be necessary for the attendance of his students at other university lectures (11).

(4) No estimate of the capital cost can be made until the detailed plans of the proposed university buildings have been ascertained and discussed.

The cost, so far as it affects some or all of the Departments, should be defrayed by loan and sinking fund rather than by direct expenditure of capital.

Pending the erection of the proposed buildings, it has been ascertained that arrangements can be made with the university for temporary accommodation.

The annual cost of the permanent staff should not at the commencement exceed £4,000 per annum.

We recommend that the Departments concerned should jointly guarantee to the Board an annual sum sufficient to pay the costs of the Institution including interest and sinking fund and should defray any deficit in the annual working in proportion to the number of students trained for the services of each Department. There will be a further liability on every Department for the university fees and subsistence of the probationers, and this is estimated at £300 a year for each probationer (12).

(5) The Institution should be the centre of research in relation to forest production and should be associated with any other centre which deals with research into forest utilisation. It is improbable that all investigations can take place at one centre and the Board should be empowered to avail itself of any research into special subjects which can be conducted with better advantage elsewhere (9).

(6) Students should be selected by the Departments for admission to the Central Institution from those who have taken a forestry degree at any university whose standard of education is approved by the Board (3). Special steps should be taken to obtain a uniformity of standard (8).

A suitable general course for students at the universities and also a higher training at the Central Institution is suggested under heads (5) and (6).

The Self-Governing Dominions may desire to lay down a special standard for their probationers trained outside the United Kingdom (4).

Students who have taken an honours degree in science should be admitted to the Institution after a shortened course (5).

Officers of every Forest Service should at one period of their career return to the Institution for a special course (7).

The earliest possible notice should be given by the different services of the number of probationers that will be expected in the near future (5).

RESOLUTION

Simla, the 16th August 1921.

No. 1559-E.A.—A number of memorials regarding their pay, pensions and conditions of service generally has during the past two years been addressed to the Government of India and His Majesty's Secretary of State for India by members of the following imperial services :—

the Indian Civil Service ;
the Indian Police Service ;
the Indian Forest Service ;
the Indian Educational Service ;
the Indian Service of Engineers ;
the Superior Telegraph Branch of the Post and Telegraph Department ;
the State Railway Engineering Service ;
the Superior Revenue Establishment of State Railways ; the Imperial Customs Service ; and the Civil Veterinary Department.

These memorials have had the most full and careful consideration from the Governor General in Council and have been forwarded with his recommendations to the Secretary of State whose orders on certain of the points raised have now been received. This resolution will set forth the decisions on the requests in the memorials in so far as they relate to pay. Orders in connection with other requests not bearing directly on pay will be announced at a later date.

2. After considering the memorials the Governor General in Council decided that he could not contemplate any general readjustment of the scales of pay fixed for the imperial services. These scales have recently been revised after careful consideration by a Royal Commission appointed for the purpose. The recommendations of the Commission were most minutely examined by the Government of India and the Secretary of State in the light of the changed conditions existing after the war. The revised rates, as finally announced, were designed to secure a reasonable wage to every officer of every department in every year of his service. The Government of India are aware that there was a further rise in the cost of living after the revision was announced and that prices have not yet returned to the level which then prevailed; but they regret that the financial circumstances of the country make it impossible for them to contemplate any further general readjustment of pay, and they desire to announce their definite decision that they are not prepared to any steps in this direction.

3. Representations have also been received by Government regarding the difficulties experienced by officers of European domicile, whose home remittances as measured in rupees have been largely increased by the low rate of exchange for the time being prevailing. While conscious of the hardships caused to officers thereby, the Government of India regret that the present financial conditions do not permit them to make any concession in this respect. They do not, however, consider it to be proper that the emoluments of any individual officer of a service from which exchange compensation allowance has been withdrawn should suffer an actual reduction owing to such withdrawal; and are accordingly pleased to announce, with the approval of the Secretary of State, that any individual officer who is now holding, substantively or in an officiating capacity, a post the pay of which has not been increased, and who drew exchange compensation allowance while holding the same post at any time before the revision, will be granted, so long as he continues to hold the same post or a similar post on the same scale of pay, a personal allowance equal in amount to the exchange compensation allowance for which he would from time to time have been eligible had it not been withdrawn. In case an increase of pay has been given but is insufficient to counterbalance the loss of exchange compensation allowance, a reduced personal allowance, sufficient to make up the deficiency, will be granted.

4. Although it has been decided that no general revision of pay will be undertaken, a detailed comparison of the scales of pay sanctioned for the various services has revealed the existence of certain inequalities of treatment, due to the fact that the cases of different departments were considered at different times and that conditions changed while revision was proceeding. Certain of these inequalities have already been removed by the issue of orders revising the pay of the Indian Police Service and of existing members of the Indian Educational Service. In order to remove the remainder, the Secretary of State has agreed to the issue of the following orders, which will take effect from the 30th April 1921.

5. The first inequality which it is considered necessary to rectify is connected with the years of service in which increments of overseas pay are admissible in the various departments. Owing to the comparatively late stage at which overseas pay was introduced, the scales sanctioned for the various services are not uniform when considered on a basis either of the length of the service or of the approximate ages of the officers drawing overseas pay. The Secretary of State has therefore decided to substitute for the existing scales the five scales of overseas pay shown in Appendix A to this Resolution. The new scales are based on the approximate ages of officers employed in the various services. Except, however, in the case of the Indian Educational Service, which enjoys a time-scale of pay based upon age, no pledge is given to any officer that he will draw a definite rate of overseas pay in a definite year of his age. An officer has a claim in each year of his service to the rate of overseas pay laid down in the appropriate scale and to no more.

6. It has further been decided to alter the rule under which officers of Indian domicile in the Indian Police Service, the Indian Customs Service and the Geological Survey Department, who were in these services at the time when the revised rates of pay were introduced, are denied overseas pay; although this has been conceded in a modified form to officers of the Indian Forest Service and allowed to officers similarly situated in all other services. The Secretary of State has been pleased to order that, with effect from the 30th April 1921, the officers of Indian domicile who were in the Indian Police Service, the Indian Customs Service, the Geological Survey Department and the Indian Forest Service on the dates on which overseas pay was sanctioned for these services, including Forest probationers then under training, shall be eligible for overseas pay on the same terms and the same rates as officers of European domicile.

7. The Secretary of State has decided to equalize the pay drawn by Superintending Engineers, Conservators of Forests and Deputy Inspectors-General of Police. The pay of these three classes of administrative posts will in future be Rs. 1,750—100—2,150.

8. Finally, the Secretary of State has ordered that all temporary or officiating service in an administrative post in any of the imperial services, and all service and leave during which a Government servant held a lien on such a post, or would have held a lien had it not been suspended, shall count for increments in the time-scale applicable to that post. whether such service be continuous or not. This rule should be so applied to officers at present holding administrative posts as to permit them to draw, with effect from the 30th April 1921, pay in the time-scale now applicable to those posts calculated on the assumption that all service of the kinds in question has counted for increments.

Ordered that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

Joint Secretary to the Government of India.

RESOLUTION ON THE CONSTITUTION OF A CONCILIATION PANEL TO DEAL WITH LABOUR DISPUTES AFFECTING PUBLIC UTILITY SERVICES.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

Commerce.

CALCUTTA, THE 29TH AUGUST 1921.

RESOLUTION—No. 3268Com.

THE Committee on Industrial Unrest in Bengal, while agreeing that the best and most satisfactory method of settling disputes between employers and workmen is for the parties directly concerned to come to an agreement among themselves, recognised that there will always be a certain number of cases of acute disagreement in which the employers will resort to a lock-out or the employees to a strike rather than give way. The Committee recommended the adoption of measures of conciliation in such cases, distinguishing between disputes in public utility services which directly affect the comfort and convenience of the public and ordinary labour disputes in which the public are not, as a rule, directly concerned. The Committee remarked that the occurrence of disputes affecting the working of public utility services invariably gives rise to insistent demands on the part of the public for the intervention of Government or some outside authority. They pointed out the grave objections which exist to the direct intervention of Government in such matters and proceeded to observe :—

"What is required is some machinery which can be brought into operation without the necessity of invoking the direct intervention of Government. We suggest the formation of a conciliation board or panel, consisting of about twenty members, to be appointed by Government and to include a due proportion of all classes of the community, both European and Indian, and representatives of both capital and labour. Care should be taken to appoint only men of the highest character and reputation, who would be regarded by public opinion as fully competent to investigate impartially any question which was referred to them. In the case of any dispute arising in a public utility service which was likely to cause or had actually caused a strike or lock-out, a conciliation court consisting of a small number of members, entirely unconnected with the dispute, would be chosen from the panel and asked to go into the merits of the dispute in consultation with the parties and to give their finding. Once such a conciliation board had been established one or other of the parties to an industrial dispute could safely be trusted to apply for the creation of a conciliation court to deal with it, but, in the event of either or both parties proving unwilling to submit themselves to the arbitrament of the conciliation court, public opinion would in the great majority of cases compel them without undue delay to lay their case before the court. We would, therefore, leave it to Government to establish a conciliation court for the decision of a dispute affecting a public utility service, either on the application of one or both parties or of its own motion. There should ordinarily be no difficulty in getting the parties to agree to the members of the panel who should be selected to form the court, and it would ordinarily be preferable that the court should be constituted in accordance with the joint wishes of the parties; but if there was any difficulty on this point, Government could select the members to serve on the Court. Government might also appoint an official chairman for the court in the event of the parties preferring a Government officer to act in this capacity rather than a member of the panel, who would all be non-officials, but such appointment should only be made after consultation with the other members of the court. Further than this, however, Government should not go. Its functions should be confined to setting up the court, and in performing this function it should as far as possible secure the consent of both parties. But having constituted the court, Government should stand aside and leave the court to investigate the dispute and promulgate its findings, which would, of course, not be finally decided upon until both parties had had a full opportunity of representing their views and objections. The court would have no legal power to enforce its findings, but here again we would leave it to public opinion to induce the parties to come to terms. Great weight would undoubtedly attach to the findings of a thoroughly competent and impartial court in matters of this kind, and neither party to the dispute would be able lightly to disregard its recommendations."

2. The Governor in Council agrees with the committee that there is no reason why voluntary conciliation boards, wisely constituted, should not achieve a large measure of success in labour disputes affecting public utility services where the parties have come to a dead-lock and a solution of the dispute can only be found in the intervention of outsiders. A conciliation board recently appointed by Government to deal with a strike on certain light railways succeeded not merely in settling the specific points at issue, but also in inducing the parties to take steps for the prevention of future strikes by setting up a joint works committee which will deal with differences between employers and employed directly they arise. His Excellency in Council has no doubt as to the possibilities of success in other cases of this kind, and he considers that the time has come to put the system of conciliation boards for public utility services on a permanent basis. After consultation with representative associations and others, he has decided to appoint the following gentlemen to be members of the first conciliation panel :—

The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Murray, C.B.E.
Rai Chuni Lal Bose Bahadur, I.S.O.
Sir Ashutosh Chaudhuri, M.L.C.
Mr. R. M. Watson Smyth, M.L.C.
Mr. C. W. Rhodes, C.B E., M.L.A.

Mr. E. Jones.
Sheikh Mahbub Ali, M.L.C.
Mr. Tarit Bhusan Roy, M.L.C.
Dr. Sarat Chandra Bysack, M.A., D.L.

In order that the panel may be kept up to date, it will be constituted annually and the gentlemen now appointed will hold office till the 31st August 1922.

3. The panel is intended to deal only with disputes affecting public utility services in Calcutta and its neighbourhood ; the services of members of the panel will be invoked only on the occasion of such disputes, and nothing further will be expected of them. In the settlement of ordinary labour disputes not directly affecting the public, the element of public opinion is absent, and different considerations arise. It is not ordinarily the duty of Government to intervene in such disputes either directly or indirectly, but if both parties express a desire that their differences should be investigated by an impartial authority, the Governor in Council will be prepared to establish a special conciliation board to deal with the matter, or to take such other action as may be suitable in the circumstances of the case.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copies be forwarded to the members for information.

The amount of duty debited during the year under the system was Rs. 1,25,87,227 against Rs. 1,09,48,287 in the previous year. There were 67 depositors during the year against 59 in 1919-20, three of whom closed their accounts, leaving a balance of 64.

4. Salt golas at Sulkea and Chittagong.—During the year under review extensive repairs to the gangways and pontoons at Sulkea were taken in hand and the work is still in progress. Several 2 and 20 maunds salt tubs were purchased locally to replace defective and worn out ones. Owing to the abnormal rush of import of salt into Calcutta five temporary kutcha golas had to be erected for the storing of 3,60,000 maunds of salt. A heavy indent was made on the Director-General of Stores, India Office, for scales and Boyd's Automatic Counters, but the articles were not supplied during the year. In spite of the steady increase of imports into the port of Chittagong no difficulty was experienced in accommodating the salt owing to the large sales effected and prompt delivery granted ex-golas. The removal of the Sadarghat golas to Moheshkhal was not undertaken as no funds were allotted for the project during the year.

5. Consumption of duty-free salt for commercial purposes.—The quantity of salt delivered free of duty for commercial purposes, or on which a drawback was subsequently allowed for the same reason, amounted to 7,786 maunds as compared with 7,918 maunds in 1919-20.

6. Manufacture of salt in Bengal.—No factory has yet been started at Samudrapur in the Contai subdivision of the Midnapore district for the manufacture of salt, as explained in paragraph 6 of last year's report.

(b) Includes 1,620 maunds in transit on 31st March 1920
(c) Includes 4,285 maunds lost in transit through sinking of boats and leakage
(d) Includes 51,800 maunds stored in private warehouse at Ramkristopur and 21,200 maunds in transit on 31st March 1921

Both the import and clearance figures show considerable increase.

8. Imports.— * * * * * * * * The total imports to Calcutta and Chittagong increased by 34·4 per cent. and 191·5 per cent., respectively. There was a large increase in all qualities of salt imported to Calcutta with the exception of Port Said salt in which there was a slight decrease. The appendix shows import of salt from Tunis and the re-introduction of salt from Germany after five years. In the port of Chittagong, imports from Aden rose from 4,30,522 maunds to 10,20,878 maunds, those from Spain from 81,866 maunds to 1,26,272 maunds, and those from Port Said from 69,774 maunds to 5,94,080 maunds. There were no imports from the United Kingdom and Massawah except table salt in bottles and packets. The large increase was due to the increased tonnage during the year. The total quantity imported, viz., 17,41,238 maunds, constitutes a record, the previous largest quantity having been 17,26,122 maunds in 1915-16.

Out of the total importation of 1,43,30,010 maunds into the port of Calcutta, 96,95,663 maunds or 61 per cent. were bonded in the Sulkea golas as compared with a percentage of 73 in the previous year. The Collector of Customs Calcutta, reports that the importations and quantities bonded and balance in bond were the largest during the past five years though the percentage bonded was less.

9. Sales of imported salt from shipboard and bond.— * * * * * * * * *

In Calcutta the sales direct from shipboard show an increase by 62·9 per cent. and those from bond a decrease by 7·9 per cent. In Chittagong the sales direct from shipboard and bond increased by 10·2 per cent. and 63·2 per cent., respectively. Large contracts made by the bonders with the suppliers which the latter were not able to fulfil in the previous year for want of tonnage, were completed during the year. The increased quantity of salt thus available, coupled with the generous credits allowed to wholesale purchasers and the fall in the price of the commodity, account for the rise in the sales. There was an increase of 13·8 per cent. in the total sales of imported salt. All the vessels carrying salt to Calcutta were steamers, the number (129) of which established a record in the history of the port.

10. Transactions in the golas.—The total transactions at the golas in Calcutta and Chittagong for the past five years are given below :—

Years	Calcutta	Chittagong.
	Mds.	Mds.
1916-17	1,45,87,255	15,24,260
1918-19	1,42,66,818	20,70,799

12 Inland bonded warehouses.—There were 8 private bonded warehouses in this Presidency as compared with 6 in the previous year, viz., 2 at Narainganj (Dacca), 1 at Bhairab (Mymensingh), 1 at Madaripur (Faridpur), 2 at Jhalakati (Bakarganj) and 2 at Chandpur (Tippera). Three golas, viz., 1 at Narainganj, 1 at Bhairab and 1 at Madaripur were subsequently closed. Thus at the close of the year, there remained only 5 golas, viz., 1 at Narainganj, 2 at Jhalakati and 2 at Chandpur. The quantity of salt despatched to the above 8 inland warehouses from shipboard and golas in the ports of Calcutta and Chittagong was 3,94,192 maunds, as compared with 2,96,270 maunds in 1919-20, showing an increase by 33·0 per cent. There was an increase of 8,904 maunds or 39·7 per cent. in the quantity of salt despatched to the bonded warehouses in other Provinces, the quantities despatched in the year being 23,104 maunds to Chandbally in Bihar and Orissa and 8,200 maunds to Ajmiriganj in Assam, as compared with 8,000 maunds and 14,400 maunds, respectively, in the previous year.

* * * * * * *

Consumption and Prices.

15. Consumption.—The total quantity of salt which passed into consumption in this Presidency during the year 1920-21 was 84,46,396 maunds. This is exclusive of 44,31,188 maunds, the net export by rail, road or river, but inclusive of 7,786 maunds issued free of duty for commercial purposes.

16. Prices of salt in Bengal generally.— * * * * * * * * * * There was a decrease of 7 annas 3 pies in the average as compared with the previous year. It is reported that the market prices of salt fell on an average by Rs. 50 per 100 maunds, the price of Kurkutch salt being about Rs. 5 lower than that of crushed salt. The average wholesale price per 100 maunds of Liverpool salt was Rs. 130-0-7 as compared with Rs. 172-2-5 in the previous year.

By Government Notification No. 3146 Com. of the 16th August 1920. the maximum prices at which salt may be sold for delivery at the Sulkea and Chittagong golas were fixed at the following rates per 100 maunds :—

	Ex-golas.
	Sulkea.	Chittagong
	Rs.	Rs.
Liverpool	158	168
Spanish	153	163
Tunis	153	163
Hamburg	153	163
Port Said	150	160
Massowah	150	160
Aden Fine	150	160
Indo-Aden	149	159

At the same time the maximum retail price of salt was fixed at 1 anna 6 pies per seer in all places in the Presidency and Burdwan Divisions and 1 anna 9 pies per seer in all places in the Dacca, Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions, with the exception of the Chittagong Hill Tracts, where the maximum retail price was fixed at 2 annas per seer. and of the Sadar, Kalimpong and Kurseong subdivisions of the district of Darjeeling, where the maximum retail price was fixed at 2 annas 3 pies per seer.

The restriction about prices was withdrawn with effect from the 1st December 1920 by Government Notification No. 4128-Com. of the 22nd November 1920.

CHAPTER V.

Financial Results.

19. Receipts and charges.— * * * * * * * The receipts show an increase by Rs. 1,50,766 or 1·08 per cent., and the charges by Rs. 75,792 or 21·5 per cent. The net revenue was Rs. 1,35,82,042 which was larger than that of the previous year by Rs. 74,974 or 0·5 per cent. The increase in the receipts occurred mainly under the heads "Import duty on Salt" and "Rents of warehouses". The charges do not include any share of cost of the Customs Preventive Service, which is largely employed in safeguarding the salt revenue. As the Salt Preventive Department under my control has been amalgamated with the Excise Department, the whole expenditure of the two departments is debited to the head "6—Excise" in the first instance, a fixed sum of two lakhs being subsequently adjusted under "3—Salt".

CHAPTER VI.

Miscellaneous.

20. Saltpetre refineries and Soda factories.—As in the previous year there were five licensed saltpetre refineries at Manicktola, Sulkea, Kakurgachi, Bahirsura and Baranagar. respectively. No license was issued in 1920-21 for the manufacture of sulphate of soda.

The quantity of refined saltpetre produced during the year was 9,587 maunds as compared with 6,984 maunds in the previous year. The quantity of salt educed in the process of refinement was 780 maunds as compared with 275 maunds in 1919-20 and the quantity of sitta (impure salt) left in the course of refinement was 366 maunds against 126 maunds in the previous year. There was no sale of educed salt during the year, as compared with 202 maunds sold in 1919-20, the duty realized in that year being Rs. 252-11. As in the preceding year, the license fees realized from the saltpetre refineries amounted to Rs. 250.

DISTRESS IN THE DISTRICT OF KHULNA.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Land Revenue.

Calcutta, the 24th August 1921.

PRESS COMMUNIQUE.

THE Hon'ble Member in charge of the Revenue and Irrigation Departments has just returned from a tour in the district of Khulna. As the public have been watching with interest the situation at Khulna, the Government of Bengal think it desirable to publish the conclusions arrived at by the Hon'ble Member and the arrangements made by him to alleviate the distress prevailing in parts of the district.

There can be no doubt that owing to the cyclone of 1919 and unfavourable conditions in 1920 there has been a partial failure of crops in beels and large water-logged areas where saline water has got in and ruined the cultivation, and that in some of the villages within the affected area extreme poverty prevails among the poorer population who have got no stock of food-grain and who, partly through being unaccustomed to manual labour other than the work of cultivation, and partly owing to the geographical difficulties of the district, cannot earn a living by earth-work or other kinds of labour.

There is not the slightest doubt that in almost every centre visited by the Hon'ble Member the need of cloth for the suffering population, particularly among the womenfolk, is very great.

In the centres visited by the Hon'ble Member he came across a certain number of ill-nourished people at Boalia and Laskar within the Paikgacha thana, and the condition of the people in and around the villages of Pratapnagar within the thana of Kaliganj was certainly bad. But he was glad to observe that, whilst it cannot be denied that there is need and much need for food and cloth, in no single place did he come across any who could be described as suffering from starvation. This is due to the fact that various relief centres have been started in time, and valuable work is being done by the organisers of these relief committees. At Paikgacha the Hon'ble Member found that the Bama Mission from Hooghly were about to start work. At Boalia, Banka, Srikantapur, Pratapnagar and Assasuni, he met representatives of the various relief committees, and he was particularly struck with the excellent work being done by a band of young men at Pratapnagar under the supervision of Brahmachari Benode of Bajitpur Asram of Faridpur. The position, however, in many of these affected parts is that, whilst a portion of the cultivated area is likely again to suffer this year from the ill effects of the inrush of saline water, there are fairly large tracts where there is a distinct promise of good crops. For these reasons it seemed to the Hon'ble Member doubtful whether Government would be justified in making a formal declaration of scarcity under the Famine Code. On returning to Khulna on the evening of the 22nd he held a conference at which, besides himself and the District Officer, the following gentlemen were present:—

(1) Rai Amrita Lal Raha Bahadur, Chairman, District Board, Khulna.
(2) Babu Jatindra Nath Ghose, Vice-Chairman, District Board, Khulna.
(3) „ Kunja Behari Mukherji (Vakil, Khulna), Secretary to the District Relief Committee.
(4) „ Jyotish Chandra Ghose, B.L. (Vakil, Khulna), Joint-Secretary and Treasurer, District Relief Committee.
(5) „ Provash Chandra Chatterji, Chairman, Sadar Local Board.
(6) „ Kunja Behari Ghose, B.A., representing Sir P. C. Roy's Seva Asram, Calcutta Branch.
(7) Brahmachari Benode of Bajitpur Asram, Faridpur.
(8) Babu Naba Gopal Chaki, Subdivisional Officer, Khulna.

It was unanimously agreed at this conference that in the present situation a declaration of any area under the Famine Code by Government would mean setting up an elaborate machinery not commensurate with the present state of distress. It was also agreed that until the prospects of this year's crops can be gauged with accuracy, the most useful form of help which Government can give is to supplement by grants the funds of existing relief committee organisations. The conference was of opinion that, at least until November next, this would be not only the most economical course to pursue, but would also be more welcome to the public than any declaration of scarcity on the part of Government.

The Hon'ble Member agrees with the conference. but in arranging for funds from Government must stipulate that a part of the funds given by Government shall be ear-marked for the distribution of cloth and for better arrangements for medical relief, which is at present inadequate. The funds will be distributed at the discretion of the District Officer, who will submit to Government, through the Commissioner, reports showing the distribution made by him. The District Magistrate is already in touch with the various relief committees and will, therefore, be able to act as a co-ordinating authority so far as the distribution of Government funds is concerned. The Government of Bengal propose to take immediate action on these lines and to place such sums at the disposal of the District Officer as may be required to supplement the commendable efforts of the District Board, the District Relief Committee, Sir P. C. Roy's Seva Asram, the Ramkrishna Mission and others. It should, however, be made clear that, in the opinion of Government, the present situation in Khulna district does not demand that charitable organisation should be replaced by the rigid administration of the Famine Code. Whilst therefore appreciating the good that charitable committees are already doing in the way of alleviating the wants of the needy in the affected areas, the Government of Bengal hope that they will redouble their efforts and that these efforts will receive the generous support of the public.

W S. HOPKYNS,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal (offg).

DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS.

For the week ending on the 24th August 1921.

Summary.—During the week seasonable rain fell throughout the Province. Transplantation of winter paddy is in full swing; the progress of the operation, so far made, is generally satisfactory. Prospects are likely to be much improved if the present state of weather continues. Harvesting of autumn crops is well advanced in East and North Bengal. The average price of common rice for the Province has fallen by about 0·20 per cent. as compared with that of the previous week.

RESOLUTION.

Simla, the 24th August 1921.

No. 40R.A.—The Third Report of the Standing Joint Committee of the Houses of Parliament on Indian Affairs, dealing with the political status of Indians in Kenya Colony, is published for information. The Despatch of the Government of India, No. 33, dated the 21st October 1920, to which it refers, was published under Resolution No. 1901, dated the 27th December 1920.

ORDERED TO REPORT:—

That the Standing Joint Committee have proceeded to consider the Despatch of the Government of India, No. 33 of 21st October 1920 (Command Paper 1311 of 1921), relating to the political status of Indians in Kenya Colony. They have taken this action on the initiative of certain members of the Committee in accordance with the procedure set out in their First Report.

1. This question has for a considerable period been one of some prominence. It has formed the subject of correspondence between Lord Milner, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and the Officer Administrating the Government of the East Africa Protectorate, the India Office, and the Indian Overseas Association.

The Indian Community of the Colony gave expression to their views when a deputation on the general subject of Reforms was received by the Secretary of State for the Colonies on April 19th, 1920.

2. The original policy laid down by the Colonial Office in regard to these questions is shown in the Despatch of Lord Milner of the 21st of May, 1920, to the British East African Government—

(1) The Secretary of State agreed to the election of two Indian Members of the Legislative Council on a special Franchise, and similar representation on Municipal Councils.

(2) He did not see his way to remove the restriction upon acquiring Land in the Highlands, which he claimed would be discrimination in favour of the Asiatic as against European settlement, but he offered other areas, for Indian colonisation, and in paragraph 8 he laid down the principle of limited ownership of Town-plots.

(3) He adhered to "Segregation" on the grounds of sanitation and social convenience; and he also stated that he could not countenance any restrictions which would place natives of India at a disadvantage as compared with other immigrants.

3. This Despatch of the Secretary of State for the Colonies was forwarded by the Secretary of State for India to the Government of India, who replied in their Despatch No. 33, dated 21st October, 1920 (Command Paper 1311 of 1921) setting forth their views upon the subject.

These views were briefly as follows:—

(1) As regards the Franchise, they reiterated their opinion that there should be a Common Electoral Roll. They admitted that the bulk of the Indians were not ripe for the adults suffrage which the Europeans at present enjoy, but they proposed that there should be a common Franchise on a reasonable property basis, plus an educational test without racial discrimination, for all British subjects.

(2) They considered that the original discrimination exercised in making government grants of Land in the Highlands was not now at issue, as practically all the land had been allotted, and that there was no justification for extending this discrimination to the transfer of upland farms which were already in occupation. Even if the principle of Race-Segregation were admitted, the necessity for the prohibition of the transfer of town-plots from Europeans to Asiatics did not seem obvious, and they considered it inequitable to restrict the right of transfer of plots already alienated, and unnecessary to impose any such restriction on the sale of new plots which might be alienated hereafter.

(3) The decision of the Colonial Office as to the Segregation of races was, they asserted, resented not only by Indians in East Africa but by educated opinion throughout India. They believed that sanitation and social convenience could be adequately secured by mutual consent, by strict enforcement of sanitary and building laws, and by a just administration of municipal revenues. Legislation on racial lines would stimulate hostility and ill-feeling and would, they feared, gratuitously provoke political trouble in India and throughout the Empire.

As a basis for these specific suggestions the Government of India urged that there was no justification in a Crown Colony or Protectorate for assigning to British Indians a status in any way inferior to that of any other class of His Majesty's subjects.

They referred in conclusion to a suggestion that a Royal Commission should be appointed to consider the whole question of the administration of East African Territories, and urged the appointment of such a Commission, and the inclusion of the Indian question in the terms of reference.

4.. The discussions had reached this point when the Committee took up the question.

The Committee have heard witnesses representative both of the European Settlers and of Indian opinion in Kenya. They have also had the advantage of the evidence of official witnesses connected with Kenya, and of Sir Benjamin Robertson, who visited the Colony on behalf of the Government of India. The Under-Secretaries of State for the Colonies and for India have also attended the Committee and explained the present attitude of their respective departments.

The Committee have examined and sifted the oral evidence both in relation to the policy of the Colonal Office and to the proposals of the Government of India in the hope of ascertaining some common ground for settlement.

5. The Committee have moreover reviewed with care the proposals made by the Government of India in their despatch of 21st October.

The claim made by the Government of India, as to status on behalf of the Indians in Kenya, is clear. They do not suggest that responsible Government should be given to the Colony, or that the present official majority on the Legislative Council should be abandoned, or that the basis of Crown Colony Administration should be modified, but they claim for the British Indians that they should share with the European Settlers on a Common Franchise the right of electing members of the Legislature and of the Municipal Bodies; and that there should be no discrimination against Indians as such, as regards other rights which those Settlers enjoy.

In this connection the Committee have noted the wide concessions affecting status which are granted to all Nationals of States, Members of the League of Nations under the draft mandate for the adjacent mandated territory of Tanganyika (Command Paper 1284 of 1921)

6. The Committee have decided to recommend the acceptance of the general principle which the Government of India have laid down, namely, that there is no justification in Kenya for assigning to British Indians a status in any way inferior to that of any other class of His Majesty's subjects. Kenya is a Colony in which India has always had a peculiar interest, and Indians have taken a large share in its economic development. It is true that the Committee quickly realised that the question involved not merely the status and privileges of Indians in Kenya Colony, but in any British Colony, Mandated territory or Protectorate into which Indian immigration has occurred, or may occur in the future. The handling of this question cannot therefore be dissociated from Imperial policy of vital importance and may even affect the self-governing Dominions. But it is with Kenya alone that this Committee are at present concerned, and their recommendations are limited to the problems which have arisen there. It is the view of the Committee that any opinion which they may express with regard to Kenya need not of necessity be applicable to other cases, where the conditions may be different, and they have no desire to prejudge future issues which may not be wholly analogous.

In the light of this conclusion they have examined the specific proposals of the Government of India as to Franchise, Segregation, and Ownership of Land.

7. As regards the Franchise, the Committee accept the contention that Indians at present are not properly represented in the political and municipal life of the country, regard being had to their numbers, the position which they occupy, the taxes which they pay, and the part that they are taking in the industrial and commercial progress of the Colony. The Committee believe that a reform of the Franchise is due, which will secure for Indians an increased representation in the Legislative Council and Municipal bodies, and that effect should be given to such reform without undue delay. It may be that the best machinery will be found in the adoption of a Common Electoral Roll and a Common Franchise on a property basis with an educational test. This is in effect the Indian claim; but it was strongly objected to by some of the witnesses on the ground that, as the Indians outnumber the Europeans by more than three to one (about 30,000 to 8,000 or 9,000, a Common Roll, even with a restricted Franchise, would, if not immediately, before long, give a majority to the Indians and create a situation which the Europeans could not accept. Upon the information before them, the Committee do not feel in a position to suggest in what precise manner the Franchise should be framed with regard to the various interests concerned in Kenya. Any standard of property and education must be a question for examination, and the new regulations cannot be prepared satisfactorily without an enquiry into local conditions and an attempt to compose on the spot the contending opinions in Kenya.

8. Compulsory Segregation is undoubtedly considered by Indians as a badge of racial inferiority, and the question of how far it can be avoided ought to be carefully explored. There is evidence that certain Indian quarters in the towns have become a danger to the general health. The Committee see no reason to suppose that the arguments which have been put forward in defence of Segregation could not be met by a system of sanitation founded on the careful enforcement of uniform and enlightened regulations.

Experience is available in India of the success with which such regulations can be made effective to enable Indians and Europeans to live and carry on business side by side in harmony without resort to legal Segregation.

9. There remains the question of the Ownership of Land, which is represented by Indians as another instance of the racial discrimination of which they complain.

The claim of Indians to the right of settlement in the Highlands of the Colony presents difficulties of a special kind. The Committee are informed that the bulk of the available land has already been conveyed away; and they understand that the Colonial Office regards itself as bound by certain pledges in favour of European Settlers. They have naturally no desire to suggest any breach of faith; but they have received evidence which would seem to justify further enquiry into the matter. To what extent reform can be effected on practical and equitable lines is a matter for investigation which the Committee clearly could not undertake. But on the result of such an investingation the policy to be adopted could reasonably be made to depend.

10. The Committee have reached the conclusion that the evidence before them is insufficient to serve as a basis for any fair judgment on these important questions. It has only served to emphasise the delicacy and extreme difficulty of the whole problem, and convinced them that they cannot hope to get the material for making comprehensive recommendations from any evidence which can be obtained in this Country.

To pass a dogmatic judgment on the several points at issue would be impossible without local knowledge to which the Committee cannot pretend, or without calling masses of evidence which it might be inconvenient or impossible to obtain. Nor could the Committee, sitting in London, estimate with accuracy the depth of feeling which ranges itself behind the widely divergent views held in the Colony, or make satisfactory efforts to allay those feelings and reconcile those views. Further, the Committee recognise that it would be difficult, and possibly unfair, to expect the local government of the Colony and its officers, to translate into the details of administration conclusions which may not be received with complete and general approval in the Colony.

11. The Committee therefore strongly urge that some impartial body should visit Kenya and formulate detailed proposals as regards the various questions at issue. Practically every witness who has appeared before the Committee has admitted the advantages of such a course. The Committee recommend that, subject to the recognition of the general principle of status, this body should be charged with submitting proposals for the settlement of the difficulties as to the Franchise and the Ownership of Land and to report how far Segregation can be avoided, or proper Sanitary regulations enforced.

The Committee are concerned alone with the grievances of British Indians in Kenya, and if the enquiry is to be limited to these grievances, they make no precise recommendations as to the nature of the Tribunal which should be appointed.

12. The Committee are aware, however, that there are other problems in East Africa which will call for local investigation, besides the grievances of Indians. And even in the examination of those grievances it must not be forgotten that it is the Native population which forms the predominant factor in the country It vastly exceeds the Europeans and the Asiatics in number. In Kenya alone, the Natives number probably 2,800,000, while the Europeans and Asiatics together do not exceed 40,000. The continuance in Kenya of the Crown Colony system of administration implies the recognition of our duty to the Native African Races, and their ultimate participation in some form of self-government will depend on their response to the influences of civilisation.

The problem of the Indian Community is thus only part of a much larger one which faces His Majesty's Government, not only in Kenya but also in the adjacent tropical Colonies and in the Mandated Territory of Tanganyika; and the comparatively narrow problem to which the Committee have addressed themselves has brought into the perspective matters of urgent Imperial moment in tropical administration. If it is found desirable to appoint a Royal Commission to consider those matters, the Committee recommend the inclusion of the Indian question in its terms of reference.

2. The more important changes are as follows :—

Clause 1(3).—We have included in this sub-clause provision for making the proposed Act applicable in the first instance to Calcutta as defined in section 3(7) of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899, as there does not appear to be any particular reason why the Act should be restricted to places within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the High Court.

Clause 3, sub-clause (1).—The majority of us are of opinion that girls should be included within the scope of the proposed Act, since the need for the protection of girls appears to be as great as, if not greater than, the need for the protection of boys. We have also raised the age limit of a child from twelve to fourteen years as being more suitable. The Bill has been revised wherever necessary to give effect to these changes. "Industrial school" has been substituted for "certified school" in sub-clause (l) as it seems desirable that a child should ordinarily be sent to an industrial school and not to a reformatory school. The nomenclature of the schools dealt with by the Bill has also been revised in other clauses of the Bill, wherever necessary, in order to bring out more clearly the types of schools referred to in the several clauses.

Clause 4.—We have added the Courts of Additional and Assistant Sessions Judges in this clause to make the intention clearer, and have also provided that the powers conferred on Courts by this Act may be exercised by revisional Courts.

Clause 6.—The addition made by us in sub-clause (2) is intended to make it clear that the managers of certified schools may receive pecuniary assistance from the Local Government for the maintenance of such schools.

Clause 7.—We have omitted the words "of visitors" as being unnecessary.

Clauses 8 and 10.—The provisos added by us to these clauses are consequential upon the recommendation that the scope of the Bill be extended so as to include girls. We have provided that the inspection of schools for girls only shall when possible be conducted by a woman.

Clause 16.—The words "not established by the Local Government" have been struck out as being unnecessary.

Clause 21.—Sub-clause (2) has been amplified in order to make it incumbent on the police officer in charge of a police-station to inform the parent or guardian of a child or young person arrested of the arrest as soon as possible. In the proviso to this sub-clause the nearest adult male relative of the child or young person has been included for the purposes of the sub-clause. In sub-clause (5) we have provided that the mother or the female guardian of a child or young person may appear before a Court by a pleader or agent.

Clause 22 has been re-drafted on the lines of section 22 of the Madras Children Act, 1920, and section 102 of the English Children Act, 1908, so as to ensure that, except under special circumstances, persons under 16 years of age are not to be sentenced to imprisonment, and that such persons are under no circumstances to be sentenced to death or transportation.

Clause 25 (b).—This clause has been altered so that in certain circumstances the custody of a youthful offender may be given to a trustworthy and respectable person, instead of sending him to be detained in a reformatory or industrial school.

Clause 28.—Sub-clause (a1) has been included to enable a Court having jurisdiction to take action under this clause on his own information. In this sub-clause we have also made provisions for the protection of a child who—

(a) is habitually neglected or cruelly ill-treated, or

(b) frequents the company of prostitutes, or

(c) is living in circumstances calculated to favour the seduction or prostitution of the child.

Sub-clause (1) has been revised so as to make it clear that action under clause 28 may be taken only by a person authorized by the Local Government, who may be a police officer. We have also revised the sub-clause so as to restrict it to begging in any street or place of public resort.

Clause 29.—Sub-clause (2) has been slightly revised in consequence of the alterations made in clause 28.

Clause 32.—In sub-clause (1) we have indicated the purposes for which a youthful offender or child is to be licensed out. The other changes in this clause are merely drafting alterations made with the object of following more closely the wording of the English Act.

Clause 33.—The consequential alteration in this clause is necessary owing to the changes made in clause 32.

Clause 34.—We have reduced the term of imprisonment from six months to two months, as we consider this period sufficient in the case of the offences mentioned in this clause.

Clauses 37 and 39.—The changes made in these clauses are merely drafting alterations, the object being to make the meaning clearer.

Clause 38.—Sub-clause (1) has been altered to follow more closely the wording of section 123 of the English Act. It now provides that the Court shall take such evidence as to the age of a child or young person as may be forthcoming at the hearing of the case.

Sub-clause (3) has been omitted, as we consider it unnecessary to bar the operation of the existing law as contemplated by the sub-clause.

Clause 39A embodies, with slight modifications, clause 44 of the Bill, and has been reproduced here as being more appropriate.

Clause 39B.—This clause is based on section 109 of the English Act, and appears to be necessary as containing legal authority for the custody of youthful offenders, young persons and children in places of detention.

Clause 39C.—This clause merely reproduces clause 17 of the Bill in a more suitable place. As it deals with the inspection of any institution for poor children, it does not appear to be appropriately included in Chapter II.

Clause 42.—Sub-clause (2) (c) has been omitted as being unnecessary.

Clause 43.—This clause has been revised so as to include clause 39 which deals with the selection of schools. In sub-clause (1) (c) the Courts of an Additional Sessions Judge and of an Assistant Sessions Judge have been included.

Clause 43A.—This clause reproduces sub-clause (3) of clause 43, but it has been made clear that the High Court may exercise the power of revision either on the report of a Sessions Judge or of a District Magistrate, or on the application of a party interested, or on its own initiative.

3. The Bill was published in English, in the Calcutta Gazette of the 8th June, 1921.

4. We recommend that the Bill be re-published for general information under Standing Order 46 of the Bengal Legislative Council Standing Orders, 1920.

CALCUTTA;
The 23rd August, 1921.

* This member signed subject to his Note of Dissent appended.

NOTE OF DISSENT BY DR. HASSAN SUHRAWARDY, M.L.C.

In signing the report of the Select Committee which was appointed to consider this Bill, there are three points on which I feel bound to differ from the conclusions which have been arrived at.

1. In Chapter I, clause 1 (3), "Calcutta" is defined in accordance with the limits assigned to it in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899. This means that the suburbs, including the municipal areas of Cossipore-Chitpur, Manicktollah, Alipore, Tollygunge, Kidderpur, Garden Reach and Howrah, are excluded from the area in which the Bill will in the first instance be operative. I believe that this restriction of area will defeat the purposes for which this Bill has been framed. It leaves places to which people who desire to escape from the provisions of the Bill can easily retreat and thus place children who are being brought up to lives of immorality out of the reach of the protection which the Bill is designed to provide. It has been urged that the expense which will be incurred in applying this Bill even to the smaller area of Calcutta under the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899, will tax the available resources to the utmost, but it is better that the most glaring cases of child oppression, corruption and cruelty which are to be found within the larger area should be dealt with, than that an easy means of escape should be left to which such cases from the smaller area might escape, even though it means that it will not be possible for the provisions of the Bill to be enforced in every case which might be dealt with in accordance with its provisions. The experience gained from the Ghee Adulteration Act a few years ago should not be lost sight of.

2. In Chapter III, clauses 18, 19 and 20, the phrase "the detention in the prescribed manner" occurs. As the Bill gives no further definition of this phrase, it is apparently to be understood as detention under arrest in a police-station. I hold that it is most important, if the principles upon which this Bill is based are to be carried into proper effect, that provision should be made for the detention of children and youthful offenders in some central house entirely distinct from the police thanas. This central house should provide separate accommodation for children who are merely destitute and those who have been exposed to corrupting influences or have committed actual offences. Separate provision too should be made for boys and girls, and the girls should be placed under the care of a qualified matron. It is at this central house of detention that the Magistrate should attend who is to deal with cases of youthful offenders and children in accordance with the terms of this Bill. It is most important that the children should be kept away from adult criminals and the general atmosphere of the police thanas and police courts.

3. In Chapter IV as amended the powers of persons authorized by the Government to bring juvenile offenders and children before a Magistrate having jurisdiction under this Act have been greatly restricted. Such persons are only able to deal with begging, wandering or destitute children, without previously resorting to the Court to report the case which they desire to have inquired into. The delay which will thereby be caused is likely in a very large measure to defeat the ends of the Bill, certainly as regards the cases of children in immoral company or surroundings who stand in the greatest need of the protection which the Bill should provide. Surely it is open to any person without special authorisation of the Government to bring a child who is found wandering about and destitute before the Magistrate as it is a duty which common humanity imposes upon every right-minded citizen. The authorisation of Government ought to empower carefully selected persons or class of persons to bring at once before a Magistrate children who frequent the company of any reputed thief or prostitute or live in houses of ill-fame, or are subject to cruel treatment. The security against any abuse of these powers lies in the careful selection of those to whom they are entrusted. It is better that the number of authorised persons should be comparatively small, while their powers are real and adequate, than that the number should be large but their powers so limited as to render them of little use in the protection of child life.

NOTE OF DISSENT BY BABU JOGENDRA CHUNDER GHOSE, M.L.C.

The Bill as amended by the Select Committee has my cordial support. But I consider the following amendments will make it more acceptable to the people of this country.

1. Clause 16 lays down that the managers of a certified school when they have once admitted a youthful offender or child would not be allowed to exclude him from the school, however obstinate and mischievous he may prove. I think the clause should be omitted.

2. Clause 18 authorises a policeman to arrest a boy or girl under the age of sixteen and take him or her to the police-station where he or she may be granted bail. This provision will prove very disagreeable to Hindus and Muhammadans who observe the Purda. The English Children Act is much more liberal and lenient. I would propose that for the last line of clause 18 the following provision of the English Act be substituted :—

> "shall release such person on a recognizance, with or without sureties, for such an amount as will in the opinion of the officer secure the attendance of such person upon the hearing of the charge, being entered into by him or by his parent or guardian."

I would also add "In the case of a female above the age of eleven, the arresting officer should release her at once if her parents or husband or any male member of her family or any other respectable person stands surety for her and goes to the police-station in her stead.

3. I consider the objection of the Marwari Association to clause 26 to be reasonable, and that in line 8 after the word "person" the words "who is not very poor" should be added.

4. Clause 27 is a paraphrase of section 104 of the English Act. It would have been better if the wording of that section were adopted in its entirety. However, I would only propose that clause 27 be so amended that for the vague words "an offence of so serious a nature", the words of the English Act "an attempt to murder, man-slaughter, or wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm" be substituted.

I would do so on general grounds, and also on the ground of excluding political offences.

5. In clause 28, for sub-clause (a) I would substitute "lives by habitually begging under circumstances which may lead to an idle and vicious life."

After sub-clause (3), I would, following the law in many of the States in America, propose that the following new sub-clause be added :—

> "that in case of females the inquiry should be held with the assistance of a jury."

6. In Chapter VI (Miscellaneous). I would add the following provisions of the English Act :—

"39 (A). If a pawn-broker takes an article in pawn from any person apparently under the age of fourteen years, whether offered by that person on his behalf or on behalf of any other person, he shall be guilty of an offence punishable with a fine not exceeding Rs. 100."

"39B. If a person habitually wanders from place to place and takes with him any child above the age of five not related to him by blood, such child may be arrested and produced before a Court authorised under this Act to make inquiries under section 28 and may, after due inquiry, if such Court thinks fit, be sent to a certified school."

"39C. If any person sells, gives or causes to be given to any child or young person any cigarettes or any intoxicating liquor, except upon the order of a duly qualified medical practitioner, he shall on summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50."

7. I would also include the sections of the English Act about cruelty and seduction. As we have got the English Children Act before us, I do not see why our Act should not be made quite as beneficial as the English Act. I would therefore add the following clauses after clause 34 :—

"34A. If it appears to a Court authorised by the Local Government to deal with cases under this Act on information properly verified by any person, who in the opinion of the Court is acting in the interests of a child or young person, that there is reasonable cause to suspect that the child or young person has been or is being assaulted, ill-treated or neglected, in any place within the area in its jurisdiction to which the Local Government may, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, direct that this section shall apply, in a manner likely to cause the child or young person unnecessary suffering or to be injurious to his health, such person shall on conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 100 and the Court may commit the child or young person in respect of whom the offence is committed to the care of a relative, if any be forthcoming, to take charge of him."

"34B. If any person having the custody, charge or care of a girl under the age of sixteen years causes or encourages or abets the seduction or prostitution of that girl, he shall be guilty of an offence punishable with imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any period not exceeding two years."

"34C. Where it is shown to the satisfaction of a Court authorised to deal with cases under this Act on the complaint of any person that a girl under the age of sixteen is being treated with cruelty by her guardian or is, with the knowledge of her parent or guardian, exposed to the risk of seduction or prostitution or living a life of prostitution, the Court may adjudge her parent or guardian to enter into a recognizance to exercise due care and supervision in respect of the girl."

I have to some extent modified the wording of the sections of the English Act in order to make the law here less stringent.

VII, c. 67, s. 44(1).]

(2) "guardian" in relation to a child, young person, or youthful offender, includes any person who, in the opinion of the Court having cognizance of any case in relation to the child, young person, or youthful offender, or in which the child, young person, or youthful offender is concerned, has for the time being the charge of or control over the child, young person, or youthful offender; [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 131.]

[Cf. VIII of 1897, s. 9.]

(2) The Court to which the proceedings are submitted under sub-section (1) may make such further inquiry (if any) as it may think fit and may make such order dealing with the case as such Court might have made if the child or young person had originally been brought before it.

REFORMATORY AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

Establishment and certification of schools.

6. (1) The Local Government may establish and maintain reformatory and industrial schools for the reception of youthful offenders and children who may be sent there in pursuance of this Act. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 45; VIII of 1897, s. 6.]

Management of schools

7. (1) For the control and management of every reformatory or industrial school established under section 6, sub-section (1), a superintendent and a committee shall be appointed by the Local Government, and such superintendent and committee shall be deemed to be the managers of the school for the purposes of this Act. [Cf. VIII of 1897, s. 17.]

(2) Every school certified under section 6, sub-section (2), shall be under the management of such persons as may be approved by the Local Government, and the persons so approved shall be deemed to be the managers of the school for the purposes of this Act.

Inspection of schools

8. (1) The Local Government may appoint a chief inspector of reformatory and industrial schools and so many inspectors and assistant inspectors as they think fit to assist the chief inspector; and every person so appointed to assist the chief inspector shall have such of the powers and duties of the chief inspector as the Local Government direct, but shall act under the direction of the chief inspector. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 46 (1).]

Provided that, in the case of a school for girls only, such practitioner shall, when practicable, be a woman.

Power of Local Government to withdraw certificate

11. The Local Government, if dissatisfied with the condition, rules, management, or superintendence of a certified school, may, at any time, by notice served on the managers of the school, declare [Cf 8 Edw VII, c. 67, s. 47; VIII of 1897, s. 5 (c).]

The Bengal Children Bill, 1921.

(Chapter II.—Reformatory and industrial schools.—Clauses 12—17.)

that the certificate of the school is withdrawn as from the time specified in the notice, and, at that time, the withdrawal of the certificate shall take effect, and the school shall cease to be a certified school:

Provided that the Local Government may, if they think fit, instead of so withdrawing the certificate, by notice served on the managers of the school, prohibit the admission of youthful offenders or children to the school for such time as may be specified in the notice or until the notice is revoked.

Resignation of certificate by managers.

12. The managers of a certified school, on giving six months' notice in writing to the Local Government, through the chief inspector, of their intention so to do, may resign the certificate of the school, and, accordingly, at the expiration of six months from the date of the notice (unless before that time the notice is withdrawn), the resignation of the certificate shall take effect, and the school shall cease to be a certified school. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s 48.]

Effect of withdrawal or resignation of certificate

13. No youthful offender or child shall be received into a certified school in pursuance of this Act after the date of the receipt by the managers of the school of a notice of withdrawal of the certificate for the school, or after the date of a notice of resignation of the certificate; but the obligation of the managers of the school, mentioned in section 16, to teach, train, lodge, clothe and feed any youthful offenders or children detained in the school at the respective dates aforesaid shall, except so far as the Local Government otherwise direct, continue until the withdrawal or resignation of the certificate takes effect. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s 49.]

Disposal of inmates when school ceases to be certified

14. When a school ceases to be a certified school, the youthful offenders or children detained therein shall, by order of the Local Government, be discharged or transferred to some other reformatory or industrial school in accordance with the provisions of this Act. [Cf. 8 Edw VII, c 67, s 50.]

Auxiliary homes

15. The Local Government may establish auxiliary homes for the reception of any inmates or any classes of inmates of reformatory or industrial schools, or may certify any other such home established before or after the passing of this Act by any other persons, and the certificate may be withdrawn or resigned in like manner as a certificate of a school; and every such home shall, for such purposes as may be specified by the Local Government, be treated as part of the school or schools to which it is attached. [Cf. 8 Edw VII, c. 67, s 51.]

Liabilities of managers

16. The managers of a certified school may decline to receive any youthful offender or child proposed to be sent to them in pursuance of this Act, but when they have once accepted any such offender or child, they shall be deemed to have undertaken to teach, train, lodge, clothe and feed him during the whole period for which he is liable to be detained in the school, or until the withdrawal or resignation of the certificate of the school takes effect. [Cf. 8 Edw VII, c 67, s 52.]

CHAPTER III.

YOUTHFUL OFFENDERS.

Bail of child or young person.

18. When a person apparently under the age of sixteen years is arrested and cannot be brought forthwith before a Court, the officer in charge of the police-station to which such person is brought may, unless the charge is one of homicide or any other offence punishable in the case of an adult with death or transportation, release him on bail, with or without sureties. [Cf. 8 Edw VII, c. 67, s. 94.]

Custody of child or young person not released on bail.

19. (1) When a person apparently under the age of sixteen years having been arrested is not released on bail as provided in section 18, the officer in charge of the police-station shall cause him to be detained in the prescribed manner, until he can be brought before a Court. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 95.]

(2) No police-officer shall, however, detain in custody any such person for a longer period than is reasonable under all the circumstances of the case; and such period shall not, in the absence of a special order of a Court, exceed twenty-four hours, exclusive of the time necessary for the journey from the place of arrest to the Court. [Cf. Act V of 1898, s. 61.]

Remand or committal to custody.

20. A Court, on remanding or committing for trial a child or young person who is not released on bail as provided in section 18, may, instead of committing him to prison, order him to be detained in the prescribed manner, for the period for which he is remanded.

Attendance at Court of parent of child or young person charged with an offence, etc.

21. (1) When a child or young person is charged with any offence, or when a child is brought before a Court on an application for an order to send him to an industrial school, his parent or guardian may, in any case, and shall, if he can be found and resides within a reasonable distance and the person so charged or brought before the Court is a child, be required to attend at the Court before which the case is heard, during all the stages of the proceedings, unless the Court is satisfied that it would be unreasonable to require his attendance. [Cf. 8 Edw VII, c. 67, s. 98 (1).]

(2) When the child or young person is arrested, the officer in charge of the police-station to which he is brought shall forthwith inform the parent or guardian, if he can be found, of such arrest, and shall also cause him to be warned to attend at the Court before which the child or young person will appear. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 98 (2).]

(3) The parent or guardian, whose attendance is required under this section, shall be the parent or guardian having the actual possession and control of the child or young person: [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 98 (4).]

Provided that, if that person is not the father, the attendance of the father or the nearest adult male relative may also be required.

(4) The attendance of the parent of a child or young person shall not be required under this section in any case where the child or young person was, before the institution of the proceedings, removed from the custody or charge of his parent by an order of a Court. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 98 (5).]

The Bengal Children Bill, 1921.

(Chapter III.—Youthful offenders.—Clauses 22, 23.)

(5) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to require the attendance of the mother or the female guardian of a child or young person, if such mother or female guardian does not, according to the customs and manners of the country, appear in public, but any such person may appear before the Court by a pleader or agent.

Restrictions on punishment of children and young persons.

22. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any law, no child or young person shall be sentenced to death, transportation or imprisonment or committed to prison in default of payment of a fine or in default of furnishing security: [Cf Mad Act IV of 1920 s. 22]

Provided that a young person may be sentenced to imprisonment or committed to prison as aforesaid when the Court certifies that he is of so unruly or so depraved a character that he is not a fit person to be sent to a reformatory school and that none of the other methods in which the case may legally be dealt with is suitable.

MODE OF SENDING YOUTHFUL OFFENDERS TO REFORMATORY OR INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

Commitment of offenders between twelve and sixteen years of age to reformatory or industrial schools

23. (1) When a youthful offender, who in the opinion of the Court before which he is charged is twelve years of age or upwards, is convicted of an offence punishable in the case of an adult with transportation or imprisonment, the Court may, in addition to or in lieu of sentencing him according to law to any other punishment, order that he be sent to a reformatory school: [Cf 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 57, VIII of 1897, s 8]

Provided that when the offender is ordered to be sent to a reformatory school he shall not in addition be sentenced to imprisonment. [Cf 8 Edw VII, c 67, s 84, VIII of 1897, s 10]

(2) When a youthful offender of twelve years of age or upwards has been sentenced to transportation or imprisonment, the Local Government may direct that in lieu of undergoing or completing such sentence, he shall be sent to a reformatory school; and thereupon the offender shall be subject to all the provisions of this Act as if he had been originally sentenced to detention in a reformatory school.

(3) When a youthful offender, who in the opinion of the Court before which he is charged is under twelve years of age, is convicted of an offence punishable in the case of an adult with death, transportation or imprisonment, the Court may order that he be sent to an industrial school.

(4) When a young person, of the age of twelve or thirteen years, who has not previously been convicted, is convicted of an offence punishable in the case of an adult with transportation or imprisonment, and the Court is satisfied that the young person should be sent to an industrial school, but, having regard to the special circumstances of the case, should not be sent to a reformatory school, and is also satisfied that the character and antecedents of the young person are such that he will not exercise an evil influence over the other inmates of an industrial school, the Court may order the young person to be sent to an industrial school after previously ascertaining that the managers are willing to receive him:

The Bengal Children Bill, 1921.

(Chapter III.—Youthful offenders—Clauses 24—26.)

Provided that the Local Government may, on the application of the managers of the industrial school, by order, transfer the young person to a reformatory school.

(5) When a young person has been ordered by a Court to give security under section 106 or section 118 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, and has failed to do so, the Court which made the order may order such young person to be sent to a reformatory school. Act V of 1898

Period of detention.

24. Every order, in pursuance of which a youthful offender or child is sent to a reformatory or industrial school, shall specify the time for which the youthful offender or child is to be detained in the school, being— [Cf. 8 Edw VII, c 67, s 65; VIII of 1897, s 8]

(a) in the case of a youthful offender sent to a reformatory school, not less than two and not more than five years, but not in any case extending beyond the time when the youthful offender will, in the opinion of the Court, attain the age of eighteen years; and

(b) in the case of a child sent to an industrial school, such time as to the Court may seem proper for the teaching and training of the child, but not in any case extending beyond the time when the child will, in the opinion of the Court, attain the age of sixteen years.

OTHER WAYS OF DEALING WITH YOUTHFUL OFFENDERS.

Power to discharge youthful offender or to commit him to suitable custody.

25. A Court may, if it shall think fit, instead of directing any youthful offender to be detained in a reformatory or industrial school, order him to be— [Cf. VIII of 1897, s 31.]

(a) discharged after due admonition, or

(b) committed to the custody of his parent or guardian or any adult relative, or failing any such person, or if any such person is found unfit by the Court, then to the custody of any trustworthy and respectable person, on such parent, guardian, relative or person executing a bond, with or without sureties, as the Court may require, to be responsible for the good behaviour of the youthful offender for any period not exceeding twelve months, and the Court may, in addition to such order, make an order that the youthful offender be placed under the supervision of a person to be named by the Court.

Power to order parent to pay fine, etc.

26. (1) When a child or young person is convicted of an offence punishable with fine and the Court is of opinion that the case would be best met by the imposition of a fine, whether with or without any other punishment, the Court may, in any case, and shall, if the offender is a child, order that the fine be paid by the parent or guardian of the child or young person, unless the Court is satisfied that the parent or guardian cannot be found or that he has not conduced to the commission of the offence by neglecting to exercise due care of the child or young person. [Cf. 8 Edw VII, c 67, s 99(1) and (3).]

The Bengal Children Bill, 1921.

(Chapter III.—Youthful offenders.—Chapter IV.—Mode of sending neglected children to industrial schools.—Clauses 27, 28.)

(2) An order under this section may be made against a parent or guardian who, having been required to attend, has failed to do so, but, save as aforesaid, no such order shall be made without giving the parent or guardian an opportunity of being heard. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 99(4).]

(3) Any order directing that a parent or guardian shall pay a fine under this section may be enforced as though it were an order passed under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 99(5).] Act V of 1898

(4) A parent or guardian may appeal against any such order as if it had been an order passed in proceedings against himself. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 99(6).]

Detention in the case of certain crimes committed by children.

27. (1) When a child is convicted of an offence of so serious a nature that the Court is of opinion that no punishment which under the provisions of this Act it is authorized to inflict is sufficient, the Court shall order the offender to be kept in safe custody in such place or manner as it thinks fit, and shall report the case for the orders of the Local Government. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 104.]

(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 22, the Local Government may order any such child to be detained in such place and on such conditions as they think fit, and whilst so detained the child shall be deemed to be in legal custody:

Provided that no period of detention so ordered shall exceed the maximum period of imprisonment to which the child could have been sentenced for the offence committed. [Cf. Mad. Act IV of 1920, s. 27 prov.]

CHAPTER IV.

MODE OF SENDING NEGLECTED CHILDREN TO INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

Children liable to be sent to industrial schools.

28. (a1) In any area to which the Local Government may, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, direct that this section or any portion of it shall apply, a Court having jurisdiction under this Act— [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 58(1).]

(i) upon receiving a petition in this behalf, or

(ii) upon a police report, or

(iii) upon its own knowledge or suspicion, may, either by a summons to the parent or guardian of a child apparently under the age of fourteen years or by a warrant addressed to any police-officer or other person authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, order the production of such child on such a day as may be specified in the summons or warrant if the Court has reason to believe that the child—

(b) is destitute, not being an orphan and having both parents or his surviving parent, or in the case of an illegitimate child his mother, undergoing transportation or imprisonment; or

(c) is under the care of a parent or guardian who, by reason of criminal or drunken habits, is unfit to have the care of the child; or

(d) is under the care of a parent or guardian who habitually neglects or cruelly ill-treats the child; or

(e) frequents the company of any reputed thief or prostitute; or

(f) is living in circumstances calculated to cause, encourage or favour the seduction or prostitution of the child.

(1) In any such area, any person authorized by the Local Government in this behalf may bring before a Juvenile Court or Court of a Magistrate having jurisdiction under this Act any child apparently under the age of fourteen years who—

(a) is found in any street or place of public resort begging or receiving alms (whether or not there is any pretence of singing, playing, performing, offering anything for sale, or otherwise), or being in any such street, or place for the purpose of so begging or receiving alms; or

(b) is found wandering and not having any home or settled place of abode, or visible means of subsistence, or is found wandering and having no parent or guardian, or a parent or guardian who does not exercise proper guardianship; or

(c) is found destitute, not being an orphan and having both parents or his surviving parent, or in the case of an illegitimate child his mother, undergoing transportation or imprisonment; and the Court before which a child is brought as coming within one of those descriptions shall examine the information and record the substance of such examination, and shall, if it thinks that there are sufficient grounds for inquiring further, fix a date for such inquiry.

(2) On the date fixed for the production of the child under sub-section (a1) or for the inquiry under sub-section (1), or on any subsequent date to which the proceedings may be adjourned, the Court shall hear and record all evidence which may be adduced and consider any cause which may be shown why an order sending the child to an industrial school should not be passed and make any further inquiry it thinks fit.

The Bengal Children Bill, 1921.

(Chapter IV.—Mode of sending neglected children to industrial schools.—Chapter V.—Maintenance and treatment of persons in reformatory or industrial schools or under custody.—Clauses 29, 30.)

(3) If, after inquiry, the Court is satisfied that it is expedient to send the child to an industrial school, it shall pass an order to that effect.

Power to commit child or young person to suitable custody

29. (1) When under this Act a Court is empowered to order a child to be sent to an industrial school the Court, in lieu of ordering him to be so sent, may make an order for the committal of the child to suitable custody in the prescribed manner, until he attains the age of sixteen years, or for any shorter period. [Cf 8 Edw VII, c 67, s 58(7)]

(2) Any person authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, may bring before a Juvenile Court or Court of a Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case any young person apparently of the age of fourteen or fifteen years so circumstanced, that if he were a child, he would come within one or other of the descriptions mentioned in section 28, and the Court, if satisfied, after inquiry in the manner prescribed by section 28, sub-sections (1) and (2), that it is expedient so to deal with him, may make an order for his committal to suitable custody in the prescribed manner, until he attains the age of sixteen years, or for any shorter period. [Cf 8 Edw VII, c 67, s 59]

(3) The Court which makes an order committing a child or young person to suitable custody under this section may, in addition, order that the child or young person be placed under the supervision of a person to be named by the Court.

CHAPTER V.

MAINTENANCE AND TREATMENT OF PERSONS IN REFORMATORY OR INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS OR UNDER CUSTODY.

Contribution of parent

30. (1) The Court which makes an order for the detention of a youthful offender or child in a reformatory or industrial school or for the committal of a child or young person to suitable custody under this Act, may order the parent or other person liable to maintain the youthful offender, young person or child to contribute to his maintenance, if able to do so, in the prescribed manner.

(2) The Court, before making an order under sub-section (1), shall inquire into the circumstances of the parent or other person liable to maintain the youthful offender, young person or child, and shall record the evidence, if any, in the presence of the parent or such other person, as the case may be, or, when his personal attendance is dispensed with, in the presence of his pleader.

(3) The persons liable to maintain a youthful offender, young person or child shall, for the purposes of sub-section (1), include, in the case of illegitimacy, his putative father:

Provided that where the youthful offender, young person or child is illegitimate and an order for his maintenance has been made under section 488 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, the Court shall not ordinarily make an order for contribution against Act V of 1898

The Bengal Children Bill, 1921.

(Chapter V.—Maintenance and treatment of persons in reformatory or industrial schools or under custody.—Clauses 31, 32.) the putative father but may order the whole or any part of the sums accruing due under the said order for maintenance to be paid to such person as may be named by the Court, and such sums shall be applied by him towards the maintenance of the youthful offender, young person or child.

(4) Any order under this section may be enforced in the same manner as an order under section 488 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. Act V of 1898.

Boarding out of children.

31. The managers of an industrial school to which a child under the age of eight years is sent may, with the consent of the chief inspector, board the child out with any suitable person, until the child reaches the age of ten years, and thereafter for such longer period, with the consent of the chief inspector, as the managers consider to be advisable in the interests of the child, subject to the exercise by the managers of such powers as to supervision, recall, and otherwise as may be prescribed; and, when a child is so boarded out, he shall, nevertheless, be deemed, for the purposes of this Act, to be a child detained in the school, and the provisions of this Act shall apply accordingly, so far as possible. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 58.]

Placing out on license

32. (1) When a youthful offender or child is detained in a reformatory or industrial school, the managers of the school may, at any time, with the consent of the chief inspector, or after the expiration of eighteen months of the period of detention, without any such consent, by license, permit the youthful offender or child on such conditions as may be prescribed, to live with any trustworthy and respectable person named in the license willing to receive and take charge of him with a view to train him for some useful trade or calling. [Cf. 8 Edw VII, c. 67, s. 67(1); VIII of 1897, s. 18.]

(2) Any license so granted shall be in force until revoked or forfeited by the breach of any of the conditions on which it was granted. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 67(2).]

(3) The managers of the school may, at any time by order in writing, revoke any such license, and order the youthful offender or child to return to the school, and shall do so at the desire of the person to whom the youthful offender or child is licensed. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 67(3); VIII of 1897, s. 19.]

(4) If the youthful offender or child refuses or fails to return to the school, the managers of the school may, if necessary, arrest him or cause him to be arrested and may take him, or cause him to be taken, back to the school.

(5) The time during which a youthful offender or child is absent from a reformatory or industrial school in pursuance of a license under this section shall be deemed to be part of the time of his detention in the school: [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 67(5).]

Provided that, when a youthful offender or child has failed to return to the school on the license being revoked or forfeited, the time which elapses after his failure so to return shall be excluded in computing the time during which he is to be detained in the school.

The Bengal Children Bill, 1921.

(Chapter V.—Maintenance and treatment of persons in reformatory or industrial schools or under custody.—Clauses 33—36.)

Power to order parent to produce a youthful offender or child who refuses to return to a school

33. (1) When a license has been revoked or forfeited and the youthful offender or child refuses or fails to return to the school, a Court, if satisfied by information on oath that there is reasonable ground for believing that his parent or guardian could produce the youthful offender or child, may issue a summons requiring the parent or guardian to attend at the Court on such a day as may be specified in the summons, and to produce the child, and, if he fails to do so without reasonable excuse, he shall, in addition to any other liability to which he may be subject under the provisions of this Act, be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty-five rupees. [Cf. 8 Edw VII, c 67, s 67(6).]

(2) Any order directing that a parent or guardian shall pay a fine under this section may be enforced as though it were an order passed under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. Act V of 1898

Penalty for abetting escape of youthful offender or child.

(b) knowingly harbours, conceals, or prevents from returning to school, or to any person with whom he is placed out on license, or to the person to whose custody he is committed under this Act, a youthful offender, young person or child who has so escaped, or knowingly assists in so doing; shall be liable to imprisonment for a term which may extend to two months or to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, or to both.

35. [Omitted.]

Provided that the whole period of the detention of the youthful offender, young person or child shall not be increased by the transfer.

CHAPTER VI.

Juvenile Courts.

37. (1) The Local Government may provide for the establishment for any district or other local area of one or more separate Courts for the hearing of charges against children or young persons or of applications for orders or licenses relating to a child or young person at which the attendance of the child or young person is required. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 111(5).]

(2) Where no such separate Court has been established, the Court before which a child or young person is brought, shall, unless the child or young person is charged jointly with any other person not being a child or young person, whenever practicable, sit either in a different building or room from that in which the ordinary sittings of the Court are held or on different days or at different times from those at which the ordinary sittings are held. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 111(1).]

Presumption and determination of age

38. (1) Whenever a person, whether charged with an offence or not, is brought before any criminal Court otherwise than for the purpose of giving evidence, and it appears to the Court that he is a child or young person, the Court shall make due inquiry as to the age of that person and for that purpose shall take such evidence as may be forthcoming at the hearing of the case, and shall record a finding thereon, stating his age as nearly as may be. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 128; VIII of 1897, s. 11.]

(2) An order or judgment of the Court shall not be invalidated by any subsequent proof that the age of such person has not been correctly stated to the Court, and the age presumed or declared by the Court to be the age of the person so brought before it shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the true age of that person and, where it appears to the Court that the person so brought before it is of the age of sixteen years or upwards, the person shall for the purposes of this Act be deemed not to be a child or young person.

39. (1) In determining the reformatory or industrial school to which a youthful offender or child is to be sent under this Act, the Court shall endeavour to ascertain the religious persuasion to which the youthful offender or child belongs and shall, if possible, select a school in which facilities are afforded for instruction in his religion, and shall pass an order to that effect. [Cf. 8 Edw VII. c. 67, s. 66.]

(2) Where a child or young person is committed to suitable custody under this Act, the Court in determining the person to whose custody the child or young person shall be committed shall endeavour in like manner to ascertain the religion of the child or young person and shall, if possible, select a person of the same religion, or a person who gives such undertaking as seems to the Court sufficient that the child or young person shall be brought up in accordance with his own religion, and shall pass an order to that effect. [Cf. 8 Edw. VII, c. 67, s. 23.]

[Cf 8, Edw. VII, c 67, s. 109 (1) and (2)].

(2) Any such person shall during such detention and whilst being conveyed to and from the place of detention be deemed to be in legal custody, and if he escapes, may be arrested without a warrant and be brought back to the place of detention where he was detained.

39C. GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

POLICE DEPARTMENT.

RESOLUTION—No. 2810Pl.

THE Governor in Council has had under consideration the action to be taken on the following resolution which was carried at the meeting of the Bengal Legislative Council held on the 14th July 1921 :—

"This Council recommends to the Government that an inquiry be made by a committee of officials and non-officials into the unfortunate incidents at Mohanganj Hât, in connection with the escape of prisoners from the Rajshahi Jail."

The attitude taken by Government in the Legislative Council was that the facts of the affair had already been adequately ascertained and that there was no need of further investigation. That view, however, did not commend itself to the Council. His Excellency in Council has therefore decided to appoint a committee consisting of the undermentioned official and non-official gentlemen to enquire into and report on the facts of the particular incident mentioned :—

Mr. D. H. Lees, I.C.S., Commissioner of the Rajshahi Division, President.
Rai Mrityunjay Ray Chaudhuri Bahadur } Members.
Maulvi Yaquinuddin Ahmad, M.L.C. }

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the resolution be forwarded to the President and each member of the committee for information.

Ordered also that the resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette for general information.

By order of the Governor in Council,

Orders and Notifications by the Government of India.

The following notification, issued by the Government of India in the Finance Department, published in the Gazette of India, dated the 3rd September 1921, is republished for general information.

Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal (offg.).

NOTIFICATION.

PENSIONS AND GRATUITIES.
FUNDS, SERVICE AND OTHER

Simla, the 31st August 1921.

No. 1823-F.E.—A revised edition of the Indian Civil Service Family Pension Regulations embodying all alterations approved to date is published below for general information. A reprint of the Regulations will be issued shortly.

The Indian Civil Service Family Pension Regulations, established under the orders of the Secretary of State for India in Council, for the provision of pensions for the Widows and Orphans of Covenanted Civilians in the service of the Government of India.

THE following regulations are designed to secure suitable provision for the widows and orphans of members of the Covenanted Indian Civil Service not being subscribers to the Bengal, Madras, or Bombay Civil Funds.

The Secretary of State for India in Council reserves to himself the absolute right to regulate from time to time the contributions to be required from Civil Servants under these regulations and to make any alterations in the regulations themselves that may appear to him equitable: provided always that the scale of pensions fixed thereby shall not be reduced in the case of actual incumbents. The Secretary of State in Council will endeavour to adjust the contributions to be levied from members exactly so that they shall neither be too large nor too small to supply the pensions provided by these regulations. But if it should appear on experience that they have been fixed too low, the Government will not require any supplementary retrospective payments; and if they are found to have been fixed too high, no claim to refund will be admitted.

No insurance fund is established by these regulations. The contributions will be credited and the pensions charged directly to Indian revenues as civil receipts and charges. But in order to adjust the rates of contribution from time to time to what is necessary to supply the pensions provided by these regulations and no more, a separate pro forma account will be kept of all contributions levied and all payments made under these regulations and of the interest which would have been allowed upon such contributions if a mutual insurance fund had actually been established.

In accordance with the principle announced in this notification that the Government does not intend that the pensions provided by these regulations shall bring any charge on Indian revenues in excess of the amount specially sanctioned in aid of the pensions and for the cost of management, the rate of interest to be allowed in this pro forma account will be the rate which may be fixed from time to time by the Secretary of State in Council upon a a consideration of the market rates of the day. Conversion of sterling into rupees and of rupees into sterling in transactions under these regulations and in the pro forma account shall be made at the market rate of exchange, except where otherwise indicated in the regulations.

All needful statistics of ages, births, marriages, and deaths will be carefully registered, and these statistics, with the pro forma accounts, will be submitted at such periods as may be determined by the Secretary of State in Council to such actuary or actuaries as he may select, with instructions to investigate and ascertain whether the rates of contribution are such as will, at the rate of interest then to be reconsidered and refixed, supply the pensions payable under these regulations and no more. The expense of such actuarial enquiries and reports shall be borne by the State.

Upon the report of the actuary or actuaries the Secretary of State in Council will order any necessary alterations in the rates of contribution.

The report of the actuary or actuaries, with the orders of the Secretary of State in Council thereupon, shall be published in the Gazette of India and no alteration ordered in the rates of contribution will take effect before the beginning of the month following the date of such publication. No retrospective adjustment will be made.

The benefits provided at the cost of the State are shown in the regulations; but should it at any time appear from a valuation that the aggregate liabilities on account of those benefits, when the pension list shall have reached a normal state, will exceed 35,000*l.* per annum, they will be subject to such reduction as may be necessary to restrict the assistance to 35,000*l.* per annum, but the reduction shall in no case affect the benefits payable to incumbent annuitants.

The monthly contribution for sons continues until 21 years of age, and, for daughters until marriage.

No monthly contribution under Tables VII and VIII is payable by a member after his retirement from the service on an annuity; but on marriage or re-marriage after retirement the provisions of Article 23 apply to him.

Arrears.

11. Interest at the rate of 5½ per cent. per annum is charged on arrears. Donations become due from the date on which the liability is incurred, viz., on marriage or, in the case of donations in Table VI, on the birth of a child; but interest is not charged on sums paid within one month from the date on which they become due.

Reports of Marriages, Births and Deaths.

12. A civil servant who is married at the date of his admission into the service must report the fact of his marriage on his arrival in India, and the names and dates of birth of his children if any have been born to him. A member in the service must report his marriage, or the birth of a child born in wedlock, or the death of his wife or child, within one month of the occurrence. These reports must be made in accordance with the instructions given in the Appendix, pages 1226 and 1227.

13. A member in the service or who was married before retirement must report the birth of every child born alive; but if a child die before it is 30 days old, no payment in respect to it will be required. If the report of birth be not made within one month of the occurrence a fine of 12*s.* will be imposed, and an additional 2*s.* will be charged for each succeeding month's delay. After 12 months' delay medical evidence as to the state of the members' health must be furnished in order that it may be determined whether and, if so, on what terms, liability for orphan's pension shall be accepted.

14. If the report of a marriage be not made within one month of the occurrence, the donation payable will be increased 2½ per cent., and interest thereon, charged from the date of marriage. After six months' delay the donation will be increased 5 per cent., and interest charged as above. After 12 months' delay, medical evidence* as to the state of the members' health must be furnished in order that it may be determined whether and, if so, on what terms, liability for widow's pension shall be accepted.

15. In the event of the report of a marriage or the birth of a child not being made by a member during his lifetime, in accordance with the rules, the widow or child will not be entitled to any benefits.

NOTE.—The provisions of Articles 14 and 15 are not to be read as implying an option of omitting or postponing any report that a subscriber is required to make under these Regulations. Intentional neglect to report is a breach of discipline.

Posthumous Child.

16. Provided the birth of a posthumous child is reported within one month of its occurrence and the contribution required by the regulations has been or is being paid for the father's youngest child, if any, living at the time of his death, a pension will be granted to the child without any payment if the child is born of a marriage contracted while the father was in the service. If, however, the child is born of a marriage contracted after the father's retirement from the service, pension will only be granted if, in addition, the certificate of health required under Article 23 had been furnished by the father himself at the time of his marriage or subsequently, and the donation prescribed in Table VI, paid as though the father were alive at the date of the child's birth.

Duration of Pensions.

17. If a widow re-marry she will retain half her pension during coverture, but if she again become a widow she will be entitled to revert to full pension as widow of her first husband, or, if her last husband have been a contributor, to receive a pension at her option as his widow. A widow can only receive one pension. Reduction to the half rate takes effect from the commencement of the quarter following that in which the re-marriage occurred; the full pension is restored from the day following that on which the pensioner again becomes a widow.

* See Form (D) in Appendix.

18. The pension of a male orphan is payable until he attains the age of 24 years unless he was admitted to pension with effect from a date prior to 1st April 1914, in which case his pension is payable until he attains the age of 21 years only.

19. The Secretary of State for India in Council will be prepared to consider an application for the commutation of a portion of the pension of a son with a view to the proceeds being applied to his advancement in life, provided that he has attained the age of 16.

Each case will be decided on its merits.

When the pension is payable out of India, an application should be addressed to the Director of Funds, India Office—by the mother or guardian, until the pensioner attains the age of 21, and thereafter by the pensioner himself.

When the pension is being drawn in India from a Government Treasury there it will rest with the Government of India to deal with the application, which should be addressed to the Accountant-General, Central Revenues, Calcutta.

20. The pension of a female orphan continues until the end of the quarter in which she marries, and then ceases absolutely. It does not revive on widowhood.

Good Conduct.

21. The pensions provided under these regulations shall in all cases be held during good behaviour only, and will be withheld if any pensioner is found to be leading an immoral life, or on proof of any gross misconduct. In any such case the order of the Secretary of State for India in Council, or when the pension is being drawn in India from a Government Treasury there, the order of the Government of India shall be final and conclusive.

Alienation of Pension.

22. A pension paid under these regulations may not be transferred or assigned or in any way alienated from the pensioner to whom or for whose benefit it is payable

Retired Members.

23. A member who marries after he has retired from the service on an annuity may, if he think fit, provide pension under these regulations for his widow or for his children resulting from such marriage or for both on the following conditions :—

(1) That reports of occurrences are made in accordance with the requirements of Articles 12 and 13, and subject to Articles 14 and 15, as in the case of members in the service.

(2) That a certificate of health, signed by two qualified medical practitioners showing that he is free from any bodily complaint of a dangerous tendency, and that he is believed to be a good average life* is furnished either—

(a) with the report of the marriage if he wishes to provide pension for his widow and for children resulting from the marriage, or for his widow only, or

(b) with the report of the birth of the first child resulting from the marriage if he wishes to provide pension for his children only.

(3) That the donations on marriage (see Tables IV and V), or on the births of children (see Table VI) are paid (see Articles 9 and 11, and, as regards posthumous children, Article 16).

24. An annuitant may withdraw his name from the list of members; but he will not be entitled to any refund of his payments under these regulations.

* See Form (D) in Appendix.

Members who resign the Service before becoming entitled to an Annuity.

25. A member who resigns the service before becoming entitled to an annuity will ordinarily cease, ipso facto, to be a contributor, and in that event he will have no claim to any refund, and his family will not be entitled to any pensions under these regulations; but the Secretary of State in Council may, in special cases, allow members who resign without annuities to continue their subscriptions. When such permission is granted, the member will be required to subscribe until his 54th birthday.

Dismissed Members.

26. A subscriber who is dismissed the service by competent authority will cease, ipso facto, to be a contributor. He will have no claim to any refund, and his family will not be entitled to any pensions under these regulations.

Declarations.

27. Declarations as to continued widowhood and the survival of children must be furnished quarterly to the High Commissioner, India Office, or to the proper officer in India.

APPENDIX.

Reports and applications under these Regulations should be made :—

1. To the Accountant-General, Central Revenues, Calcutta, when the member is drawing pay in India or in a Colony to which he has gone direct from India.

2. To the Director of Funds, India Office, Whitehall, London, S.W. 1, if the member is drawing his pay in England or in a Colony to which he has gone direct from England.

RESOLUTION.

ESTABLISHMENTS.

Simla, the 2nd September 1921.

No. 2068.—With reference to the Home Department Resolution No. 2668, dated the 16th December 1920, it has been decided that the orders regarding the classification of the judicial allowance drawn by officers holding superior judicial appointments in the Indian Civil Service as judicial pay shall take effect from the 22nd November 1920, the date on which the Secretary of State's orders were received, and that only those officers who are on duty, whether in a substantive or an officiating capacity, in a superior judicial post for which judicial pay has been sanctioned by the Secretary of State are eligible to receive judicial pay. The privilege leave allowances of officers holding a lien upon such a post will, however, include judicial pay. If such officers are deputed on special duty they will not be entitled to receive judicial pay. It will be a matter for consideration in each such case at the time of deputation, whether it is necessary, when deciding whether any deputation allowance should be granted, to grant any compensation for the loss of judicial pay. The powers of the local Governments regarding the grant in such cases of deputation allowances are, as hitherto, limited by the provisions of article 81 of the Civil Service Regulations. That is, no addition by way of compensation for the loss of judicial pay to the maximum amount of deputation allowance which may be granted by a local Government is permissible, but in applying the percentage in article 81 of the Civil Service Regulations judicial pay may be included with other pay for the purpose of calculating the maximum amount of deputation allowance payable.

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to all local Governments and Administrations, the several Departments of the Government of India (including the Financial Adviser, Military Finance), and to the officers subordinate to this Department for information.

ORDERED also that it be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL REPORTS OF THE VETERINARY COLLEGE AND OF THE CIVIL VETERINARY DEPARTMENT, BENGAL, FOR THE YEAR 1920-21.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND INDUSTRIES.

Veterinary.

CALCUTTA, THE 19TH SEPTEMBER 1921.

RESOLUTION—No. 3473Vety.

Minister in charge: The Hon'ble Nawab Saiyid Nawab Ali Chaudhuri, Khan Bahadur, C.I.E.

READ—

The Annual Reports of the Veterinary College and of the Civil Veterinary Department, Bengal, for the year 1920-21.

COLONEL SMITH, Principal, Bengal Veterinary College, held charge of the college throughout the year except from 1st July to 30th September 1920, when he was on furlough. During this period Mr. P. J. Kerr, who was temporarily appointed as second Imperial officer, was in charge of the college. Mr. A. D. MacGregor held charge of the office of the Superintendent, Civil Veterinary Department, from the beginning of the year till the 22nd November 1920, when he went on combined leave for eight months, and Mr. P. J. Kerr remained in charge of the office of the Superintendent till the end of the year except for a period of 27 days, when he went on combined leave, and Colonel Smith held charge of the department in addition to his own duties as Principal of the college. A second Deputy Superintendent for the department was sanctioned during the year for the Eastern Bengal divisions, with headquarters at Dacca. This appointment will, it is hoped, materially improve the work of the department in the eastern portions of the province.

2. The number of students at the Bengal Veterinary College at the end of the session was 127, of which number 53 belonged to Bengal, 45 to Bihar and Orissa, and the rest to other provinces. Owing to a large number of students leaving the college, there was a fall in the number of students as compared with the preceding year's figure, which was 158. During the year 24 students graduated from the college, of whom four belonged to Bengal. All the new graduates have been employed as veterinary assistants.

3. The report of the Civil Veterinary Department shows a marked increase in the mortality of animals from contagious diseases during the year, the total number of deaths reported being 19,344 as against 14,898 in the previous year. The increase is due to severe outbreaks of rinderpest in several districts of this presidency, this disease being responsible for 17,425 deaths as compared with 12,178 deaths in the previous year. The Superintendent, Civil Veterinary Department, reports that with the increasing attention given to details, and greater facilities for ascertaining and reporting outbreaks, many more cases now come to light than in past years. In all 539 outbreaks of rinderpest, hæmorrhagic septicæmia, and anthrax took place, and 86,354 animals were inoculated as against 537 and 84,896 respectively of the previous year. It is satisfactory to note that the death-rate amongst the inoculated animals was small, being only 1·06 per cent. for the whole province.

Leaflets dealing with the prevention and treatment of cattle diseases were freely distributed as usual. The Government (Ministry of Agriculture and Public Works) notice with satisfaction that in the work of inoculation very little opposition is now met with in the advanced districts of the province and that the beneficial result of the practice of inoculation is gradually overcoming the prejudices of the people.

4. During the year under report the itinerant veterinary assistants visited 12,756 villages and treated 69,584 animals as against 12,831 villages and 58,761 animals in the previous year.

5. In Calcutta and its suburbs all the stables and cattle-sheds were frequently inspected. Glanders was detected in 23 stables only, against 30 in the previous year. In the mufassal only three animals either succumbed to the malady or were destroyed under the provisions of the Glanders and Farcy Act.

6. The number of stud bulls kept by Government and local bodies increased from 124 in the previous year to 132 in the year under report. Of these 65 are the property of local bodies.

7. Two new dispensaries were established during the year, thus bringing the total number of institutions to 37, whilst it is satisfactory to note that the establishment of more dispensaries are under contemplation. The number of patients treated at these dispensaries was 41,074 as against 44,747 in the previous year. The decrease is reported to be due partly to a smaller number of animals being treated at the Sodepur Pinjrapole and partly to certain dispensaries remaining closed on account of the absence on leave of the veterinary assistants when no substitutes were available.

8. During the year under report the administrative control of the Civil Veterinary Department was transferred from the Director of Agriculture to the Principal, Bengal Veterinary College, he being the senior veterinary officer in the province, and he was made the head of the Civil Veterinary Department with the designation "Veterinary Adviser to the Government of Bengal." During the year revised scales of pay were sanctioned both for the Imperial and Provincial Veterinary Services.

9. The work of the Deputy Superintendents, Civil Veterinary Department, Veterinary Inspectors and the staff of the Bengal Veterinary College was satisfactory. The Government (Ministry of Agriculture and Public Works) have much pleasure in acknowledging the valuable services of Colonel Smith and in recording their appreciation of the work done by Messrs. P. J. Kerr and A. D. MacGregor.

By order of the Government of Bengal
(Ministry of Agriculture and Public Works),

J. A. L. SWAN,
Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

POLITICAL.

Simla, the 19th September 1921.

No. 714.—By Home Department Resolution No. 533-Political, dated the 21st March 1921, as subsequently amended, the Governor-General in Council was pleased to appoint a Committee to examine the repressive laws on the Statute Book and to report whether all or any of them should be repealed or amended. The Report submitted by the Committee is published below for general information.

2. The Governor-General in Council has considered the Report and has decided to accept the recommendations made by the Committee. Steps will be taken as soon as may be to introduce legislation to give effect to them.

ORDERED that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India; and that a copy be forwarded to all Local Governments and Administrations and to the several Departments of the Government of India.

H. D. CRAIK,
Secretary to the Government of India (offg.).

Report to the Government of India of the Committee appointed to examine repressive laws.

A Resolution was moved on the 14th February 1921 in the Council of State by the Hon'ble (now the Right Hon'ble) Mr. Srinivasa Sastri to the effect that a Committee be appointed by the Governor General in Council to examine the repressive laws on the Statute book and to report whether all or any of them should be repealed or amended. This resolution was carried, and in accordance with the instructions contained in resolution No. 533-Political, dated 21st March 1921, we have examined the following Regulations and Acts :—

(1) The Bengal State Offences Regulation, 1804;
(2) Madras Regulation VII of 1808;
(3) Bengal State Prisoners Regulation, 1818;
(4) Madras Regulation II of 1819;
(5) Bombay Regulation XXV of 1827;
(6) The State Prisoners Act, 1850;
(7) The State Offences Act 1857;
(8) The Forfeiture Act, 1857;
(9) The State Prisoners Act, 1858;
(10) The Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908;
(11) The Prevention of Seditious Meetings Act, 1911;
(12) The Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915;
(13) The Anarchical and Revolutionary Crimes Act, 1919.

2. Appendix A to this report gives the names of the witnesses who were invited to give evidence. We examined at considerable length 25 witnesses, some of whom came from distant provinces at much personal inconvenience. We desire to record our appreciation of their public spirit. We have also considered the opinions of Local Governments and some written statements sent by witnesses or by recognised associations. In addition we perused a large amount of documentary evidence in the shape of reports of disturbances, confidential reports on the political situation, speeches delivered at public meetings, debates in the Legislative Council when the Acts under consideration were introduced, and correspondence with Local Governments regarding the exercise of powers under these Acts. and the proceedings of the previous Committees, including the Sedition Committee.

3. The reports from Local Governments shew that recourse was had to these 'repressive' or 'preventive' enactments only in cases of emergency, or to deal with exceptional disorder for which the ordinary law did not provide any adequate remedy. It is also proved that the Government of India have scrutinized with the greatest care all requests for either the introduction of the Seditious Meetings Act or action under the Defence of India Act or the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908. During the war the maintenance of internal peace was a supreme consideration and early preventive action was essential.

The first question then that we have to decide is whether with the conclusion of the war and the introduction of constitutional changes in the Government of India, there has been such an improvement in the general situation as to justify the repeal of all or any of these measures. We have particularly to consider whether there exists such an anarchical movement as prevailed in Bengal during the last decade, or any probability of recrudescence of a movement, which at that time seriously disturbed the tranquillity of certain parts of India. On this point plain speaking is unavoidable.

4. The evidence of many witnesses indicates that the constitutional reforms have produced a distinct change for the better in the attitude towards Government of the larger portion of the literate classes. As regards the illiterate masses, the position is much less satisfactory. It must be recognised that recent appeals to racial feeling, religious prejudice or economic discontent have in fact shaken respect for law, government and authority, and "created an atmosphere of preparedness for violence." Intimidation, social boycott and the establishment of courts, the jurisdiction of which is in some cases enforced by violence and insult, are among the methods employed to create a situation full of dangerous potentialities. Similarly, while many witnesses expressed the view that the general position had improved and that the cult of non-co-operation had generally failed to appeal to more thoughtful persons, we are forced to the conclusion that the leaders of this movement have succeeded in arousing a deep and widespread feeling of hostility towards Government. It is, however, as yet more marked in urban than in rural areas. The large number of serious riots during the past seven months* cannot be regarded merely as passing ebulitions of temporary discontent. The disturbances in places so widely apart as Rye Bareli, Malegaon, Nagpur, Giridih, Dharwar, Aligarh and Matiari indicate a growing contempt for law and order. We have no doubt that economic and agrarian discontent has been exploited by agitators, and that these riots have in many cases disclosed a disregard of authority or an attempt to intimidate the courts or officers carrying out the orders of the courts, which justifies us in ascribing them to an active and malicious propaganda. In attempting any survey of the present political situation we cannot leave out of account further dangerous developments adumbrated by leaders of the non-co-operation party. To illustrate this point we cite some extracts from recent speeches :—

(1) " Mahatma Gandhi says that if you are determined Swaraj can be attained within one year. The machinery of the Government is entirely in your hands. * * * * * . At first we will request the military and the police to throw up their services with the Government. If this request is rejected the public will be asked to refuse to pay taxes and then you will see how the machinery will work. We do not recognize the authorities of the present Government and refusal to pay taxes will settle everything. This can only be achieved by unity. Now it rests with you whether you will sit under the Satanic flag or will come under the flag of God. The day will come when the sweepers, washer-men and others will be asked to boycott those who are on the side of Satan."

(2) " I believe that the real struggle with Government will commence when we withhold payment of taxes. In that case Government will come to its senses. I require students these days. Some are required for (work among the) tenantry. When they refuse to pay taxes and Government will issue warrants and send its sepoys, the peasants will boldly defy its order and will say 'Kill us or put our property to auction, but we would not pay taxes with our hands'."

Vide Appendix B.

(3) We may also quote an extract from an article in "Young India" by Mr. M. K. Gandhi :—

> "Civil Disobedience was on the lips of every one of the members of the All-India Congress Committee. Not having really ever tried it, every one appeared to be enamoured of it from a mistaken belief in it as a sovereign remedy for our present-day ills. I feel sure that it can be made such if we can produce the necessary atmosphere for it. For individuals there always is that atmosphere except when their Civil Disobedience is certain to lead to bloodshed. I discovered this exception during the Satyagraha days. But even so a call may come which one dare not neglect, cost it what it may. I can clearly see the time coming to me when I must refuse obedience to every single state-made law, even though there may be a certainty of bloodshed (our italics). When neglect of the call means a denial of God, Civil Disobedience becomes a peremptory duty."

(4) The following are resolutions passed by the All-India Congress Committee of Bombay :—

> (i) "The All-India Congress Committee advises that all persons belonging to the Congress shall discard the use of foreign cloth as from the 1st day of August next and advises all Congress organisations * * * to collect foreign cloth from consumers for destruction or use outside India at their option."
> (ii) "It is of opinion that Civil Disobedience should be postponed till after the completion of the programme referred to in the Resolution on Swadeshi, after which the Committee will not hesitate, if necessary, to recommend a course of Civil Disobedience even though it might have to be adopted by a special Session of the Congress. Provided however it is open to any Province or place to adopt Civil Disobedience subject to the previous approval of the Working Committee obtained within the Constitution, through the provincial Congress Committees concerned."

Witnesses unanimously agreed that Civil Disobedience, particularly if it took the form of a "no-revenue" or "no-rent" campaign, would result in widespread disorder, and that a boycott, whether of foreign goods or of liquor, if accompanied by intimidation, might result in violence. The boycott of foreign cloth is apt to raise prices, and the consequent economic distress would end in "hat looting" such as has occurred in the past.

5. In the light of the evidence before us it is therefore impossible to describe the state of affairs to-day as normal. Nor is India singular in this respect: the reaction from the war is world wide and no country has escaped its effects. There are however grounds for hoping that an improvement has begun: there are signs of a gradual adjustment to post bellum conditions: a favourable monsoon would do much to remove economic discontent: the relations between Government officials and the public, between the Ministers and officers serving under them are admittedly undergoing successful readjustment: finally, the response made to the opportunities offered by the Reformed Councils, no less than the attitude of the Executive and the Legislators, of mutual co-operation is encouraging, But as militating against this improvement, there is an active widespread campaign which, if judged by recent utterances, is certain to increase economic difficulties and to promote disaffection and violence.

6. We have carefully scrutinised the evidence dealing with the Khilafat movement. With its religious aspect the Committee is in no way concerned: indeed we fully sympathise with the desire for favourable peace terms for Turkey, but it is our duty to examine closely the activities of the extreme leaders of this movement and the methods by which they seek to attain their aims. We are informed that any real appreciation of the difficulties of the situation is confined to a small class, but it cannot be denied that the terms of the Turkish peace treaty have been used to cause a dangerously bitter feeling amongst the masses, and that religious enthusiasm exploited by unscrupulous agitators has in many places developed into fanatical hostility to the British Government. Thus, despite frequent and authoritative contradiction by the Government in the Legislative Assembly and outside, the lie that holy places have been desecrated is still repeated. We cite below extracts from reports of speeches submitted to us.

(1) At Karachi a Hindu 'Ecclesiastical' supporter advised "sympathy with their Moslem brothers because the power that had caught hold of the Muslim holy places would not spare those of the Hindus."

(2) Or again, "The British had caused Hindu and Muhammadan brothers to fight and have thus made straight their own road. They had destroyed Mecca and Medina. Shots had even fallen on the Prophet's remains. All Muhammadans who had fought against the Turks should be divorced."

(3) "Referring to the fight in Mecca he said that the Sharif was the master of the place. There were only 30 or 35 Turkish soldiers. When the British Army reached Mecca they killed 3 of the Turkish soldiers who were found marketing. Two others, who took shelter in the Kaaba (the holy temple) where not a tiger nor even a fly was allowed to be killed according to religion, were slaughtered by the British soldiers. Moreover the holy carpet of the Kaaba which was prepared by the hands of the innocent little girls was burnt by the fire of the British shells."

(4) The following extract refers to the Kheri murder case :—

"I am going to pronounce the order of God that if the slayer of a heathen is killed, he will certainly become a martyr. If he dies it is your duty to pray for him.

"One Englishman has died here; lakhs of Hindus and Mussalmans have been martyred there—

"If after lakhs of Mussalmans have been martyred in Smyrna, somebody has killed Christians, Christians have retaliated entering Constantinople. If he has committed the murder for the sake of religion and he is slain he will attain martyrdom. Heavens await him and the houries are standing (to welcome him) with cups in their hands."

7. It was, we were told by a frontier officer, statements of this kind, particularly relating to the defilement of holy places, which has created such bitterness and led to the Hijrat from Upper Sindh and Peshawar with such disastrous consequences. Instances of gross misrepresentation are numerous. Nor does it end here. Perhaps the most sinister feature in this campaign of calumny is the direct attempt to seduce the military and the police force from their allegiance. Evidence has been adduced of many specific instances of such attempts, which the military authorities regard as most mischievous. Speeches have also been reported :—

(1) "Tell every Muhammadan clearly that it is his religious duty to avoid being recruited for the army. Do not give a single soldier that he may behead his brother with his own hands."

(2) "Your religion is calling for help, but you do not lay down your life for God; you join the army or police on fourteen rupees a month. You say you are a Government servant; but you are God's servant."

8. We have also had placed before us reports of many speeches made by various leaders of the movement which can only be considered as direct incitements to disloyalty and internal disorder, as well as an encouragement to foreign invasion. The following are instances :—

(1) "If the Amir of Kabul does not enslave India and does not want to subjugate the people of India who have never done any harm and who do not mean to do the slighest harm to the people of Afghanistan or elsewhere, but if he comes to fight against those who have always had an eye on his country, who wanted to subjugate his people, who hold the Holy Places of Islam, who want to crush Islam in their hostile grip, who want to destroy the Muslim faith and who were bent on destroying the Khilafat, then not only shall we not assist, but it will be our duty and the duty of every one who calls himself a Mussalman to gird up his loins and fight the good fight of Islam."

(2) "When we have to kill all Englishmen we will not come stealthily, we will, that very day, declare openly that there is (war with) the sword between you and us now and it will be sheathed only when either your neck disappears or ours."

(3) "The object of my speaking so plainly is to assure you that in the question of Khilafat we have not gone an inch against the doctrines of Islam. In my religion, to die and to kill in the cause of God are both good deeds."

(4) " He told his audience that their time had at last come. Everything was ready for jehad and the signal was about to be given. He exhorted them to be bold and steadfast. The weapons of the British soldiers and sepoys could not harm them for he had the power to render them innocuous. This time there was little talk of non-co-operation. The business for the moment was war."

(5) " If you do not come forward, God shall raise another nation for Islam's defence. Those who wage the war of jehad will not mind any remonstrances. * * * Swaraj is a religious obligation with me. I am doing my work for the sake of the holy Kaaba, Medina and the Qoran. It is better to be slaves of Muhammadans than of the English. It is our duty to help the Amir if he comes to carry on jehad. I am prepared to fight the battle of Independence whether my Muhammadan brothers help me or not."

(6) " In the next Congress in December, which is to be held at Ahmedabad, the Indian Musalmans will ask the Congress to tear up their old creed, which is twelve months old, and take India out of the British Empire and hoist a tri-coloured flag of Indian independence with a spinning wheel in the centre and declare India a republic. This is our reply. This is our ultimatum. You have not given an ultimatum to the Turks, but we give an ultimatum to you. There is peace between you and us for three months more. After three months there will be conflict. After conflict there will be peace. And the peace will be that you will go out of India. You wanted to turn out the Turks bag and baggage, but we will make you leave the bags and baggage here as it is ours."

Such quotations could be multiplied. After a careful perusal of these and other similar utterances, we have no hesitation in holding that this form of propaganda is directly calculated, when addressed to an impressionable and excitable audience, to lead to violence.

9. We endeavoured to ascertain the effect of this combined movement (the Non-co-operation and the Khilafat) on the student community, and have received valuable evidence from educational authorities. The situation was at one time disquieting. Direct appeals were issued of which we give one example by a prominent leader of the Khilafat movement :—

" Those who read the newspapers know the part taken by the students in all countries in these days. The first example was set by the students of Russia at the time of revolution. They took great part therein and you know the result. In China also the students agitated and the courses of the universities were changed according to their wishes Look at the condition of Egypt and the work done there by the students ? They have obtained religious form of instruction. They have agitated for years and in the long run they have been successful in their revolution. Both boys and girls took share in the revolution. Our only hope of spreading agitation is by means of the students who are always enthusiastic."

Our general impression is that the student community at large has not been permanently or seriously affected by such mischievous appeals, save in the way of sentimental sympathy for the non-co-operation movement and the personality of its leader. The 'national' institutions have obtained meagre support whether in the shape of funds or pupils. Several have now been closed. There was at first some response in the form of strikes, but the large majority of students returned. The result of the University Examinations, and the number of entries shew that there has been no appreciable falling off in the number of admissions or of candidates. It is noticeable that the effects varied in different institutions, which we attribute to the influence or lack of influence of the Principal and Professors. We are however convinced that as in the case of the public generally, so with the students there is less respect for authority than there was before. Nor can we over look the fact that there is a small residue of misguided boys who, by forsaking their studies, have not only imperilled their future career but would seem to have elected that of the professional agitator. We have dealt upon this aspect of the situation in view of the unhappy activities of certain members of the student community of Bengal ten years ago.

10. Taking into consideration all the evidence we have received, and the points to which we have adverted, and bearing in mind the still prevailing economic discontent, we cannot dismiss as improbable the danger of sudden sectarian, agrarian or labour disorder on a large scale culminating in riots.*

11. We may now in the light of this appreciation of the present political position examine the question of repealing or retaining the various Acts under consideration. Dealing with the older Acts first, we notice that they relate generally to a state of affairs which no longer exists. We regard it as undesirable that they should be used for any purpose not contemplated by their authors. The objections to them are obvious. Some, as, for example, Bengal Regulation 10 of 1804, or the Forfeiture Act of 1857, are inconsistent with modern ideas; others are clothed in somewhat archaic language and are applicable only to circumstances which are unlikely to recur. Many arm the Executive with special powers which are not subject to revision by any judicial tribunal. Their presence on the Statute book is regarded as an offence by enlightened public opinion. The arguments for their retention are as follows. The use of the Bengal State Prisoners Regulation, 1818 (Regulation III of 1818) in Bengal was necessitated by the revolutionary movement which the ordinary law failed to check. The wholesale intimidation of witnesses rendered recourse to the ordinary courts ineffective. Though we have evidence of a change in the attitude of individual leaders of the anarchical movement in Bengal, we are warned that similar symptoms of intimidation have been noticed, and that, should there be a recrudescence of any revolutionary movement, it would, in the absence of these old preventive Regulations, be impossible to cope with the situation, and fresh emergency legislation would be necessary. Lastly, the plea is advanced that these old Acts may be regarded as measures intermediate between the ordinary law of the land and martial law, the ultimate result in case of extreme disorder. The abolition of these special laws, it is suggested, may mean earlier recourse to martial law than might otherwise be the case.

12. We recognise the force of these arguments, in particular the difficulty of securing evidence or of preventing the intimidation of witnesses. We also appreciate the fact that the use of the ordinary law may in some cases advertise the very evil which the trial is designed to punish. But we consider that in the modern conditions of India that risk must be run. It is undesirable that any Statutes should remain in force which are regarded with deep and genuine disapproval by a majority of the Members of the Legislatures. The harm created by the retention of arbitrary powers of imprisonment by the Executive may, as history has shewn, be greater even than the evil which such powers are directed to remedy. The retention of these Acts could in any case only be defended if it was proved that they were in present circumstances essential to the maintenance of law and order. As it has not been found necessary to resort in the past to these measures save in cases of grave emergency, we advocate their immediate repeal. In the event of a recurrence of any such emergency we think that the Government must rely on the Legislature to arm them with the weapons necessary to cope with the situation.

13. Our recommendation in regard to Regulation III of 1818 and the analogous Regulations in the Bombay and Madras Presidencies is subject, however, to the following reservations It has been pointed out to us that, for the protection of the frontiers of India and the fulfilment of the responsibilities of the Government of India in relation to Indian States, there must be some enactment to arm the Executive with powers to restrict the movements and activities of certain persons who, though not coming within the scope of any criminal law, have to be put under some measure of restraint. Cases in point are exiles from Foreign or protected States who are liable to become the instigators or focus of intrigues against such States: persons disturbing the tranquillity of such States who cannot suitably be tried in the Courts of the States concerned and may not be amenable to the jurisdiction of British Courts: and persons tampering with the inflammable material on our frontiers. We are in fact satisfied of the continued necessity for providing for the original object of this Regulation, in so far as it was expressly declared to be "the due maintenance of the alliances formed by the British Government with Foreign Powers, the preservation of tranquility in the territories of Native Princes entitled to its protection and the security of the British Dominions from foreign hostility," and only in so far as the inflammable frontier is concerned, from "internal commotion."

* NOTE.—After this report had been drafted we received information of the grave and widespread disorders in Malabar, which, in our opinion, more than justify the apprehensions leading to this conclusion.

We desire to make it clear that the restrictions which we contemplate in this connection are not of a penal or even irksome character. We are satisfied that they have not been so, in cases of the kind referred to above, in the past. Indeed in several instances they have been imposed as much in the interests of the persons concerned as in the interests of the State. The only desideratum is to remove such persons from places where they are potential sources of trouble. Within such limits as may be necessary to achieve this object they would ordinarily enjoy full personal liberty and a freedom from any kind of stigma such as would be associated with restrictions imposed by criminal law. We therefore recommend the amendment of Regulation III of 1818, limiting its application to the objects outlined above.

This reservation may also involve the retention in a modified form of the State Prisoners Acts of 1850 and 1858, but this is a matter for legal experts. We have carefully considered the cases in which the Madras State Prisoners Regulation of 1819 has been used. The procedure adopted was certainly simpler and more effective, but if the ordinary law is insufficient, we think it is for the Local Government to consider whether any amendment of the Moplah Outrages Act XX of 1859 is needed.

14. Turning now to the more modern Acts, we notice that the Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915, will in the ordinary course of events shortly expire. It is, we understand, at present only used in order to give effect to the Government of India's policy in the matter of colonial emigration. Section 16B of the Defence of India (Consolidated) Rules, 1915, is at present employed to prevent the departure from India of unskilled labour, which does not come within the definition of 'emigration' given in Act XVII of 1908. We understand that a Bill to meet the case of Indian Emigrants has already been introduced.

A special regulation may, we think, also be needed for the exclusion of persons whose presence may endanger the peace and safety of the North-West Frontier Province. We recommend that the Defence of India Act be repealed at once, as it was only intended to cope with difficulties arising from the war.

15. The Anarchical and Revolutionary Crimes Act, 1919 (popularly known as "the Rowlatt Act"), has never been used. Its enactment was extremely unpopular; it was to continue in force only for three years from the termination of the war. We consider that the retention of this Act is not necessary or advisable. The power to restrain personal liberty without trial conferred by this Act is not consistent with the policy inaugurated with the recent constitutional changes, and we therefore recommend its immediate repeal. It is, however, necessary to strike a note of warning. While we think that there has since 1918 been some improvement in the situation so far as the anarchical movement is concerned, we realize that strong measures may be needed for the suppression of any organised attempt at widespread disorder. We prefer, however, to leave this contingency to be dealt with when and if it arises, rather than retain a statute which is regarded as a stigma on the good name of India.

16. There remain then two Acts, the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908, and the Prevention of Seditious Meetings Act, 1911. It is around those two Acts that controversy has centred and regarding which we have been careful to obtain a full expression of opinion. These Acts also differ from those to which we have already referred in that, while the Committee was sitting, they were actually being used in the Punjab, Delhi and United Provinces. The evidence of some of the witnesses goes to show that their effect was beneficial and that their application was necessary to maintain public tranquillity. It is affirmed that local officers responsible for the maintenance of peace and order would, under existing conditions if these Acts were repealed, find themselves in an impossible situation faced, it might be, with disorder on a large scale which they could not prevent. The application of these Acts moreover is subject to safeguards which ensure that sanction to their introduction is only granted after careful scrutiny of the necessity for such action. The Local Governments are unanimous in asking for the retention of the Seditious Meetings Act. Most of the Local Governments similarly affirm the need for retaining Part II of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908. It is desirable therefore to examine most carefully the reasons for and against their repeal.

17. These Acts are first attacked as being "unconstitutional," and, like the Act of 1919, inconsistent with the present policy of Government. In support of this view our attention has been directed to the law that obtains in England with regard to public meetings. The following dictum of Professor Dicey is quoted: "The Government has little or no power of preventing meetings which to all appearance are lawful even though they may in fact turn out when actually convened to be unlawful because of the mode in which they are conducted." We would point out that the learned Professor is merely stating what are actually the principles underlying the law in England. He does not attempt to discuss their propriety, nor, we may add, their applicability to other countries. He does however allude to "the policy or the impolicy of denying to the highest authority in the State the very widest power to take in their discretion precautionary measures against the evils which may flow from the injudicious exercise of legal right." The learned author also points out that the right of public meeting is "certainly a singular instance of the way in which adherence to the principle that the proper function of the State is the punishment, not the prevention, of crimes, deprives the Executive of discretionary authority." Apart from the great difference in the class of audience which may be addressed, we recognise that while democracy and all the rights that it entails have been the result of gradual growth through the course of centuries in Great Britain, they are a recent introduction into India.

18. The next argument advanced for the repeal of these Acts is that they offend public sentiment and that their retention would be a direct incitement to further agitation. This argument is one to which we attach great weight, even though we recognise that the repeal of these Acts would only appeal to a few. We realise that the wholesale repeal of these Acts would do much to strengthen those who are anxious to assist Government and would be useful for the purposes of counter-propaganda. We realise also that substantial support is necessary for Government to meet the non-co-operation movement, which is the greatest obstacle to the successful development of the reforms recently introduced and to all political and industrial progress.

19. The real point, however, at issue is whether the ordinary law that would remain would provide sufficient means for coping with any existing or reasonably apprehended disorder. Evidence has been adduced to show that in certain places the ordinary law is inadequate and this evidence we are not prepared to reject.

This brings us to the third objection that the ordinary law alone should be applied to prevent the evil with which these two Acts are designed to cope. We have had long discussions as to the manner in which Section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code has been recently applied. It is no part of our duty to express an opinion on any individual case in which this Section has been used or to enter into any legal argument. In the opinion of those best qualified to judge this section cannot be used effectively when there is danger of widespread disorder. We also note the argument that Section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code was not designed to prevent meetings over a large area, and that its use for such a purpose arouses probably as much resentment as the application of the Seditious Meetings Act. It is the only preventive section in the ordinary law. Section 108 A of the Criminal Procedure Code is only partially preventive. Sections 120 A and B, 124 A, and 153 A of the Indian Penal Code are punitive. Further, even if satisfactory evidence is available, these sections can be used only against individuals and not to prevent seditious meetings or speeches. We consider it probable that if in those areas to which the Seditious Meetings Act has recently been applied, no preventive action, other than that possible under Section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code, had been taken, the dangers of disorder would have been appreciably increased, and the number of prosecutions under these punitive sections would have been larger, which might have had the effect of exasperating public opinion. We would point out that in some cases referred to in Appendix B, the riot was directly connected with such a prosecution.

20. A fourth argument is based on the recent findings of the Committee appointed to examine the Press Act. It is unnecessary for our purpose to discuss whether the written or the spoken word commands the greater circulation. We agree with that Committee that "the more direct and violent forms of sedition are now disseminated more from the platform and through the agency of itinerary propagandists than by the Press." The prosecution of a paper is moreover much simpler than the prosecution of a speaker, attended as the latter is by the difficulties of obtaining an accurate report of the speech delivered. We think that the instances we have given above are sufficient illustration of the danger of allowing violent and inflammable speeches. Though the speaker can be prosecuted, the mischief may have been done. Of this there have been lamentable illustrations.

21. Fifthly, it is argued that the Seditious Meetings Act of 1911 not only stifles noxious speeches at public meetings but also deters people who might assist in counter-propaganda. Cases have been quoted of persons otherwise well disposed to Government who declined "to ask for leave to hold a meeting or make a speech." We recognise that this is a necessary and, undesirable result of the application of the Seditious Meetings Act. It is, however, a lesser evil than allowing speeches to be made which result in such disorder as would equally prevent any exponent of opposite views from obtaining a hearing. Such intimidation is, we learn, by no means uncommon.

22. In this connection, since we regard it as important that every opportunity should be given to the electorate of hearing both sides of a question we recommend, before the next general election, the introduction of a Bill on the lines of the Disorderly Public Meetings Act of 1906 (8, Edward VII), which makes a disturbance at a public meeting an offence, and provides a heavier penalty when this offence is committed during a Parliamentary election. We would also suggest that should such a Bill be presented, it should include a clause making it incumbent on the promoters of any meeting to provide adequate facilities and security for such reporters as the District Magistrate may wish to depute. We recommend that, when the Seditious Meetings Act is repealed, the District Magistrate should be empowered, by law, with the consent of the Local Government, to demand in any area of his district, notified in this behalf, that notice be given to him of the intention to hold a public meeting, so that he may be able to make proper arrangements for obtaining a report of the proceedings. This, we may observe, is entirely different from demanding that a person should obtain leave to hold a meeting.

23. Finally, it is pointed out that, in the last resort, should the ordinary law prove insufficient, recourse can be had to legislation by Ordinance. We would deprecate any suggestion that the exercise of the extraordinary powers of the Governor General should be regarded as an appropriate method of legislation save in abnormal circumstances. These powers should, we think, be reserved for exceptional or sudden emergencies. To regard them as in any way the normal method of legislation implies a distrust of the Legislative Assembly and Council of State to which we would be sorry to subscribe. In fact, the most potent argument advanced in favour of the repeal of these two Acts is that such repeal would be an illuminating object lesson in the value of constitutional reforms. "Trust your Legislatures," we are told, "confidence will beget confidence. If you need exceptional powers, prove your necessity and the Legislatures will grant them." We accept this principle. We have adopted it to the utmost limit consistent with safety in advising the repeal of the enactments to which reference has been made. But we feel that we should not, under present conditions, be justified in advising the immediate repeal of these two Acts. We may also point out that their provisions are not of a drastic character. In this connection we may quote from the speech of the late Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale on the Seditious Meetings Bill: "I will freely admit that from the standpoint of Government it could not haveintroduced a milder measure than this. The more objectionable features of the Act of 1907 have been removed, and if, when the need arises, the law is applied with reasonable care and caution, it is not likely to produce any serious hardship.....If the need of the Government is urgent and immediate, then of course all ordinary considerations must be put aside, and every loyal citizen must range himself on the side of the Government in sanctioning and enforcing the measures that are thought to be indispensable. In a state of actual disturbance, in a state of dangerous activity on the part of elements hostile to the very existence of the Government, I can understand the Government calling on all loyal citizens to rally round it in this manner." Though seldom applied, these two enactments have recently in the present situation been found necessary for the preservation of law and order. Further, an obvious objection to a more complete acceptance of this principle is that in allowing proof of the necessity for legislation to accumulate, even stronger measures than those now under consideration might eventually be required for the suppression of disorder. By the time public opinion had become sufficiently alarmed to demand or approve legislative action, the damage might be irretrievable.

24. As regards the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908, it has been suggested that sections of the Indian Penal Code are sufficient to cope with any situation that is now likely to arise. It is generally accepted that Part I of this Act has failed to achieve in Bengal the purpose for which it was designed. As regards Part II, the conspiracy sections of the Indian Penal Code might meet the case if, but only if, evidence were forthcoming. It was in no small measure the impossibility of obtaining evidence owing to the intimidation of witnesses that led to this enactment. As we have already seen, there is definite evidence of certain organisations encouraging acts of violence or resorting to intimidation. Recently in Delhi it has been necessary to declare certain Associations of Volunteers unlawful under Section 16 of this Act. We have carefully examined the circumstances which led to this action. The Volunteer movement began with "social service," but the adherents soon developed a definite tendency to interfere with the duties of the Police and the liberty of the public. They then began to intimidate and terrorise the general body of the population. There was a tendency towards hooliganism. It has been proved that some of these Associations resorted to violence, that their behaviour at Railway Stations and public meetings was objectionable and rowdy, that they obstructed the funeral of an honoured citizen and held a most undesirable demonstration at the house of another. They actively interfered with the elections by threats and picketing. There was every reason to believe that their activities, if left unchecked, would lead to serious disorder. The conclusion we have arrived at is that some of these Volunteer Associations in Delhi were seditious organisations, formed for the purpose of intimidating loyal citizens, and interfering illegally with the administration of the province. The result of the action taken by Government has been, we were told, to "destroy the worst features of volunteer activity in so far as it was synonymous with rowdyism in the city of Delhi." We have received information of a possible recrudescence of secret associations in another part of India. It has also been stated in evidence that Bolshevik emissaries have entered India, and we cannot overlook the possibility of illegal associations promoted by them for terrorising the population, and engaging in a campaign of crime and terrorism. Actully Part II of this Act has been sparingly used. Its object is not only to break down existing unlawful associations, but to deter young and comparatively guiltless persons from joining these bodies and to discourage the supply of pecuniary assistance. We regret that we cannot at this juncture recommend the immediate repeal of Part II of this Act. There are too evident indications that its application might be necessary to prevent the formation of secret societies. It must be remembered that there is no legislation in India "for the prohibition of drilling and military training without lawful authority" on the lines of the English statute (60 Geo. III). Nor can we for the reasons already given advise the immediate repeal of the Seditious Meetings Act of 1911. We were informed that the result of the application of the Act in each case has been that sober-minded people approved the action taken by Government, and that the application of the Act was of the greatest value in preserving public tranquillity.

25. Our recommendation follows that made by the Bihar and Orissa Government: "Subject, however, to the reservations temporarily made in favour of the Seditious Meetings Act and Part II of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, which cannot be abandoned until the present tension created by the non-co-operation movement has been relieved by the action of its leading promoters, His Excellency in Council desires again to emphasise the importance of removing from the Statute Book as far as possible all special laws of this character, so that the Government of India under the reformed constitution may proceed with a clean slate. At the same time, however, His Excellency in Council is conscious that in the future the need for special powers may again arise."

In view of the grave situation which exists and which may become more serious, we also think that it would be prudent to defer actual repeal of these Acts until such time as the situation improves. Many of us hope that it may be possible for the Government to undertake the necessary legislation during the Delhi session. We can make no definite recommendation on this point at present. We trust that the repeal of these Acts may be expedited by a healthy change in the political situation. The duration of retention rests in other hands than ours.

26. To this endeavour to adjust the conflicting claims of political considerations and administrative necessity we have applied the principles on which the Constitutional Reforms are based. The problem before us is, we consider, a test case of the "co-operation received from those upon whom new opportunities of service will thus be conferred and the extent to which it is found that confidence can be reposed in their sense of responsibility." We recognise our responsibility in the maintenance of peace and order. We are prepared to trust both the Provincial Councils and the Imperial Legislatures for such support as may be necessary. We believe that the Executive will use any exceptional powers with the utmost caution and restraint. Their action may always be challenged in the local legislatures. Lastly, we desire also to take into account the difficulties which at the present time confront local officers. Evidence before us shows† that the Magistrates and the Police have on many occasions been sorely tried, and we wish to record our appreciation of their loyalty in very difficult positions. Animated by these ideas, we therefore recommend the repeal of all the Statutes included in the terms of reference to this Committee, with a reservation as to Bengal Regulation III of 1818 and the corresponding Regulations of the Madras and Bombay Presidencies, but we advise that the repeal of the Prevention of Seditious Meetings Act, 1911, and Part II of the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908, should be deferred for the present. Their retention is necessary in view of recent occurrences and possible developments, which we cannot but regard with the gravest apprehension.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Final Forecast of the Jute Crop of Bengal for 1921.

(NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1919-20, the area under jute to which this forecast relates represents some 88·5 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.)

Season.—As reported in the preliminary forecast, the weather was too wet for the crop in its early stages in the eastern and northern districts, while drought delayed sowings in the deshi districts. The rainfall in July, though below normal in Western Bengal, was helpful to weeding, but in most of the jute-growing tracts in Eastern and Northern Bengal it was excessive, causing considerable damage on low lands, especially in Jalpaiguri, Rangpur, Cooch Behar, Mymensingh and Tippera. In August and September the seasonable rainfall greatly facilitated the steeping and washing operations. In the western districts the crop, however, suffered to a certain extent from insect pests.

Condition of the crop.—Owing to the unfavourable season the crop outturn is a poor one in Western Bengal, and fairly satisfactory in Northern and Eastern Bengal.

Acreage.—The area under jute is returned at 1,329,190 acres, a decrease of 876,133 acres or 39·7 per cent., as compared with last year's final figures. The decrease is attributed chiefly to—(1) unfavourable weather conditions in the deshi districts; (2) the low price obtained for the two preceding crops and the large carry over; (3) also to the high price of food-stuffs, which induced the cultivators to substitute food-crops for jute.

Outturn.—As in previous years the percentage figures are calculated on the basis of divisional normals, which remain as follows:—Dacca and Chittagong 3·7 each, Rajshahi 3·5, Presidency and Burdwan 3·2 bales per acre.

The total outturn of the Bengal crop is returned at 3,605,991 bales of 400 lbs. against 5,304,836 bales in last year's forecast, a decrease of 1,698,845 bales.

24 Parganas ...	47,712	24,176	84·3	75	126,377	58,973	End of August. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to want of rainfall at sowing time and also to low price of jute and high prices of food-stuffs.
Nadia ...	58,163	33,451	66	57	123,439	60,539	August. Normal ...	The decrease in area is mainly due to low price of jute and to high price of rice. The outturn is much below the normal owing to stunted growth of the plants on account of late sowings.
Murshidabad ...	15,111	6,514	112	63·4	53,922	13,229	End of August. Late	The decrease in area is due to bad market for jute. The falling off in outturn is due to want of seasonable rain. Some damage by insect pests is also reported to have been done in Hurshi and Bhagawangola thanas
Jessore ...	55,350	43,579	84	84	159,164	130,787	August. Normal ...	Since the submission of the preliminary forecast, the weather conditions have been very favourable and the crop is satisfactory, except in the Bongong subdivision.
Khulna ...	9,880	4,941	78	72	24,605	11,482	End of August. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute and to high prices of food-grains. The decrease in outturn is due to want of timely rainfall.
Burdwan ...	5,721	1,342	101·87	74·37	18,671	3,193	First week of September Late.	Unfavourable market last year and want of sufficient rain during the sowing season account for the enormous decrease in area this year. Late sowing and drought are responsible for the low outturn.
Midnapore ...	7,963	5,511	74	66·90	18,987	11,829	Middle of September. Late.	The decrease in area is due to unfavourable weather conditions and dull market last year.
Hooghly ...	26,259	18,993	91·15	80	76,606	48,622	Third week of August. Late.	The decrease in area is due to insufficient rainfall at sowing time and to drought later on, and also to high price of food-grains and low price of jute last year.
Howrah ...	9,674	4,639	90	85	27,868	12,673	First week of September. Rather late.	The large decrease in area is due to bad weather conditions at sowing time and to dull market. Subsequent weather conditions have been quite favourable.
Rajshahi ...	80,407	44,849	60	79	170,145	125,437	.....	The decrease in area is due to fall in price of jute and to the old stock remaining unsold. The decrease of 2,641 acres since the preliminary forecast is due to floods in Naogaon. In Nator the weather conditions have been favourable since the end of June last. In Naogaon the crop suffered a good deal from heavy rain during the end of April when the plants were young. During the latter part of May, cyclonic wind accompanied by hail-storm checked the growth of the plants in places.
Dinajpur ...	65,619	43,547	88·6	85	134,355	84,079	By the middle of August. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute during the last two years. The outturn is much below the normal owing to incessant rainfall during the growing period.
Jalpaiguri ...	55,289	26,833	80	60	154,809	60,333	Middle of August. Normal.	The increase in area is due to the non-receipt of figures from certain unions at the time of the preliminary forecast. The low outturn is due to early sowing and to constant and heavy rainfall after sowing.
Darjeeling ...	2,803	1,438	97*	75	9,580	3,765	End of August. Rather late.	The decrease in area is due to bad market and to unfavourable weather conditions. The excessive rain has retarded the growth of the crop in the early stage.

Rangpur ...	241,454	138,365	75	71·97	333,817	248,295	July. Normal. Harvesting was, however, retarded in August owing to inadequate rainfall.	The decrease in area is due to (1) prevailing low prices of jute for the last two years, (2) want of a ready market, and (3) large stocks in hand remaining unsold for some time. The decrease in outturn is due to the fact that about 2,109 acres of jute lands in the Kurigram, Gaibandha and Nilphamari subdivisions were completely damaged by flood in the month of July.
Bogra ...	74,730	50,600	57	59·3	149,460	165,753	Middle of July. Normal.	The weather was seasonable, except for a period of drought in June.
Pabna ...	96,138	65,620	67	61·4	236,116	141,017	Early July ...	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute and to unfavourable weather conditions at the beginning. The low outturn is due to considerable damage done by early flood and insects in the Sadar subdivision.
Malda ...	19,000	7,470	52·86	44·3	35,150	11,580	By the end of August. Late.	The decrease of 6,720 acres compared with the preliminary forecast is mainly due to mistakes in calculating the totals in the preliminary forecast. The falling off in outturn below the normal is due to unfavourable weather at sowing time and during the early stage of the growth and also to the damage caused by flood
Dacca ...	244,211	140,((((	70	79	626,176	410,000	Beginning of July. Early	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute and to sufficient stock remaining in hand from the crop of last year. The weather was seasonable at the sowing time but the plants could not thrive well owing to continuous drought later on. Early flood also caused damage on low lands. Hence the outturn is not very satisfactory.
Mymensingh ...	538,331	332,393	63	60	1,288,975	997,794	End of July. Normal	The increase in percentage outturn this year is due to favourable weather conditions.
Faridpur ...	219,100	143,000	79	84	643,334	443,300	Early July. A little earlier.	The falling off in outturn below the normal is due to (1) drought at sowing time, (2) to heavy rain in April, and (3) to early rise of rivers, which caused premature harvesting.
Bakarganj ...	37,933	19,413	73	76	101,797	54,897	July. Early	The fall in outturn is due to (1) excessive rain at the beginning, (2) to drought in April, which retarded the growth of the crop, and (3) to damage caused by flood and high wind during the latter part of July, which necessitated early harvesting.
Chittagong ...	200	200	105	81	791	600	Last week of August .	The weather has been favourable and no damage is reported. The crop is cultivated for domestic use only.
Tippera ...	318,280	150,000	80	72	403,906	400,000	Early part of June. A little early owing to early flood.	The decrease in area is due to (1) low price last year, and to (2) uncertainty of the market rates this year. The percentage outturn is better than last year owing to more favourable weather this year.
Noakhali ...	36,144	7,382	49	95	65,419	35,939	Beginning of July. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute last year and to a considerable quantity of old jute remaining in stock from last year's crop. The weather has been favourable.
Add for Cooch Behar.	36,121	13,147	45	24·8	57,473	11,346	End of July to third week of August. The harvesting was late in the Sadar, Dinhata and Mathabhanga subdivisions and was normal elsewhere.	The poor outturn is due to the fact that excessive rain at sowing time caused destruction to the young plants.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BIHAR AND ORISSA.

Final Forecast of the Jute Crop of Bihar and Orissa, 1921.

(NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1919-20, the area under jute to which the Bihar and Orissa forecast relates, represents about 7·8 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.)

Acreage.—The final district returns of the seven jute-growing districts of the province show an area under jute of 108,368 acres or in round numbers 108,400 acres, as compared with 106,400 acres reported in the preliminary forecast, 1921, and 178,800 acres last year. The decrease in area was mainly in Purnea, where it was attributed to the fall in price of jute last year and the year before and also to the accumulation of unsold stock. The unfavourable season at the beginning was also responsible for the decrease in general.

Weather conditions.—In March the rainfall was above the normal in Champaran and Purnea and below the normal in the rest of the jute districts. In April it was above the normal in Purnea, Bhagalpur, Champaran and Muzaffarpur, but below the normal in the remaining three districts. In May it was below the normal everywhere. The rainfall in June, though below the normal everywhere, did immense good to the crop. In July the rainfall was above the normal in Purnea, Bhagalpur and Balasore and below normal in the remainder. In August it was below the normal in Purnea, Cuttack and Balasore and above the normal in the remaining four districts. The season was on the whole unfavourable for the crop. Some damage was also done to the crop on low lands in Purnea by heavy rain in July.

Outturn.—In the important districts of Purnea and Cuttack the outturn of the crop has been reported as 65 and 86 per cent., respectively. Champaran reports a normal crop. Balasore, Bhagalpur, Muzaffarpur and the Santal Parganas report 93, 90, 75 and 63 per cent., respectively.

On the basis of the area and percentage outturn reported by the District Officers and taking three bales as the normal outturn per acre, the total gross outturn of the crop for the province this year comes to 225,417 bales or in round numbers 225,400 bales against 334,500 bales for last year.

The average import of raw jute into this province from Nepal during the last three years was equivalent to 79,501 bales. This figure added to the figure for the province arrived at gives a total for Bihar and Orissa of 304,918 bales or in round numbers 304,900 bales.

The outturn is expected to be normal. The date of harvesting was normal. There has been no change in the area since the submission of the preliminary forecast.

The outturn is expected to be better than that of last year as the weather condition has improved since the submission of the preliminary forecast. The figure for area in column 7 has been arrived at after investigation, the decrease being due to unfavourable weather at the beginning.

The heavy rainfall in July damaged the crop on low lands to some extent. The decrease in area was due to the heavy fall in the price of jute last year and the year before and also to accumulation of unsold stock. The outturn is expected to be fair at Sadar and Kishanganj and good at Araria. A better outturn is expected this year than that of last year.
	Santal Parganas	3,490,400	1,717,900	2,100	900	500	72	63	1,944	945	Latter part of August.	The decrease in area and outturn is noticeable in Rajmahal, where the area sown is 400 acres against 800 in last year and the outturn only 7 annas against 9 annas. This is due to the fact that rainfall was insufficient at the beginning, on account of which the plants did not thrive and the whole area could not be sown. In Pakaur, also, the rainfall was late and no more land could be sown than what was done last year, but the outturn is expected to be better than that of last year.
Orissa	Cuttack ...	2,249,307	1,222,500	18,100	18,000	15,600	75	86	40,500	40,248	Last week of August, which is late.	The weather and rainfall were generally favourable to the growth of the crop. The area under the crop this year has increased since the submission of the first forecast owing to the rainfall conditions of June last, but the decrease in area as compared with that of last year is chiefly due to the fall in the price of jute.
	Balasore ...	1,332,621	932,200	2,500	2,150	1,700	90	93	5,670	4,743	Not yet begun ...	The weather condition was not favourable at the time of sowing owing to the scanty rainfall in April, but subsequently the rains have improved the prospects of the crop and helped further sowing. The decrease in area sown is due to the fall in the price of jute and unfavourable weather at the time of sowing.
	Total ...	17,222,665	10,309,300	235,657 or in round numbers 235,700	178,750 or in round numbers 178,800	108,368 or in round numbers 108,400	62·4	69·3	334,485 or in round numbers 334,500	225,417 or in round numbers 225,400	.....

DEPARTMENT OF LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE, ASSAM.

Final Forecast of the Jute Crop of Assam, 1921.

(NOTE.—On the average of the five years ending 1919, the area under jute in Assam represents some 3·9 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.)

1. Season.—As indicated in the preliminary forecast, the weather from sowing time was exceptionally wet and culminated in heavy floods which caused considerable damage in the western districts of the Assam Valley and in Sylhet.

2. Area.—The area under jute has been reported by the Deputy Commissioners to be 75,800 acres, against the final figure of 124,700 acres of last year and 87,200 acres shown in the preliminary forecast of this year. The decrease is due to the very low price of jute and the unfavourable weather conditions at sowing time. Five districts have revised the areas reported in the preliminary forecast.

3. Outturn.—The outturn is estimated to be 53 per cent. of the normal per acre, against 67 per cent (revised) in last year. Taking 3·3 bales of 400 lbs as the normal yield per acre, the total yield of jute in Assam is calculated to be 141,700 bales, against the previous year's revised figure of 275,400 bales, or a decrease of 49 per cent.

Cachar ...	300	300	200	60	60	500	400	Early August. Normal	The decrease in area is due to incessant rains at the sowing time and the low outturn due to irregular and heavy rains subsequently after sowing.
Sylhet ...	16,000	14,300	5,800	60	60	28,300	11,500	August. Normal ...	The decrease in area is due to the low price of jute. The area was over-estimated in the preliminary forecast. The weather was not favourable. The floods of June and July did considerable damage to the crop.
Goalpara ...	42,400	86,900	24,900	50	25	93,800	20,500	First week of July. Early.	The abnormally low price of jute and the unfavourable weather at sowing time account for the decrease in area. The weather from June to August was most unfavourable: heavy rains and floods caused considerable damage to the crop.
Kamrup ...	8,150	15,800	11,500	70	50	36,500	19,000	Second week of August. Normal.	There was excessive rainfall at the time of sowing. The character of the weather was not good for the growth of the crop. Damage is reported to have been done by floods.
Darrang ...	7,000	11,400	9,500	95	65	25,700	20,400	First week of July. Early.	The decrease in area is due to the unfavourable weather at sowing time and to the fall in price. The weather during growth was not favourable. Damage by flood is reported from Mangaldai subdivision.
Nowgong ...	5,700	21,300	20,200	95	95	66,800	63,300	15th July. Early ...	The weather was good at sowing time and the slight decrease in area is due to low price. Continuous rain from June to August retarded growth. Insects are reported to have damaged the crop in some places.
Sibsagar ...	300	300	400	70	75	700	1,000	20th August. Normal	The increase in area is small. The weather was wet from June to August and retarded growth.
Lakhimpur ...	200	200	100	95	75	600	200	15th September. Normal.	Excessive rain at sowing time was the cause of the fall in area. The weather during the season was not favourable. Some damage is reported to have been done by floods.
Garo Hills ...	4,100	4,200	3,300	90	50	12,500	5,400	Beginning of August. Normal.	The very low price of jute in last year reduced the area. The weather during June to August was wet and serious injury was caused by floods in June and July and a large part of the crop was destroyed.

MONTHLY WEATHER AND CROP REPORT OF BENGAL FOR AUGUST 1921.

I. Character of the season.—During the month under report the rainfall was above the normal in 20 districts; elsewhere the fall was defective. It was markedly in excess in almost all the western districts. The usual rainfall statement is appended.

II. Progress of agricultural operations.—Transplantation of winter paddy made satisfactory progress throughout the Presidency. The harvesting of autumn paddy has been nearly completed and that of jute has much advanced in North and East Bengal.

III. State of standing crops.—The condition of paddy, sugarcane and vegetables was satisfactory.

IV. Prospects and probable outturn.—The outturn of autumn paddy is anticipated to be fairly satisfactory. With the monsoon normally active in this province the prospects of transplanted winter paddy are satisfactory.

V. Damage to standing crops.—Some damage to jute and other standing crops was reported from parts of Nadia, Murshidabad, Jessore, Khulna, Malda and also from the low-lying tracts of North and East Bengal, partly from the rise of river level and partly by insect-pests.

VI. Condition of agricultural stock.—The condition of live-stock was satisfactory. Sporadic cases of cattle-disease were, however, reported from 11 districts of the province.

VII. Failure of pasturage and fodder.—Fodder and water were reported to be sufficient everywhere except in parts of Mymensingh where scarcity of fodder was felt.

VIII. Prices of food-grains.—During the second-half of the month under review the price of common rice of the cheapest quality rose in 10 districts, fell in 9 districts, and remained stationary in the rest of the province. It ranged from 4 seers 12 chitaks per rupee at Darjeeling to 7 seers 6 chitaks at Calcutta.

IX. Condition of agricultural people.—The condition of the agricultural population was fair.
